Enjoying a Blizzard.
Big Bill—Death Angel.
Justice Holmes at 90.
The Silver Problem.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CHICAGO, March 9.

THIS CITY is enjoying a visit with high winds and driving snow and literally ENJOYING IT. Strenuous Chicagoans like opposition and struggle. Waves are high on the lake, twenty thousand men have been working all night, clearing the snow from the street car tracks.

THE MAYORALTY fight continues, long drawn out. "Big Bill" Thompson having eliminated his Republican opponent in the primaries, now faces Cermak, a Democrat, in the final test. The defeated Republican, Judge Lyle, was unfortunate in his rather violent newspaper support, and Republican newspapers that do not love "Big Bill" find themselves supporting a Democrat, head of the Democratic machine in Cook County.

PREDICTING WHAT will happen, the surviving Republican "Big Bill," like Mr. Wegg, drops into poetry, saying the result of this campaign will remind you of verses that you learned at school:

"Like the leaves of the forest
when autumn is green,
That host with their banners at sunset were seen.
Like the leaves of the forest
when autumn had flown,
The host on the morrow lay withered and strewn."

And says "Big Bill:"

"I'll be the angel of death that will wither them."

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES is 90 years old. His mind is clear, his knowledge of the constitution's real meaning unimpaired, and his sympathies are still with the 120,000,000 Americans, not transferred to 120 big corporations.

His long life and continued strength offer encouragement to men past middle age that would like to make the latter part of life useful.

Justice Holmes will be the first Supreme Court judge that ever wrote a decision at 90 years of age, and he still carries in his body three bullets, collected as a soldier in the Civil War.

IN A FEW days the Prince of Wales, having traveled far and wide by steamer and airplane, will open the British trade exposition in Buenos Aires. The trouble with British and other trade is a silver trouble.

There is not enough gold in the world to carry on its commerce now that silver, used side by side with gold for thousands of years, the only money available for more than half of the world's population, has been cut down in value two-thirds.

That situation will have to be changed before world-wide prosperity can be restored.

COTTON GROWERS need not wonder at the persistent low price of their product. Cotton in the past, as Dr. I. D. Carpenter, of St. Paul, points out, has been sold in great quantities to the tropical climates of China, India, Asia, Mexico, Central and South America. The silver money of these countries is almost worthless, and they cannot pay former prices.

Our high financial intelligence will have to do something about the silver question, or we shall find ourselves like the dragon Fafner, sitting on our pile of gold, four and one-half billions of it, with no customers to buy from us.

HOUSEWIVES TRYING to make a small income take care of a big family will be interested in an advertisement recently published in the San Francisco Examiner and the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, by the "Public Food Stores."

It read: "Large fresh ranch eggs 16 cents per dozen."

Furthermore it may interest those that think of moving to learn that San Francisco, well described as "the New York City of the Pacific Coast," declares that good food is sold there at a price lower than anywhere else.

Of course, Los Angeles and at least 1,000 other places on the coast and the Gulf will deny that.

MONTE CARLO'S gambling institution has been robbed by gamblers clever enough to bribe the right men and mark the cards with chemicals, markings visible only to those wearing glasses with a certain tint.

It is difficult to feel sad about that, although millions of francs are said to have been stolen by the ingenious swindlers.

On a previous occasion the gambling casino was robbed by gentlemen that "pinched" the roulette wheels, making certain numbers a little wider to receive the whirling ball.

Storm Sweeps U. S.; Many Killed

15 PERISH IN MIDWEST BLIZZARD

Snowdrifts Block Traffic; Gale Lashes Atlantic Seaboard; 4 Lost on Tug

A storm that swept over the greater part of the United States today had left a toll of many dead in its wake.

In the Midwest, a blizzard paralyzed a large area, taking 15 lives.

Snowdrifts closed six state highways in Pennsylvania.

The Atlantic seaboard was lashed by a gale which caused traffic accidents taking a dozen lives.

International News Service.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Choked by mountainous snow drifts that blocked highways, paralyzed communications and isolated entire communities, Chicago and the Upper Mississippi Valley states struggled today to free themselves from the grip of the two-day March blizzard that took a toll of at least 15 lives.

The blizzard's force had apparently blown itself out here in the Middle West as the storm center swung eastward over the Great Lakes region.

Twelve lives were lost in Chicago's metropolitan area as the city battled drifts seven to 20 feet high and sub-freezing temperatures. Three persons lost their lives in Wisconsin. The estimated

FIRE ROUTS 300 STUDENTS

Three hundred students in the First Ward School, Grant avenue, Millvale, enjoyed a half-holiday today when fire, presumably caused by an overheated furnace, damaged two of the eight rooms in the building. The fire was discovered during the noon-hour recess.

No estimate of the damage has been made. The fire was confined to the ceiling of the building by Millvale firemen.

School will be resumed tomorrow in portions of the building unaffected by flames and water. Emergency rooms for the others will be found in other school buildings in Millvale, authorities said.

So well did the Service of Supply function that soldiers in the front lines never lacked food for a single day. In today's instalment of his memoirs, appearing in the Sun-Telegraph, Gen. John J. DEATH ASKED IN GIN PARTY TRIAL

Arguments Start as Defense And State End Testimony; Kirkland Sees Acquittal

International News Service.

VALPARAISO, Ind., March 9.—Final arguments of the defense and prosecution began today in the trial of Virgil Kirkland, Gary High school football hero, who is on trial for the murder of 18-year-old Arlene Draves, his fiancee.

Demanding death in the electric chair, closing arguments to the jury were opened by John Underwood, prosecutor of Lake County, who has been leading the fight to make Kirkland pay for the death of the Draves girl.

CROWD HOSTILE

Underwood outlined the evidence the state has offered to prove that young Kirkland, along with four others, attacked and killed the girl at the height of a young people's gin party in Gary.

Kirkland, with a hostile crowd looking on in the courtroom, based his final hopes on the battery of defense counsel which has fought for more than two weeks to break down the state's case against him.

He laughed and chatted with his attorneys and court attaches during the long delays during the session and said:

"I am not the least bit worried. I'm not guilty and I'm sure the jury knows it by now."

DELAYED BY STORM

Both the state and the defense closed their cases before noon, completion of evidence coming after a laggard morning featured by the contradiction of medical testimony offered by the experts for both sides.

The morning session had been delayed an hour because arrival of witnesses and attorneys was hindered by the heavy snow storm over the week-end.

Artist Making Statue Stolen From Museum

EVA ROSE, 16 — MYRTLE ALTWATER

MISS ALTWATER AT WORK ON HER "EVA ROSE": THE STATUE HAS VANISHED FROM CARNEGIE GALLERIES IN OAKLAND

GIRL'S STATUE DISAPPEARS

The second theft of a piece of art from an Associated Artists of Pittsburgh exhibit in 20 years has wrecked the six-month efforts of a Pittsburgh business girl-sculptress. She is Miss Myrtle Altwater, who works by day in her brother's photographic studio, and by night carves delicate figures.

Guards at the Carnegie Museum, where Miss Altwater's statue, "Eva Rose," was stolen, believe it was taken by an eccentric who had waited day after day for an opportunity to steal it. The theft occurred at noon when the guards were changed.

Eva Rose, for whom the statue was named, was the 16-year-old model for Miss Altwater and lives in Rippey street.

Miss Altwater's statute, "Eva Rose," was in her opinion the best product of her skill, and its disappearance has brought to an end the work of six months and the outlay of more than $50 in materials and model fees.

Miss Cora Lee, of Oakmont, today was announced winner of the popular prize of the exhibition. Miss Lee, whose painting, "Zinnias," received nearly a fourth of the ballots cast, died two weeks ago. After a lifetime spent in painting, it was the first prize she had been awarded.

13,400,000 Without Religious Guidance

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—The Home Missions Council of North America, in a statement published today, says America has 10,000 villages without churches, 30,000 villages without resident pastors and 13,400,000 children under 12 without benefit of religious instruction.

Snow and Ice Endanger City's Traffic

Highways of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania today were reported the most dangerous they have been this season because of ice and deep snow drifts. Snow from three inches to eight feet was reported by the touring bureaus of the Pittsburgh Motor Club and the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh. All highways in and around the city were covered with ice and snow and were very slippery, it was said.

Highways east, through the Allegheny mountains, and to the north, were blocked by drifts. Cindering crews were hampered by heavily packed snow which covered the roads. The Babcock boulevard and the Butler road were especially dangerous.

Six state highways in Susquehanna and Wayne counties were blocked despite efforts of 1,500 men with 310 trucks and tractors to keep the roads open. Nine-foot drifts were encountered.

To the west of the city the roads were icy in spots with a good deal of snow throughout Ohio. In the lake district ice and snow were also reported.

A bus of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company and an automobile owned by Lon Loninger, of 1330 West North avenue, collided at Liberty avenue and Barbeau street this morning damaging a traffic light. The accident was caused by slippery streets. Loninger and J. L. Dunlevy, of 134 South Twelfth street, driver of the coach, were arrested.

SHOOTS GIRL, KILLS SELF

Frustrated wedding plans was given today as the cause of the double shooting in McKeesport last night, in which Clyde Linsay, 40, of 570 Harmony avenue, Rochester, critically wounded his sweetheart and killed himself.

R. L. Lindsay, of Rochester, brother of the dead man, in a statement to Deputy Coroner W. R. Sellers, declared his brother told him something would happen if the parents of his fiancee—Naomi White, 29, of 223 Pacific avenue, McKeesport — prevented their marriage.

The shooting occurred, police say, in the hallway of the White home when Miss White accompanied Lindsay to the door as he was leaving. Told she did not care to see him again, according to the report to police, he drew a revolver and fired four shots at her, two striking her in the chest and right arm. Lindsay then shot himself in the head, and died en route to the hospital.

Raskob Wants His Half If He Splits Party

Mr. Hoover has no plank for 1932. He just wants an extra term to catch up on his vetoes.

Raskob doesn't mind splitting the Democratic party up the back like a mackerel so long as he gets his half.

COUNCIL GIVES VIEWS ON QUIZ

Members of City Council in prepared statements read at today's meeting defended their positions in regard to the investigation of alleged irregularities in the City Department of Supplies.

Councilman Robert Alderdice contended that whether Mayor Kline's investigation of the Supplies Department was open or closed did not matter to Council.

Councilman Harry Little defended Council's action in referring action in the matter of not granting requests for an open hearing as "a proper and orderly procedure."

The Alderdice statement:

Robert J. Alderdice

"Council has always maintained that the proper place for this complaint was the Mayor and the Controller, as the Mayor is the head of the city government and has the power to hire and discharge any of the city employes either in his cabinet or in the several governmental departments. STANDS PAT AS WIDER INQUIRY LOOMS

Dunlap Confirmed as New Supply Head; Looseness in Other City Offices Hinted

City Council this afternoon stood by its guns in the face of an ever-increasing demand for a public investigation of the Department of Supplies.

The individual councilmen in statements announced their intention to refuse the demand of civic bodies for an open investigation of city purchases.

Council confirmed Mayor Kline's selection of Col. William R. Dunlap as director of supplies, successor to Bertram L. Succop, who was fired by Mayor Kline for alleged irregularities. It was Succop's awarding of food contracts to high bidders which precipitated the demand for a public hearing.

PETITIONS FILED

After confirming Dunlap, Council then voted to receive and file the communications from the Allied Boards of Trade and the Civic Club of Allegheny County, which asked for a public investigation. Council's action is tantamount to a refusal.

Council chamber was packed with representatives of the League of Women Voters, prime mover for an open investigation, and other spectators. Extra chairs were placed in the room.

In their statements Councilmen Robert J. Alderdice and M. J. Muldowney pointed out that the Mayor had not been inactive in this investigation, that Succop had been fired. Muldowney added that the Mayor and Controller J. P. Kerr had also recommended certain changes in the system of the Department of Supplies.

Councilman Harry A. Little went so far as to say:

"I believe that within a short time their report (the Mayor's and the Controller's) will be in our hands and then if circumstances make it appear that a public investigation should be made, I do not feel that Council will be lax in its responsibility."

WIDER INQUIRY

Among the representatives of the League of Women Voters attending Council meeting was Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, who indicated that a general investigation of many city departments for irregularities such as those uncov-

Frances Kier Weds Baron In Paris Civil Ceremony

PARIS, March 9.—(AP.)—Frances Myler Kier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Kier, of Pittsburgh, was married today at a civil ceremony to Baron Jean Pellenc, of Paris. The marriage was performed at the Eighth Ward Town Hall by Deputy Mayor Georges Fromageot.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin G. McIntosh, of Pittsburgh, relatives of the bride; Mrs. Kier and the mother of the bridegroom witnessed the ceremony.

A religious ritual will be performed tomorrow at the Church of St. Philippe du Roule.

The bridegroom's title is of Napoleonic origin.

The Kier-Pellenc wedding was postponed one day, according to French custom, when the bridegroom's father, Gen. Baron Jean de Pellanc, died five weeks ago.

The bride, then an art student, and the baron met in Paris in 1929 and their romance grew from a mutual interest in art. The baron, who has won recognition for wood carvings and screen decorations, visited the Kier family here in December.

REPUBLICAN PARTY FACING STRUGGLE OVER LIQUOR ISSUE

HOOVER DRY STAND HELD CERTAIN

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—While it is generally taken for granted by politicians of both parties that President Hoover will be renominated next year, and that he will run for re-election as an outright dry, indications are multiplying that the Republicans are going to have to stand some of the grief over the prohibition issue.

There is a small, but militant-minded Republican group who are not going to see the party line up solidly with the drys in 1932 without a struggle. Probably they will make little headway, but they are nevertheless determined to make a fight, and any fight is not without its embarrassing features.

ISSUE DELICATE ONE

Both Republican and Democratic leaders, however, concede that the prohibition issue must be "handled with gloves" to avoid serious party disaffections in 1932.

Calming a bit after their first chortle of glee at the disharmony in Democratic ranks provoked by Raskob's "home rule" plan, the G. O. P. high command has suddenly realized their own situation is hardly more reassuring.

As the Republican party's position regarding prohibition loomed into the political spotlight Senator Watson of Indiana, majority leader of the Senate, last night declared that economic issues rather than the dry question will dominate the next presidential campaign.

Watson declared the Republican party's position on prohibition has been clearly outlined and that there is no need for it to make a declaration on the issue. His position was interpreted as meaning that party leaders will keep hands off the prohibition question.

FESS TARGET

If Raskob is to be the target of Southern drys, Chairman Simeon D. Fess will soon find Eastern Republicans clamoring for his scalp if he attempts to commit the party in favor of prohibition.

Fess nearly precipitated a wide-open split on the issue after the congressional elections last fall when he announced the Republican party must remain "dry."

While the chorus of attack which followed quickly subsided there was an echo of it today when Representative Fiorello La Guardia of New York, demanded the Republican national committee face the issue as the Democrats must do under Raskob's prodding. He asserted:

"In all fairness millions of Republicans are entitled to know just what side their party will take on prohibition in 1932. The Republican leadership have it within their power to sacrifice victory for prohibition, the Southern Democrats will be ready to sacrifice prohibition for victory."

WILL SEEK VOTE

Meanwhile, with one session of Congress just out of the way, congressional anti-drys already are laying plans to force a vote next winter on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, for the first time since it was adopted, it was disclosed today.

The plan involves united support of anti-prohibitionists for a drive to liberalize the iron-clad rules of the House under which leaders control priority of legislation.

Representative J. Charles Linthicum, of Maryland, chairman of the "anti-dry bloc," explaining the strategy of his forces, predicted the repeal question will not only be put to a vote, but that if it fails in the Seventy-second Congress it will succeed in the Seventy-third.

Anti-Saloon Head Scores Raskob Liquor Plan

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 9.—(AP.)—The Anti-Saloon League, in annual convention here, today girded itself for another battle on behalf of prohibition in the presidential campaign of 1932 after hearing F. Scott McBride, its general superintendent, predict the dry law would be a leading issue then.

Denouncing the recently advanced plan of John J. Raskob, national chairman of the Democratic party, for state control of liquor, McBride charged last night that the proposal was backed by "the multi-millionaires of the East."

Mother Ill, Kept Unaware Bomb Maimed Student

Mrs. Emma E. Voight, ill in her home, 130 Birmingham avenue, was kept unaware today of the home-made pipe explosion of a bomb which maimed her son, Alvin, 20.

Mr. Guskey

Alvin, an art student in the school of education at Pitt, has also been deeply interested in chemistry. Recently he compounded a powder by his own mixture of chemicals and made a bomb, loading a six-inch gas pipe with the powder and inserting a fuse.

With Wilbur L. Guskey, 19, of 21 Birmingham avenue, a Pitt freshman, Voight went to a woods near Parallel street, Carrick, Saturday to try out his bomb on a tree stump. He placed the bomb, touched off the fuse and the two ran to a safe distance.

Fifteen minutes passed without an explosion, so the two returned to the bomb. Voight picked it up and jerked the fuse as Guskey again retreated. The missile exploded in Voight's hands. He lost one hand and the other was partially amputated in the South Side Hospital, where both youths were taken, Guskey with an injured leg.

First aid was given the two by Thomas Farrell of 343 Parallel street, who staunched the flow of blood and then enlisted the aid of George Miller, 334 Parallel street. At the hospital it was said both victims would live.

Councilmen Defend Quiz Stand

Controller held an investigation; whether it was an open or closed investigation, does not matter to Council.

"The fact of the matter is that an investigation was held, and the Mayor must have found some things that were not satisfactory to him, because after the investigation he conducted, he immediately discharged the director of the Department of Supplies, which I presumed he thought would be sufficient punishment to the director for neglect of hi duties in that department.

"After Council received reports from the Mayor and the Controller in finance last Tuesday, the members of Council on the strength of these reports drew up this resolution which we are voting on today embodying seven different recommendations. And I will say to you that anybody who has any decency whatsoever of any regard for the truth cannot gainsay anything against this resolution which we are about to pass today.

"If after an investigation by the auditing committee which now has the matter in hand, anything should be found of a nature that would tend to show that the city has been in any way defrauded, then it is the duty of the Controller and the Mayor to proceed against those who have been guilty.

"This Council as you know has always stood for an investigation by the Mayor and the Controller and was willing and ready at all times to support the Controller in any step that he might take to clear this matter up.

"There is nothing to be gained by an investigation of the nature that the newspapers have spoken of. Only last week many of the newspapers of the country were carrying complaints against these investigations because of the amount of expense that they were costing the taxpayers of the country. One paper went so far as to say that the Nye investigating committee at Washington had spent several hundred thousands of dollars and had not accomplished anything.

"Mr. Chairman, this council knows very well what it is to hold investigations. A great many here have been held in this room and a lot of money has been spent and nothing whatsoever has come from them that would any way benefit the taxpayers, and no one has been punished so far as I know from any one of them.

"Mr. Chairman and members of Council, this Council was organized and doing business for over 20 years, and never in all that time has the finger of scorn been pointed at it, or any of its members for failing to do their duty as they saw it. To my mind there is not a single member of Council who is not deeply interested in the welfare of the city as any of our newspapers or our citizens. As for myself, I vote on this matter as my conscious dictates. I stand ready and willing at all time to back the controller up in this particular case regardless of what it may cost."

Harry A. Little

Councilman Little said:

"I regret that I was absent from the city when the debates and discussions were held in Council the past few weeks. Upon my arrival last Monday, I listened to the discussion regarding the resolution from the League of Women Voters, requesting a public hearing. I thought at that time that it was customary and proper to refer the resolutions to the proper committee and I so voted, and in committee we adopted the resolution we have before us today.

"I believe it is the orderly and dignified manner of conducting Council's business. It seems to me to be the decent thing to do—to afford these elected officers—the Mayor and the Controller—an opportunity to properly investigate these matters. It is simply a courtesy to them and their office.

"I believe that within a short time their report will be in our hands, and then if circumstances make it appear that a public investigation should be made, I do not feel that Council will be lax in its responsibility.

"I might add, Mr. President, that if the Controller needs funds for his audit, I, for one, will vote to give him any amount necessary to get to the bottom of this mess."

Councilman M. J. Muldowney said:

M. J. Muldowney

"It is unfortunate that a deliberate attempt has been made to pace the Counci in a false light before the citizens and taxpayers. The record of the proceedings will show that the Council has not refused to give a hearing nor investigation. On the contrary, just the opposite was the truth. When the letter of complaint was received and readin Council it was immediately referred to the Mayor. In addition to the Mayor, the Council added the controller to the motion, making it a committee of two to whom Council referred the complaint and asked for a report after an investigation.

"The Mayor, as the authority responsible for the director of supplies, has advised Council that he has dismissed that director for certain irregularities which were enough in his opinion to justify such dismissal, so that as far as the Mayor is concerned, it is very unfair to charge that he did not act as promptly as circumstances permitted. The Mayor and the Controller joined in a report to Council, which is now a matter of record, in which they recommended certain changes regarding specifications and various other matters. Council has accepted these recommendations and today we are voting on the action of the Finance Committee, from which the resolution before us came.

"In addition to this we have a further report from the Controller stating that he is proceeding with the Bureau of Governmental Research along the lines as recommended by the joint report of the Mayor and the Controller.

"So after a complete, thorough and unbiased consideration of the facts as presented in the proper committee we have these resolutions recommended by that committee, and I am satisfied that the passage of this resolution is the pr oper manner to proceed, and that by following out the recommendations contained in the resolution, Council is adopting the only proper method open to that body in the handling of this matter."

LINER RAID LED BY PENNINGTON

PHILADELPHIA, March 9.—(AP.)—Commander John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for this district, issued a statement in which he assumed responsibility for the raid on the United States liner the SS. Republic, a few hours before the ship sailed on a cruise to the Caribbean.

After a conference with Mayor Mackey, Director of Public Safety Lemuel B. Schofield, issued a statement that he and the Mayor were in accord in the matter of prohibition enforcement. He also displayed a statement from Commander Pennington which said in part:

"Friday night, March 6, information reached me that a large and commercial violation of the prohibition law would be found on the dock near the SS. Republic. With this information in my possession it was my duty to conduct an investigation.

"On my request, Director Schofield assigned two members of his force to assist in the investigation. No commercial violation was found. There was no raid, no searching of the ship, staterooms or engine rooms. No passengers were interviewed or disturbed. A verbal report has been made to the customs authorities and the incident is closed."

GORDON GIRL'S BROTHER GOES INSANE

5 Detectives Subdue Him After Three-Hour Battle: Find No Clues in Killing

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—The third victim of a trilogy of murder, suicide and near madness, Pierre M. Franklin, brother of strangled Vivian Gordon, tossed fitfully in a hospital today under heavy guard.

Yesterday—the eleventh day since his racketeer sister's body was found in a park thicket, and the sixth since the lifeless form of his 16-year-old niece was found in a gas-filled kitchen—Franklin suffered a mental collapse, and forcibly was taken to the psychopathic ward of Bellevue, strapped to a stretcher.

SHOUTS AND CRIES

Early in the morning he dashed half-clad into the hall from his room in a hotel—shouting and crying. Five house detectives and a nurse labored with him for three hours before they could subdue him. When police arrived, they found him lying on the bathroom floor, gibbering.

His room was littered with newspaper clippings revealing the sordid underworld life that led Vivian Gordon to her death and shamed her daughter, Benita Bischoff, into an untimely grave. Photographs of his sister, a striking auburn-haired woman, in a variety of poses and of his niece in her first dancing costume lined the walls.

Hospital officials said he was not in a serious condition, but would require constant care and observation to restore his mental state to normal. He weighs well over 200 pounds and is of a hearty, healthy type.

HOME IN MONTREAL

Saying Montreal was his home, Franklin came here several days after the crime and claimed his sister's body, certifying his kinship in affidavits. He and an unidentified woman, the only mourners, buried her Friday in Westchester County. He paid his hotel bill Saturday night and said he was returning home the next day.

Meanwhile, the hunt for Miss Gordon's slayers virtually was at a standstill. With professional detectives and 18,000 of New York's "finest" co-operating, not a single clue has been turned up which points toward a solution of the city's most engrossing mystery since the murder of Arnold Rothstein in 1928.

SEABURY READY TO QUIZ CRAIN

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—Samuel Seabury, who, as referee in the vice inquiry, dragged magistrates and police into the spotlight, today officially accepted Gov. Roosevelt's mandate that he turn his investigating rays on District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain and, through Crain, a number of city departmental mysteries.

Seabury announced that he has agreed to act as commissioner in investigating charges of incompetency and malfeasance against the district attorney, who was at his office as usual today, but had no comment to make.

The vice inquiry, Seabury said, will continue "without interruption." The Crain investigation was asked by the City Club, which filed a formal petition with the Governor, accusing the Tammany district attorney of New York County of incompetence and of failing to press prosecutions. If Mr. Seabury finds the charges against Mr. Crain to be true, the Governor has the power of removal.

FEAR FOR 'GIRL MART' HEAD

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—(Universal.)—Growing fear that Olive Clark Day, admitted proprietor of Hollywood's "girl bazaar," may have been kidnaped and spirited into Mexico or may have met with even a more sinister fate, today resulted in a wide search for the woman who, in her amazing confession, named many prominent men as patrons of her "love mart."

Miss Day dropped mysteriously from sight shortly after midnight Friday, following her release on $5,000 bail from county jail, where two hours before she had made her astonishing confession.

A mystery man, said to be both prominent and wealthy, who is believed to have posted the surety bond for Miss Day's unexpected release from jail, has been placed under surveillance in connection with the search for the missing woman.

Chief Investigator Matthews, of the district attorney's office, will question today several girls who were listed in Miss Day's diary as intended victims of her love bazaar.

District attorney Buron Fitts will continue his investigation into other asserted "love marts" which allegedly used Hollywood and Los Angeles as their headquarters, but had branches in other cities.

dum, the principal points would cover to what extent, if any, the Sunday laws would be changed in each community to permit sports and entertainment in the afternoon and evenings.

One delegation of 200 representing sports and interested supporters of liberalized Sunday laws, will represent the district between Altoona and Pittsburgh. A. C. Couch, working with the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., in forming this delegation, declared every possible interest will be represented.

Two committee delegations for the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce will attend the hearing, Manager Donald J. Howard, of the community affairs division, reported. Besides his committee, Mr. Howard said the recreation committee will be represented.

The Pittsburgh Hotelmen's Association is considering possible representation at the hearing.

Councilman Harry A. Little declared efforts will be made for a group of municipal officials to attend. Action is being delayed, however, due to the Department of Supplies investigations, he said.

The local delegations will be supplemented by a group from Philadelphia.

Natrona Light Official to Be Questioned on 69 Pct. Dividend Declared in '29

By ED PRENDERGAST

HARRISBURG, March 9.—L. A. Smith, secretary of the Natrona Light Company, which Gov. Pinchot charged earned a 69 per cent dividend in 1929, is expected to appear before the Senate committee investigating public utilities today.

In the event Coleman J. Joyce, counsel and vice president of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, completes his testimony, Smith, also an official of the Pennsylvania Salt Company, of which the light concern is a subsidiary, may tell how the Allegheny County light factory turned up such an unusual dividend.

Smith is from Philadelphia.

BALK AT EXPENSES

The Senate committee of investigation will not sponsor a bill for expenses of the committee in the Senate at present, it was learned, although the House resolution asking $25,000 may be presented when the Legislature reconvenes.

Senator Harry G. Scott, chairman of the appropriations committee, refused to express himself as to what his committee will do with the House measure, when it passes the House.

The possibility that Representative Storer's resolution calling for a $50,000,000 bonus for veterans of the wars from 1898 to today may go to the people also was expressed.

It comes up again in the House tonight, after passing last year, and has a chance of passing that body this week. If it is successful in the Senate the people will get a chance in 1931 to decide.

COAL POLICE ISSUE UP

Forces for and against the abolition of coal and iron police were arming today for a battle. A measure was expected to be presented at the public hearing tomorrow. The Musmanno bill will be discussed and the Pittsburgh Coal Company and other interested parties are expected to present their arguments.

A number of members of the Legislature who favor curbing industrial police powers are in disagreement with the bill in some of its provisions.

Glenn Moore's municipal manager bill also is expected to get its third reading.

District No. 5 United Mine Workers of America today sent a delegation to Harrisburg for the hearing on the police bill. President Patrick Fagan headed the delegation.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(INS.)—President Hoover had before him today a proposal to turn over to 22 western states 180,000,000 acres of vacant federal lands for ultimate transfer to private ownership.

War Burdens Difficult To Adjust, Coolidge Says

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 9.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The special commission selected from members of the cabinet, Senate and House to present a plan for equalizing the burdens of war has an intricate and difficult problem. Everyone would like to see some policy adopted to prevent one portion of our people from profiteering while another portion is bearing arms.

Mr. Coolidge

But a complete equalizing of rewards or sacrifices either in war or peace has always been impossible. Only a small portion of our man power can be drafted without a complete breaking down of the economic system. The same is true of property. Taking too much at once would so impair the remainder that the country would be defenseless.

High taxes during the war were a draft of wealth. That will go on for generations. Much of it will go to veterans. Much wealth that is intangible like the necessary credit structure cannot be seized. The Soviets seized everything in Russia from the throne down, destroyed credit and produced universal bankruptcy. Physical properties are useless without the intelligence to operate them. It will be difficult to conscript the mind.

While increase in prices may be necessary to stimulate war production, surely some plan can be found to curb future abuses.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

WON'T QUIT IF HEALTH LASTS

Chief Justice Hughes, Other Notables Praise Supreme Court Justice for Ability

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—With his ninetieth birthday past and the observance in which he reluctantly took part ended, Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, of the Supreme Court, went back to work today.

Having heard himself described as one of the great jurists of all-time in a radio observance of his anniversary last night, the venerable jurist had made it clear that he will go on as long as he can.

"To live is to function—that is all there is to life." So said the justice, whose life has spanned nearly three-fifths of the nation's constitutional history.

RESPONSE BRIEF

Justice Holmes responded with characteristic brevity. He said:

"In this symposium, my part is only to sit in silence."

He added that to express one's feelings as the end nears is too intimate a task for him.

Justice Holmes has privately repelled all suggestions of resignation from the Supreme Court while he is in health to continue to hold up his share of the court's work. He indicated that he has no thought of resigning. He said:

"The race is over but the work is never done while the power to work remains."

QUOTES LATIN POET

He closed with a quotation from an old Latin poet:

"Death plucks my ear and says: 'I live, I am coming.'"

Chief Justice Hughes said:

"Mr. Justice Holmes—old! He is the exemplar and prophet of the young, the apostle of the latest generation, the master equally of block letter learning and the most recent thought, with the keen eye to discern folly whether of the modern or ancient.

"We honor him, but what is more, we love him."

Thousands of messages were received at the Holmes residence from all parts of the world.

FEAR TOLL MAY REACH 1,000

Aid Rushed to Stricken Zones in Jugoslavia and Bulgaria; Terror Spreads

Universal Service.

USKUP, Jugoslavia, March 9.—Fear that the death toll in the quake-ravaged southern provinces and across the Bulgarian and Grecian frontiers may total between 800 and 1,000 grew here today as feverish preparations were made to rush aid into the stricken zone.

While official estimates of the dead place the total so far counted at 150, reports trickling in over hastily repaired telegraph lines give a sound basis for unofficial estimates of far greater havoc.

Every effort is being made here to speed rescue workers into the quake area, but damaged railroad lines make progress difficult and slow. Final plans for relief work are being held in abeyance pending the arrival of King Alexander, expected momentarily from Belgrade.

150 DEAD COUNTED

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, March 9.—(AP.)—Between 80 and 150 dead were counted today in Eastern Jugoslavia and adjacent Bulgaria, rocked before dawn Saturday and yesterday by severe earthquakes. More than 900 buildings and other structures in Eastern Jugoslavia were demolished, and 500 persons are estimated to have been injured.

Shaken from their beds and panic stricken after Saturday morning's quakes, residents of the borderline country were afraid to go back to their homes until late Saturday. At 4 o'clock Sunday morning they were routed into the open again in their night clothes, screaming and making for woods which afforded some shelter from the bitter weather without the danger of falling masonry.

JAPANESE TOWN ROCKED

TOKIO, March 9.—(AP.)—An earthquake today shook Hakodate, on the Island of Hokkaidi, causing minor damage, but no casualties. Two chimney stacks crashed into the streets and overhead telegraph and telephone wires to various sections of the city were broken and several houses were slightly damaged. The shock was felt slightly here, causing a general temporary alarm.

BISHOP AGAINST CENSORSHIP

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—Bishop William T. Manning was on record today as opposed to stage censorship. Replying to the questionnaire recently sent out by the League of New York Theaters for the conference committee of theaters on censorship, he said:

"We do not want censorship—we know well its defects and dangers—but unless something is done censorship in some form will be forced upon us. What we hope is that the good and decent elements in the theatrical profession will take hold of the situation and deal with it themselves, letting us give them every help it may be in our power to give."

The statement of the bishop was taken by those opposing state censorship of the stage as an indorsement of the newly formed committee of the League of Theaters, Dramatists' Guild and Actors' Equity Association, which propose to censor plays against which complaints are made.

Broker Found Shot To Death in Bed

ST. LOUIS, March 9.—(AP.)—James McCluney, 50, wealthy and socially prominent investment broker, was found shot to death in bed at his Pershing avenue home here. An Army service automatic from which one shot had been fired through the heart was found beside the body. No one heard the shot.

Physicians and police held to a theory of suicide, prompted by illness. McCluney, a partner in McCluney & Co., spent last week in a hospital, but returned home Saturday, apparently on the road to recovery.

GLOBE, Ariz., March 9.—(AP.)—John P. Clum, now 80, who tamed Apaches with Apaches, has returned to the land of memories. He rode out into the San Carlos reservation hills yesterday, looking for Goody-Goody, one of the four Indians who formed the nucleus of his Redman police force in a day when scalps were a proof of valor.

CLEARING SITE OF POSTOFFICE

Twenty men were at work today removing paving blocks from the parking lot site of Pittsburgh's new postoffice building. While a score of employes of the John F. Casey Company, working for the Pennsylvania Railroad, pried the blocks loose and loaded them into trucks, 40 unemployed stood watching them.

Ground-breaking will not start until later this week, according to W. J. Wiseman, secretary-treasurer of Booth & Flinn, Ltd., awarded the government contract for excavation.

U. S. TO CHANGE SOVIET POLICY

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(Universal)—A definite change in the American policy toward Soviet Russia was indicated today when it became known that Secretary of State Stimson is to create a new division in the department to be devoted exclusively to Russian affairs, with an expert in charge with the rank of assistant secretary of state.

It was explained by officials that this does not necessarily mean the early recognition of Russia, but that it does mean that the United States may make some change in the relations, particularly in trade matters, which may eventually lead to the resumption of diplomatic relations.

Secretary of State Stimson is known to be more sympathetic toward Russia than his two predecessors in office, Charles E. Hughes and Frank B. Kellogg, who took the position that Russia could never be recognized until she acknowledged her debt to the United States and made some arrangements to pay it.

SOVIET LEADER ASSAILS U. S.

By EDWARD L. DEUSS

International News Service.

MOSCOW, March 9.—The sixth biennial congress of Soviets, assembling 1,776 elected delegates in the imposing grand opera house built by Czar Nicholas II, swung into action today with a broadside against all capitalistic countries, and particularly the United States.

Opening the congress in the spectacular manner reminiscent of the two conspiracy trials just concluded here, Premier Vyacheslaf Molotoff at once challenged the world on economic prosperity and accused United States Representative Hamilton Fish of leading adventurous Americans in preparing the way for armed foreign intervention in Russia.

Molotoff, who succeeded A. I. Rykoff to the presidency of peoples commissars, which corresponds to the premierships in other countries, emphasized the danger of foreign intervention as the greatest menace shadowing Russia's peace, and warned its people to be ready to face the onslaught.

Two clothing stores, a billiard parlor and several smaller establishments suffered loss. The fire was believed to have started in a small lunch room. A gas explosion added to the damage. Two families occupying second-story apartments barely escaped.

DANCER KILLED IN PLUNGE

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—A pretty ballet dancer from Chicago was killed today when she dropped from the ninth floor of her hotel.

She was identified as Bernice Olowecki, 21, a Russian, who has been living at 621 East Seventy-fifth street, Chicago.

Passersby saw her hanging from the ledge of the hotel which is in the heart of Times Square. She was screaming for help. After some minutes her fingers gave way and she dropped to a two-story extension seven floors below.

Hotel authorities said she had been out of work several weeks. Expensive jewelry was found on her person, and in her room were three trunks of theatrical costumes.

PRIEST SCORES DRY LAW

DETROIT, March 9.—(Universal)—The Eighteenth Amendment as it stands today "forebodes no good," the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, declared last night in concluding an arraignment of prohibition and its effect on the American youth and the home.

In a sermon on the subject "The Slaughter of the Innocents," broadcast from his pulpit over the Columbia radio system, he urged that the nation:

"Either obtain the co-operation of the states in its enforcement or repeal it; either correct it or destroy it; either rewrite it or eliminate it.

"As it stands today upon our statute books it has been the most diabolical influence outside of the actual negation of religion that is destroying the youth of America and the hopes of our future."

16TH WEDDING, THIRD BRIDE

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—William Seabury, vaudeville actor, was honeymooning with his third bride although he had been married 15 times previously. She is Holley Hall, musical comedy actress. They were married in Hoboken two days ago.

After Seabury married Margaret Irving, an actress, in New York, they were married 13 times more—everywhere their paths crossed on the road—Port Chester, New York, Biston, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Indianapolis and Los Angeles. It was great fun.

But when Miss Irving decided Seabury's attentions to other women entitled her to a divorce, she got it.

Seabury's first wife was Billie Shaw, a dancer.

Berlin Fans Rush Chaplin, Police Reserves Called

BERLIN, March 9.—(INS.)—Police reserves were compelled to go into action today to protect Charlie Chaplin, screen idol, from physical violence at the hands of a tremendous mob of fans and curiousity seekers who had gathered at the railway station to greet him on his arrival here.

Fully 2,000 persons were jammed into the railway station and other thousands were packed around all entrances, all hoping to catch a glimpse of the screen actor. Chaplin's appearance in the station was a signal for a general forward rush, and for a time the actor was in danger of being crushed by the mob.

Three husky Berlin policemen hoisted Charlie to their shoulders and, followed in the wake of other police who fought to clear a passage for them, carried Chaplin to a waiting automobile. Chaplin said:

"And I came to Europe for a vacation! Believe me, this continuous round of festivities is more strenuous than the hardest kind of studio work."

Chaplin's journey from the railway station to his hotel was a near riot all the way. Scores of police preceded and flanked his automobile, which was forced to move at snail's pace to avert running over some of the thousands who packed the entire route. Police reserves succeeded in holding the lines fairly open until the car had passed, after which the lines broke and thousands ran in the street after the car, cheering wildly.

Judge and lawyers held a conference. The case continued with 11 jurors.

MANY KILLED IN STORMS

cost of the storm to Chicago alone was $1,250,00.

FOUR LOST ON TUG

Besides the 15 known to have died from the blizzard, four sailors are believed to have perished aboard the fishing tug Palmer in Lake Michigan.

Thousands of unemployed men were put to work to free the traffic lanes and sidewalks of snow. Thirty-five thousand laborers, put to work with picks and shovels succeeded in relieving the virtual isolation of many sections of the metropolitan area and surrounding territories.

Higher temperatures were promised today by weather forecasters, an element which is expected to aid in clearing away the drifts.

SIX STATES HIT

Six states, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan bore the brunt of the blizzard. Hundreds of linemen were required to repair snarled communication and power lines in many sections throughout the area.

Thousands of abandoned automobiles, almost buried in drifts, dotted Illinois, Southern Wisconsin, Iowa and Indiana highways, and farmers gave shelter to their occupants until plows could free the vehicles.

The heavy precipitation was regarded as a boon to the drought-stricken corn belt area. Farmers looked to the heavy blanket of snow to counteract the effects of the protracted drought which had threatened to delay spring crops.

SEABOARD LASHED

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—Lashing the Atlantic seaboard from the Carolinas to the tip of Maine, a snow-laden gale left in its wake today death, injuries and huge property damage.

Starting Saturday night and continuing unabated through most of Sunday, snow and rain centered their fury on New York state and on New England. Seven were killed in New York City in automobile accidents attributable to the storm. Four were killed in an automobile accident at West Haven, Conn., and three at Glens Falls, N. Y. Many were hurt by falling signs, trees and telephone poles. Long stretches of waterfront were gnawed away on Long Island and summer homes were swept out to sea.

The snow in New York City melted as fast as it came. The roof of a Bronx church was torn off, endangering the lives of 200 children. The Jersey meadows were transformed into lakes, through which trains sloshed cautiously. The tide rose almost to the top of the Battery sea wall for the first time in many years.

EUROPE STORM-TORN

LONDON, March 9.—(AP.)—Bitter winter weather, which swept most of Europe over the week-end, closed in on London and Southern England today. With temperatures very low, a high wind drove a heavy snow before it today with indications that it would continue.

Elsewhere in Britain the storm abated, leaving Eastern Scotland deep in the year's worst snow. Some sheep farmers lost half the lamb yield and rabbits and pheasants were destroyed.

MASONIC CLUB TO GIVE PLAY

The chairman of the production will be Ben S. Barbour. The play is for members of the Scottish Rite and their wives. This will be the second production by the Delta Players in the Temple this year.

Find Frozen Body Of Girl Suicide

GENESEE, Ill., March 9.—(AP.)—Discovery of the frozen body of Miss Anna Roberts, 20, in the garden at the rear of her home, revealed today the story of how the girl had gone out into last Saturday night's blizzard to lie down to die, after she had removed all of her clothing.

A coroner's judy investigating her death found that she had killed herself in order to atone for some imaginary sin. Her father, Earl Roberts, alarmed at her absence, found the body. Believing she might be revived he summoned Dr. J. H. Murphy, but the physician's car became stalled in snow drifts.

Third Alleged 'Jake' Victim Succumbs

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—(AP.) Robert Stevens, 49, died at General Hospital yesterday, allegedly from poisoning as a result of drinking unwholesome jamaica ginger extract.

The death was the third authorities ascribed to the extract here. A total of 170 other persons have been partly paralyzed.

Ferry Makes Port, Another Overdue

MILWAUKEE, March 9.—(AP.)—The Grank Trunk car ferry, City of Milwaukee, docked here today after a rough voyage from Grand Haven, Mich.

The Madison, another ferry, which left here yesterday for Grand Haven, was unreported, but at the local office it was said there was no particular concern for her safety.

MAYVIEW GETS COSTLY LOTS OF CEREALS

City Purchases Individual Packages for Doctors, Nurses, Special Patients

Large orders for individual packages of cereal such as are often found at the breakfast tables in hotels or railroad dining cars were purchased in October through the Department of Supplies for the city home and hospital at Mayview.

Dealers in groceries say that this is the most costly way to purchase cereals. The boxes are expensive and the printing and packing must be paid for, so that those who wish breakfast food served in this style must have well-lined pocket books.

NOTHING TOO GOOD

Nothing is too good to go to Mayview however, according to the policy which has poured shipment after shipment of canned goods of the highest quality into the warehouse of that institution. Cereals are purchased in bulk for the 3,400 inmates at Mayview, but individual cereals were bought either for special patients or for doctors, nurses and persons in charge.

An order to the Marcus Company, Inc., was filled with 5,000 one-ounce packages of cornflakes at $94, 2,500 packages of rice krispies costing $47, 5,000 1¼-ounce packages of all-bran listed at $45. An additional order for 50 cases of small individual packages of whole wheat biscuit went to the F. W. Schuster Company at a total cost of $72.50.

The Marcus Company was low bidder on the items which it received. This company furnishes large quantities of eggs, butter, groceries, tobacco and other supplies to Mayview.

BID OPENED LATE

The records show that the Marcus Company's bid was opened October 23, 1930, three days after their competitors. A letter attached to the bid showed that the price of breakfast food was reduced by a large manufacturer on the eve of the bidding and the Marcus Company was able to pass this advantage on to the city by canceling their previous bid. The large manufacturer did not make the shredded wheat so that business went to the Schuster Company on their original bid.

The Marcus Company's success in doing a large volume of business with the city Department of Supplies has been noted by many other jobbers. The company is a consistent low bidder.

The firm's ability to quote bottom prices is ascribed in some quarters to the genius of Sam Adler, well known figure in the butter and egg business, who in 1929 handled a large portion of the city's egg trade.

Adler was reported to have a sales connection with the Marcus Company, but this has been denied at the office of that concern. An inquiry by telephone revealed that while Mr. Adler has no direct connection with the company, he is frequently to be found there.

Rare Disease Kills Wife of Educator

EVANSTON, Ill., March 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Nancy Hatton, 51, died last night in a hospital from a rare disease which destroys the white corpuscles of the blood. Mrs. Hatton, who was the wife of Prof. A. R. Hatton, head of the political science department of Northwestern University, had been ill several weeks. Prof. Hatton, a colleague and four students from his classes, gave blood for transfusions.

The infection resulted from an attack of trench mouth.

Council Stands Pat Opposing Quiz; Wider Probe Forecast

ered in the Department of Supplies might be in order.

Council also authorized payment of $813 for five chandeliers bought for Mayor Kline's office without the advertisements which the law specifies should be made on all purchases over $500. The payment of $4,294.27 to Max Parker for repairs to Central Police Station, another contract not advertised, also was authorized. On both of these authorizations, Councilmen Charles Anderson and Robert J. Garland voted against payment.

Mrs. Smith, chairman of the League of Women Voters' committee which with the Citizens' Committee is directing the independent audit of the department, said that over the week-end she received telephone calls dealing with conditions in many city departments.

Names of all informants are being held confidential, Mrs. Smith said. Complaints involving the Department of Supplies will be turned over to the independent auditors for check, and the others will be handled by the league committee.

This committee met today in the league headquarters to discuss the information received. Members of the committee are Mrs. Smith, Mrs. John O. Miller, Mrs. Frank Bond, Mrs. R. P. Keenov, Mrs. E. H. Demmler, Mrs. A. H. Bowman and Miss Eleanor Kelly. They too, attended the Council meeting.

League representatives later were to meet with the executive committee of the Citizens' Committee to discuss further the audit Main & Co. is to begin tomorrow.

INDORSE BATTLE

The League's battle has been indorsed by the Richard W. Martin organization, of the Thirty-first Ward, and the Monday Literary Club, it was reported today.

Mayor Charles H. Kline and Controller Kerr were to report to Council on their individual investigations of charges made by John D. Houston. A letter from Kerr describing proposed changes in the Department of Supplies, tabled last week in finance committee, also was to come up today.

Among other topics for Council's consideration today was the resolution for payment of $4,294.27 to Max Parker, contractor, for remodeling part of Central Police Station. It is alleged no bids were asked for this work. The resolution for payment already has been affirmed in committee and today comes up for final passage.

Council also is to act finally on the resolution for payment of $813 for chandeliers in the office of Mayor Kline, bought and installed without bids being taken. This also has been approved in committee session.

Leslie M. Johnston, chairman of the Citizens' Committee, today said results achieved are gratifying.

Johnston, Joseph Dilworth, Francis S. Guthrie and William R. Scott compose the executive committee of citizens working with the League of Women Voters in directing the audit. Johnston has pledged full publicity for every important development in the audit.

When the audit of the citizens' organization begins tomorrow two representaties of the district attorney will be present. They will be Asistant District Attorney William H. Colvin and County Detective David Drexler. If violations of law are shown by the auditors, the district attorney will prosecute on his own initiative, he has announced.

Mr. Park held a conference today with Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt, Colvin and County Detective Drexler, in an effort to determine a method of procedure. Park stated, after the conference, that his office would co-operate with the auditors working on the books of the department to the fullest extent, He said.

3 HELD IN AUTO THEFT QUIZ

Three men arrested yesterday in connection with the theft of an automobile were held over for further investigation by Magistrate Ray Schneider in North Side Police Court this morning. They are: Adam Zoller, 38, and Robert Gilespie, 36, both of 309 West Lacock street, and James Laly, 32, of 15 Isabella street.

Police said the men were arrested after Edward Charters, owner of a garage at 914 West Diamond street, learned that an automobile brought to his place for repairs by the trio on March 3 was stolen. The machine was unclaimed.

J. A. Lawson, of 1604 Beaver avenue, Monaca, owner of the machine, was beaten and robbed of his money and the auto at Sandusky and Robinson streets, March 1, it was reported.

MUSIC
Pittsburgh Symphony Society
SYRIA MOSQUE

PROGRAM
Prelude, "Die Meistersinger" .... Wagner
Symphony No. 2, D major, Op. 73 .... Brahms
Concerto in A minor, for Piano and Orchestra, Op. 16 .... Grieg
Percy Grainger.
Pavane .... Ravel
Danse Tarantella .... Martucci

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society offered an excellent program for its fourth concert l[illegible] night in Syria Mosque, presnting Percy Grainger as piano soloist, and our new assistant conductor Modarelli in his first public appearance here.

Mr. Lissfelt

Modarelli did not shirk, and chose the finest possible overture and symphony for his test pieces. Neither the Meistersinger prelude nor a symphony of Brahms play themselves, and so what we heard was Modarelli's music. This young man has a good beat, and has learned his score well. He [illegible] nothing original, but showed that he has listened to tradition and is playing safe. He did much with his woodwinds and made the strings sing, but the tempo at all times might have been hastened to the advantage of the ensemble. Sometimes during the Brahms there were anxious moments, places where Brahms himself was treading on this ice and where the skill of the conductor alone can make the orchestra sing.

The orchestra played a good accompaniment for the Grieg Concerto, but Grainger's tone, hard and inflexible as steel, revealed little of the charm of this work. His rhythms are just as vigorous as when he came to us years ago, the young Viking, but he gave us nothing last night that might tell us that his piano playing has improved at all. The audience was intrigued by his playing and demanded several encores, Grainger's own arrangements of an old English hunting song, his Country Gardens and the Brahms' Lullaby.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Choose a Spring Coat
—By These Guides

The true guides are in the Horne stocks of women's and misses' coats, which are backed by the most valuable asset in the world—KNOWLEDGE . . . Knowledge of what is what in fashion, knowledge of what is the real essence of good taste, and knowledge of how far a woman has a right to expect her money to go this spring in buying value.

What to look for in new coats is partially told by the accompanying sketches. But what to expect in new fabrics, in colors that vibrate spring, in the heavenly texture of furs, and in tailoring which makes the new coats do wonderful things to figures—those are to be discovered only by seeing our vast collection.

Women's and Small Women's Dress Coats—$39.50 to $195.

Misses' Dress Coats—$25 to $125.

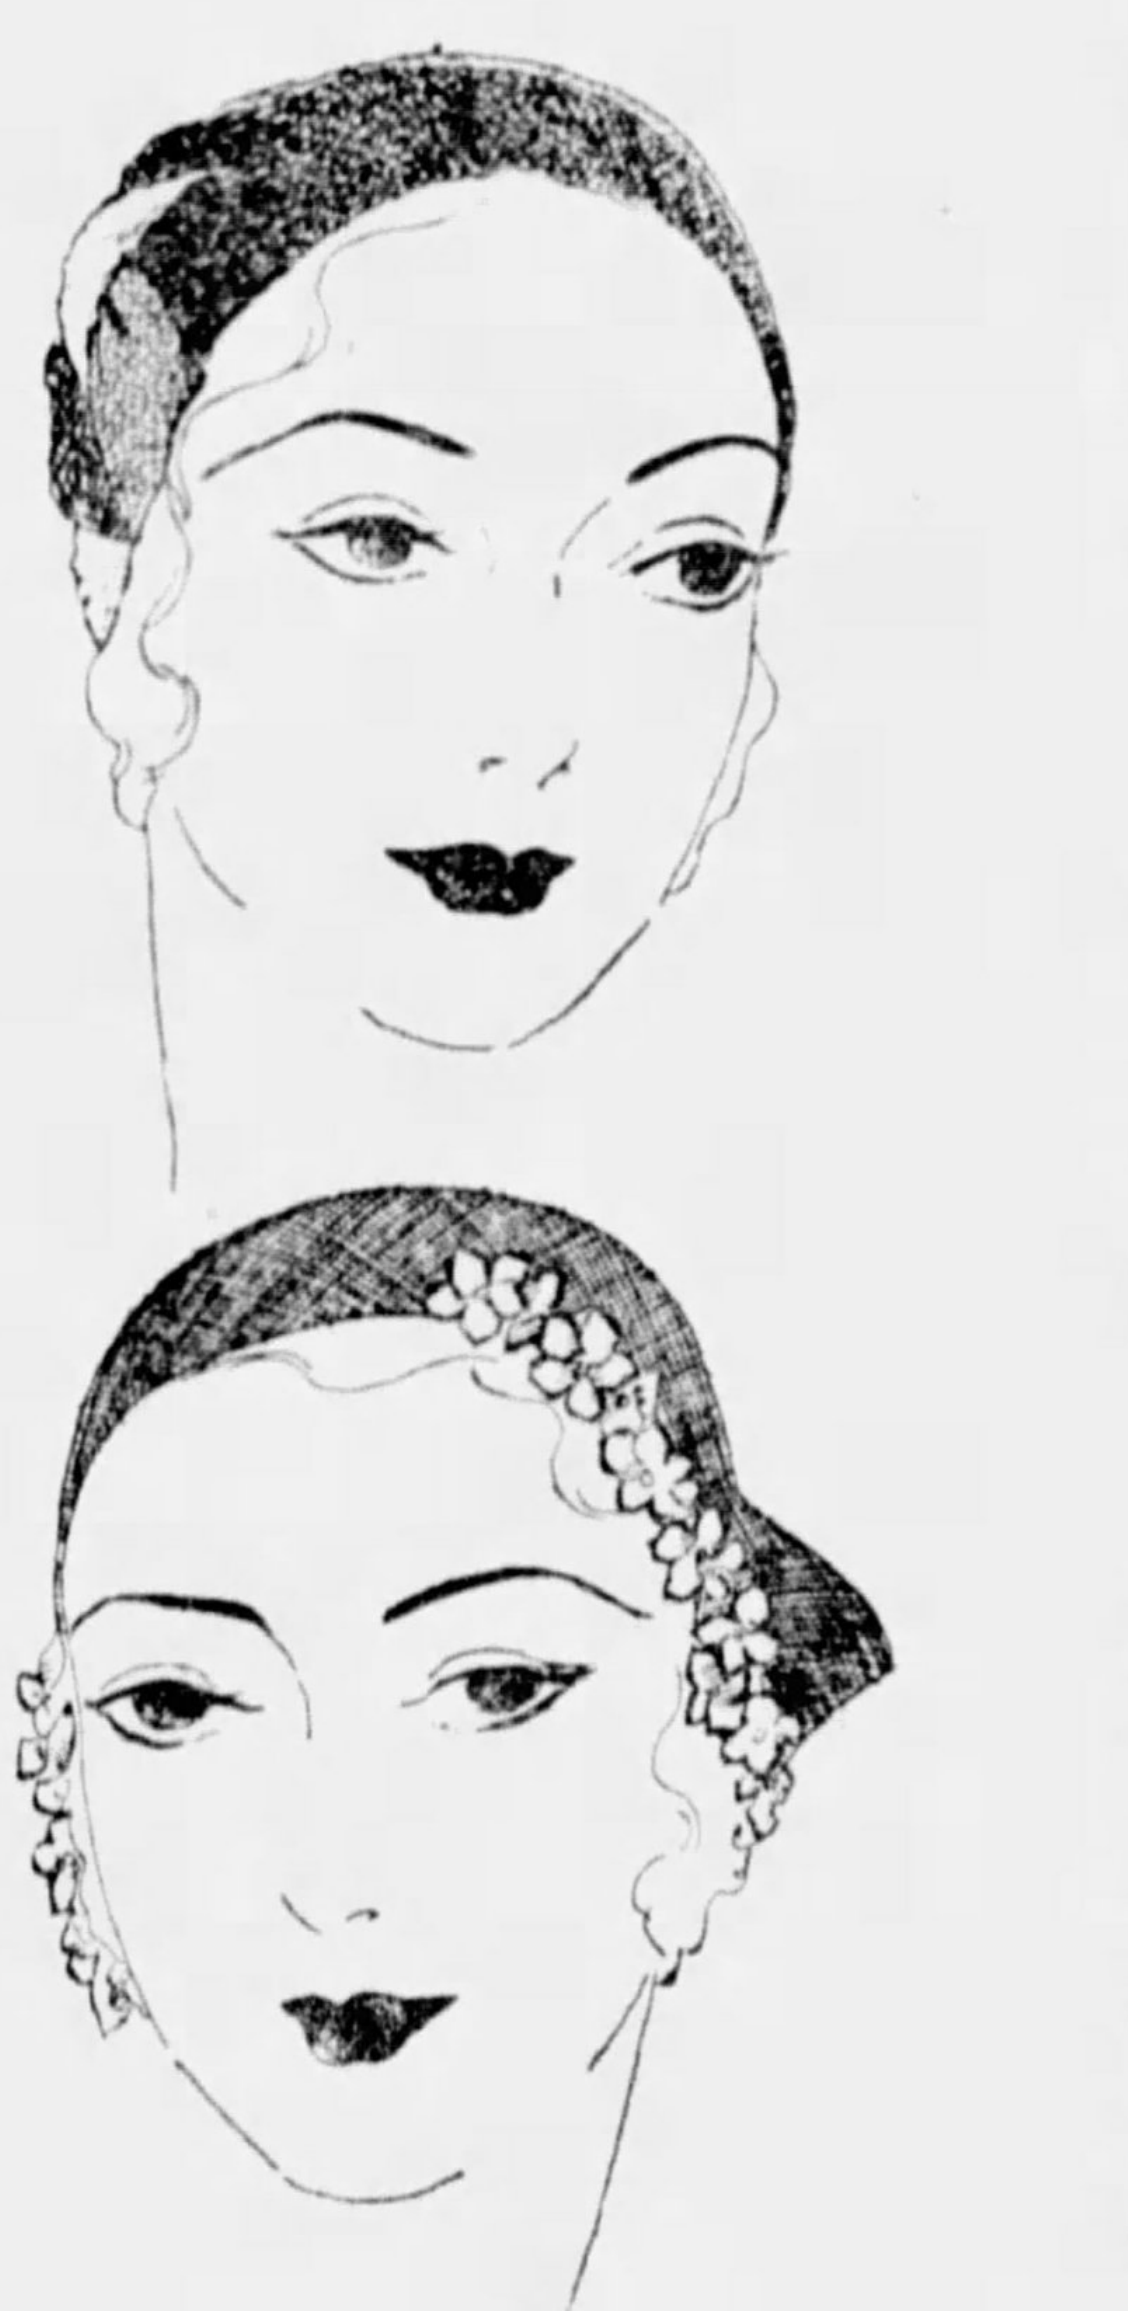
New Ideas In Costume Hats



Costume hats?—yes, hats which will stamp one's street attire as being topped off perfectly from the standpoint of texture and color. It's time right now to be thinking about such hats, and Horne's is the place to find the new and unusual.

Knitted Straws

for example, like the tri-color one pictured which comes in brown-beige-and-coral. Others in black-and-turquoise, black-and-white, two shades of green, and in gray and other solid colors.

Flower-Trimmed Straws

done in the restrained manner of the hat at the left (of navy blue baku with white kid flowers), or less expensive ones with gardenia trimming.

There are beautiful costume hats priced up to $25, with the range starting at $7.50.

Costume Frocks
With Lined Wool Coats
$39.50

Can't decide on a street and shopping outfit for spring? Well, let's try this—a costume consisting of a printed silk frock with long sleeves, and a full-length coat of lightweight wool, lined with the print of the frock. Doesn't it sound sensible?

You may have it in black or navy blue, and your choice of harmonizing prints. The Women's Finer Dress Section offers a collection in sizes 34 to 44, and this price is wonderfully reasonable for them.

EDISON GUEST OF FIRESTONE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 9.—(AP.)—Two old cronies enjoyed Sunday together—Thomas Edison, 84-year-old inventive genius, and Harvey S. Firestone, Sr., tire manufacturer, spent a quiet day during the former's annual visit to the Firestone estate here.

Henry Ford, third member of the famous group, was absent, although he was here Saturday prior to the arrival from Fort Myers of Edison and his party.

The day was divided between church attendance and a long ride to Royal Palm Park south of Miami.

Shark Net Shields Girl Swimming Bay

SYDNEY, Australia, March 9.—(AP.)—Protected from man-eating sharks by a steel net 30 by 15 feet and towed 40 yards behind a launch, Lily Copplestone, a New Zealand girl, swam shark-infested Neutral Bay in three hours and six minutes. The distance is seven miles, but Lily swam much more, since the net was constantly swung from its course by the current.

Stanford Receives Gift of $2,500,000

We will just have enough money left out of our income tax to join the caviar boycott against the Soviet.

That Democratic rally in Washington is over. It lasted from almost the time it started.

It proves that the big issues of the 1932 scramble will be prohibition, overproduction and Muscle Shoals.

That's an interlocking directorate. Muscle Shoals is in the Tennessee River somewhere near a 30-day option.

Prohibition is suffering from overproduction. And we suspect that all three of them are in the Tennessee River subject to referendum without recall.

You can stir up the letters in alphabetical soup and make it spell anything you want. And when you reach that stage of compulsory education you are qualified to understand politics.

The boys just keep stirring until the result agrees with the misinformation. We admit that the study of national politics is too deep for our saucer. Light indulgence is as harmless as teasing the cuckoo in a Swiss clock.

But when you become the chairman of the finance committee you are taking a bath in red ink.

You become the filling station for many a tin-can political tourist. And when all the money is gone they ask you what became of it. Not knowing, you cannot say.

The Republicans seem to have their organization financed better than the Democrats. When a partisan asks for 10 they give him five and when he is so weakened that he asks for two they give him nothing.

It's a process of elimination. We hope the Democrats solve their problems quickly because we would like to see a contest this next election. Competition is healthy even when one of the competitors never recovers.

There are still a brace of years to go until March 4, 1933, that glorious day when the victor takes the oath of office, swears to love, honor and veto and gets nervous when his vice president wins an egg-rolling contest on the White House lawn.

It's all politics. And when you've said that you have said everything and nothing. Hoping you are the same, we remain, yours, The Finance Committee.

Alma Saw Woman Dead By Suicide, Lacked Nerve To End Own Suffering

By ALMA RUBENS

CHAPTER XXXIII.

I must have screamed myself into a stupor of exhaustion.

For, while I lay in a kind of coma, someone clutched me roughly by the shoulder.

I opened my heavy eyes and saw two attendants, their starched uniforms rustling as they touched me.

One of the attendants spoke. Her voice was a kind of peculiar whine.

"Get up," she said, "we are taking you to the doctor, get up."

The one who spoke did not raise her voice, but there was something more terrifying in that whining voice of hers than there could have been in any shout.

Miss Rubens

I tried to tell them that I was terribly ill. I begged them to bring the doctor to see me.

"'That's where you're going now," said the attendant, "to the doctor. Don't have the nerve to think he can come to you."

I tried to follow them, but I fell on my knees, they half carried, half dragged me to the doctor's office.

The physician was standing with his back to the door when I entered, he was a tall, fine-looking man, with curly iron-gray hair.

I took heart of grace, when I saw him, he looked like a human being, but he turned out to be just an asylum doctor, after all, he was not unkind, he was simply routine—that's all.

He asked me the usual questions, and put me through the usual routine.

'Snow Bird'

"What is this?" was his final question.

He thrust a bottle of camphor under my nose. I was weak and swaying on my feet.

"Camphor," I managed to whisper.

"O. K.," said the doctor. "No signs of insanity, she's a snow bird, lock her up."

The attendants dragged me back and locked me up.

Not until the next morning did they bring me anything to eat.

My breakfast was white Mexican beans, swimming in the grease of fat pork that was none too well conditioned.

Gray was the color at Patton. The walls were supposed to be white-washed but they were gray. Gray walls, gray furnishings, gray clothes, gray food—that's Patton.

At least once a day we had beans, sometimes they'd be for breakfast, sometimes at one or the other two meals.

Once in a while the diet was varied.

"We'd get a grayish bowl, half full of grayish blue milk, some grayish corn meal porridge and a cup of something gray and thick they called coffee.

There was no provision for even a sponge bath in my cell. I was not supposed to wash myself.

On the floor below me, right under my cell, another new arrival was locked; suffering as I was, without my drug, her condition must have been a thousand times worse. I never saw her, but day and night I heard her, night and day, she moaned with every breath.

Attendant Kind

One of my night attendants was fairly kind. I struck up an acquaintance with her, and she really wasn't a bad sort at heart, though she was in deadly fear of being caught hob-nobbing with the patients, something that was strictly forbidden.

She told me that the poor woman in the cell below had lost her mind, when she lost her husband, two sons, and a daughter, in rapid succession.

On top of that she was in the last stages of cancer of the throat.

She died alone on the floor. Absolutely alone, poor thing. How sweet death must have seemed to her.

A few nights after the woman below me died alone in her agony, I was pacing up and down my cell, trying to tire myself out so that I could sleep.

Something made me stop in front of the door of my cell, stretch on tip toe and pull my eyes level with the bars. The corridor outside was dimly lit, directly across the way was another cell, with the outer block door partly open. Through the cell door on through the room I could see a naked woman hanging by a twisted sheet, tied high to the bars of the window.

Recognized Death

Not a move, just hanging there. I don't know how I knew. I had never seen a hanged person before, but I did know that she was dead, and I was glad she had escaped.

All the rest of the night I tried to screw up my courage to follow her example.

But somehow I couldn't do it—I don't know why, but I couldn't.

I heard and saw things that will not bear the telling, but I will confine myself to exactly what happened to me—myself.

One morning when I began to get a little better my kindly night nurse told me that I would soon have to go to work, and I was delighted. I knew it would be hard work, but I was eager to begin.

I soon had my wish.

(Tomorrow Alma Rubens describes hardships she underwent at Patton, her plans for escape.)

Burglars Saw Hole In Floor, Rob Stand

DOVER, O., March 9. — Burglars, who on February 27, stole $2 from Maurice Kurtz's confectionery stand on the Ohio Canal bank by breaking a lock, yesterday stole the entire stock after sawing out a section of the floor from underneath to gain entrance. Loot is valued at $50.

Real Estate

The Dougherty-McKee Company, South Hills brokers, has sold for Henry Mahr, builder, a large brick home in Oakridge Manor for $19,500. Mahr purchased from the same brokers two building lots in the same section on which he will erect two homes.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM BREVITIES; LOCAL AMUSEMENT NOTES

Young Stage Actor Cast In Norma Shearer's New Picture

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, March 9.

Hollywood's grape-vine reports that Clark Gable, young stage actor, is worth watching.

After one picture with Joan Crawford, he has been signed to play "Ace" Wolfgang, the gambler, one of the two masculine leads in Norma Shearer's next film, "A Free Soul."

This story is taken from Adela Rogers Hyland's outstanding novel to date. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has named Clarence Brown as director, and has engaged Leslie Howard, Lionel Barrymore and Gabel to support Norma Shearer.

Norma Shearer

Gable is a heavy. He came out here to take the role of "Killer" Mears in the coast production of "The Last Mile." His first picture was "Dance Fools Dance." One of Hollywood's feminine stars described Gable to me as the most menacing man she had ever met. But he is attractive, she added.

Gable made his first New York stage hit in Sophie Treadwell's "Macnimal" based upon the Snyder-Gray murder case. He was also seen there in the mystery melodrama "Hawk Island."

LATEST GOSSIP

Mary Nolan has quietly disappeared from Hollywood and Philadelphia reports she is to be mistress of ceremonies at the R. K. O. Theater. . . . Florence Eldridge (Mrs. Frederic March) was brought to the coast with a four weeks' guarantee to play in "Rebound" with Ina Claire. Before she arrived, however, the studio decided to replace her with Myrna Loy. Now Miss Eldridge is collecting her salary for the four weeks, but the studio won't let her go back to New York. . . . Herman Mankiewicz, who has risen to the rank of supervisor, will appear for one night as the New York playwright in the local production of "Once in a Lifetime." His friends, led by Carey Wilson, are planning an interesting reception. . . . Hollywood is acutely tennis-conscious. Half the film colony plans to attend William Tilden's exhibition match here. Following the match many will go to the Biltmore for the Mayfair ball. . . . Each of the Marx brothers brought his personal gagman from the East. There will be the four comedians, their four gagmen, two Paramount writers and a supervisor sitting in on story conferences.

Ina Claire was appearing in a silent version of "Polly With a Past."

Jack Coogan Sr. was acting in a two-reel comedy with Al St. John.

Ina Claire

Douglas Fairbanks was appearing in modern dress in "The Nut."

"The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" had just opened in Los Angeles. One of the screen's immortal performances was greeted by a local critic:

"Valentino, a good-looking youth, impresses with his natural acting and spontaneity of characterization."

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Echoes of old Heidelberg will ring in the Alvin tonight, when "The Student Prince" will be presented for the umpty-umpth time. For the benefit of those who don't hear so well at night there will be Wednesday and Saturday afternoon shows.

"Lysistrata," by Aristophanes, plus Gilbert Seldes, former Pittsburgh reporter, with Mr. and Mrs. Coburn, will Alvin it next week. The Greeks laughed at it 2342 years ago and New York did the same this season. Though the play is unusual, matinees will be as usual.

We still have the shivery music that used to herald the villain's approach in the old ten-twent-thirt melodrama. The dif' is that nowadays it is played for the hula dancer's hip wriggling.

* * *

Next week's bill in the Pitt will be "Thin Ice" in which Francis X. Bushman will be the boss iceman. Those who know their movie history don't have to be told that Francis X. once was the greatest agitator of the feminine heart in the fillums, but we tell it anyway.

HARRIS MOVIE MAKES THE SEA SAFE FOR DEMOCRACY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Seas Beneath," melodrama of submarine warfare, is the new picture in the Harris. The story concerns an American "mystery ship" that is sent out to destroy a dangerous German U-boat.

George O'Brien is in command of the "mystery ship." He faces death with the nonchalance of a Cook tourist and he treats his crew with the paternal interest of a scoutmaster. However, Mr. O'Brien is actor enough to attract attention even if he isn't very impressive.

His scoutmaster attitude is due, perhaps, to the sailors that have been assigned to him. Most of them are mere boys. You might imagine that for such an important mission he would be given a more experienced crew. But, somehow, this isn't the way of governments or movies.

The German angle is brought in okay. The expected Teutonic types are there and the illusion of realism is further enhanced by the use of German dialogue.

The picture gets off to a rather confusing start. But gradually it picks up interest and it does build to a quite exciting climax—a battle between the American "mystery ship," which really is an armed merchant vessel, and the German "sub." We presume we don't need to tell you which is victorious.

There is a touch of romance, aided and abetted by Marion Lessing. As a German fraulein, she is a nice little spy.

The supporting cast is a large one and it includes Walter C. Kelly, known as the Virginia judge; Mona Maris, Warren Hymer, Larry Kent and John Loder.

The picture has some good views of the interior of a submarine and all in all it does pretty well in making the seas safe for democracy.

yet you take me shopping with you every day"

The great Paris designer has turned out another creation. A model of good taste! But good taste is no less desirable in a cigarette. What you taste in Chesterfield is milder and better tobaccos—nothing else—in a blend and "cross-blend" that cannot be copied! Just as there is only one Paris . . . there is only one Chesterfield.

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. AVIATION MELODRAMA WITH VAUDEVILLE AT THE DAVIS

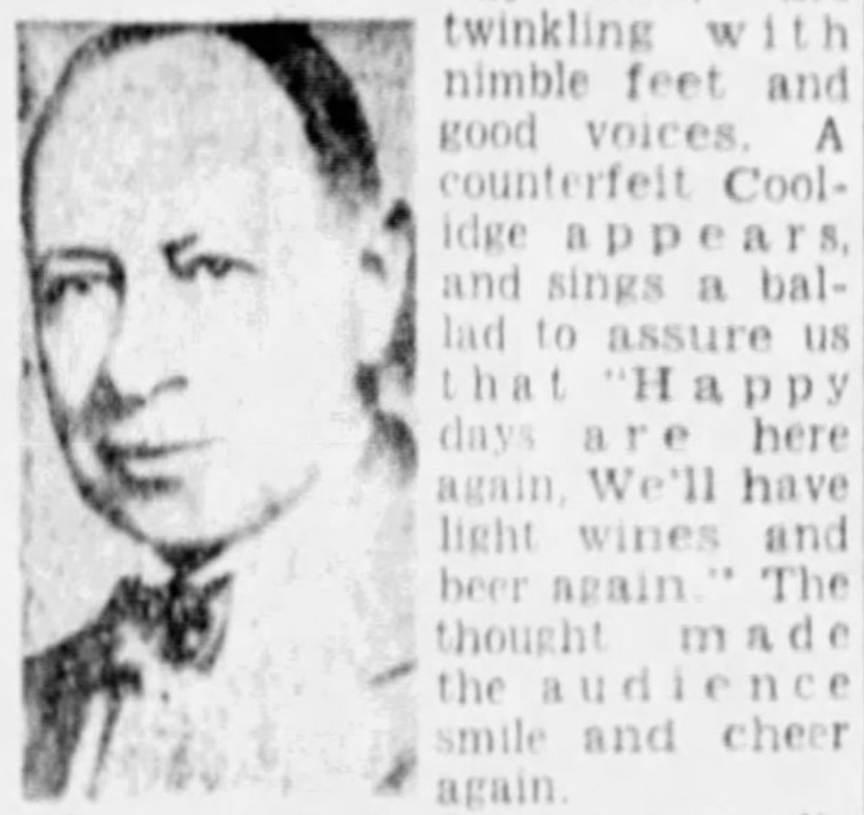
By GEORGE SEIBEL

The most exhilarating moment in the bill at the Davis Theater comes while Gus Edwards' Proteges, six or seven "future Broadway stars," are twinkling with nimble feet and good voices. A counterfeit Coolidge appears, and sings a ballad to assure us that "Happy days are here again. We'll have light wines and beer again." The thought made the audience smile and cheer again.



George Seibel

Two comedians, Burke and Durkin, dispense amusing advice and tell good stories. "If you don't want your feet to go to sleep, don't let them turn in." And they have a "Prosperity" patter song that is a rich parody of our Sunny Jim financiers.

MUSIC A LA MODE

Music is turned into mirth during the act of Rogers and Donnelly. A cello collapses like an overstuffed blimp and a harp is suddenly transformed into a Ford.

Szeta and Anis have a graceful adagio dance in the course of which he whirls her by one slender ankle, clipped between his chin and shoulder.

Daredevil work also distinguishes the Six De Cardos, who turn dangerous somersaults into barrels from seesaws and pyramids of tables.

"BODY AND SOUL"

The talking picture, which is called "Body and Soul" for no reason visible with a spyglass, starts out with a confused series of scenes among the aviators in France and ends as a spy melodrama in London.

Charles Farrell is a stainless Parsifal sort of hero, while Elissa Landi is the passionate heroine. It is hard to understand, and harder to believe, and we don't blame Myrna Loy for taking poison at the finish.

But it confirms a suspicion we have long entertained, that the war was fought in cabarets and boudoirs.

Blind Freshman Ranks First Of 2,355

ATLANTA, March 9.—(AU.)—C. M. Witcher, a blin freshman in the engineering department in Georgia School of Technology, today led all the 2,355 students at the institution in scholastic standing.

Witcher's name was first of five students posted as making the coveted "A," meaning those whose average in grades was above 90.

Living in total darkness, Witcher has to be led to his classroom. He works out his assignments by a touch system, and uses a portable typewriter.

To take an examination, the instructor reads the questions while Witcher jots them down in his own method, and answers by means of his typewriter.

Despite his handicap, his teachers say, Witcher almost always is first to finish a quiz.

Zasu Pitts to Play In Roach Comedies

Thelma Todd and Zasu Pitts have been placed under long-term contracts by Hal Roach, and will appear in comedies to be released by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer during the season 1931-32. Their first collaborative effort will be called "Let's Go Places," and will go into production very soon.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(But which you lovely people knew all along!)

That Peter Stuyvesant, one of the first New Yorkers, had a wooden leg. Oh, you knew that! Well then, you tell one. Which leg?

That the Yellow Taxicabs are orange-colored!

That among the Indians of the Amazon, the bridegroom must first thrust his arm into a bagful of white ants to prove that he has courage enough to defend a wife.

That the word "macaroni" in "Yankee Doodle" does not refer to the Italian paste. It is an old term for knot.

That the softest whisper travels as fast as the loudest thunder.

That the complete topography of Maine is as little known as many a savage or distant land, there being 3,000 lakes not on the maps.

That sour beer is used for polishing jewelry.

That the Mexican cacao bean was so valuable fifty years ago the population used it as money. One bean was a cent.

That Chinese brides are veiled in red.

That Dartmouth was originally a school for Indians.

That "nickel" means worthless, a derisive term applied by miners who were disappointed in not finding copper, as they expected.

That Robert Louis Stevenson wrote so well because he aped the style of over 20 authors. He said so himself, so, there!

That Aloysius (Trader) Horn never was on the Ivory Coast of Africa, never saw the Congo, never saw Stanley or Livingstone, never rescued a beautiful English girl, and the amount of territory he describes as having traveled would take about 300 years to cover.

That Milton sold the copyright of "Paradise Lost" for $25.

That it is against the law to clip a dog's tail or ears in New York. You have to go to New Jersey.

That Clarence Mackay, head of the Postal Telly, and pappy-in-law of Irving Berlin, uses the steam room almost daily at the Racquet Club, and his favorite tune while in it is Berlin's "What'll I Do?"

That malaria is not a contagious disease.

That a lad describing himself as a reporter on the Brooklyn Eagle applied for such a job at the Eve'g World the day it folded. To which Mr. Barrett, the rag's city editor, said: "And you're a reporter?"

That the film industry's annual payroll is $500,000,000 and that the industry places about 15,000 newspaper ads daily.

That a new melody destined to be a rage will revolutionize ballroom dancing. It is a syncopated waltz!

That there is enough energy in a pound of hard coal to lift a ton weight over a mile high. Say, lissen. If you are going to act like that, remember Bugs Baer: "Believe it, or change the subject!"

That the Smithsonian Institution never would have been founded had Smithson's nephew died leaving an heir.

That the first meetings of the New York Stock Exchange were first held under a buttonwood tree in front of 70 Wall St.

That Maurice Chevalier is said to have once run a restaurant on upper Broadway—and a good one, at that.

That the Bible gives sage warning about mixing your drinks.

That if you traced your ancestors back 56 generations you would have at least 139,235,017,489,534,976. (Go ahead. Have a headache.)

That Bruce Barton writes his copy on a rickety typewriter older than the one that Fannie Hurst uses.

That Los Angeles, which is four times as large as Savannah, only has 21 parks. Savannah has 49 parks. (There's an item.)

That there is a feature dancer in the Hollywood movie studios named Ruby Vallee, and a "legit" actor in N. Y., named Rudy Vallette.

That no man, prince or subject, ever left a wardrobe behind him as did George IV. Some of it is now in local antique shops.

That there once lived a certain Englishman who committed suicide so that he would no longer have to dress or undress himself.

That blood passes through the heart at 7 miles an hour.

That the Play is certainly the Thing. Lily Cahill in "The Tyrant" was second-rate. In "As Husbands Go" she is grand.

That the St. Moritz, New York's newest swanky hotel, calls the Ladies' Rest Room "The Powder Room," if you please.

That Richardson felt unequal to the composition of a letter to a certain very fine lady unless he sat down in full dress.

That it was just declared perfectly all right in New Jersey to call a councilman "a souphead."

That in the post office at Abilene, Texas, there still is a sign on the walls reading: "Food Will Win The War!"

And that Ray Shannon, a vaudevillian, played a honky-tonk the other day, and thought he was doing great when he heard the applause, which turned out to be a woman spanking her brat.

HARRIS PRISON BILLS URGED

Delegates of the local branch of the Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs are planning to visit Harrisburg in behalf of two measures introduced by Senator Frank J. Harris.

Senate Bill No. 227 which is indorsed by the State Probation Association as well as the committee, provides for a mental examination of a person who pleads guilty or is indicted on any charge of murder or manslaughter and on a felony where the person has been a previous offender. The examination would be conducted by the State Department of Welfare to eliminate the employment of experts.

The second bill, which has the backing of the State District Attorneys' Association, would require an investigation and report by a probation officer of the history of the accused person both as to court record and past social conduct where the offense charged is punishable by imprisonment for a minimum of six months or more. The report would be presentable to the court before disposition of the case.

URGE ACCURACY IN RECIPES

Women entering the Sun-Telegraph macaroni-spaghetti contest are reminded to be sure and specify exact quantities in the recipes they enter in the contest. Before any prizes are awarded, the prize-winning dishes will actually be cooked by expert chefs, following the directions given. Also it is very important that the writing is legible and the recipes perfectly clear.

Less than two more weeks remain for housewives to send in their favorite recipes. Every woman has a special style of serving macaroni and spaghetti and already many unusual ways of serving these dishes are listed in the recipes received.

You, no doubt, have a favorite recipe for macaroni or spaghetti and if it pleases your family it may be good enough to win one of the many prizes offered. The rules are simple and all that is necessary is to follow them closely.

Contest Rules

1—Each contestant may submit as many receipes as she wishes, calling for macaroni or spaghetti.
2—A part of the wrapper of a package of any brand must be enclosed with your recipe.
3—Write on one side of the paper only. Be sure your name and address are on each sheet of paper you submit. This is important.
4—Mail recipes to Macaroni Contest Editor, care of the Sun-Telegraph.
5—The contest closes at noon on March 21.
6—The names of the winners will be anounced soon after that date. The prize-winning recipes also will be published.

THE PRIZES

First prize—Twenty dollars in cash and one dozen assorted packages of macaroni products.

Second prize—Ten dollars in cash and six assorted packages of macaroni products.

Winter Epidemics

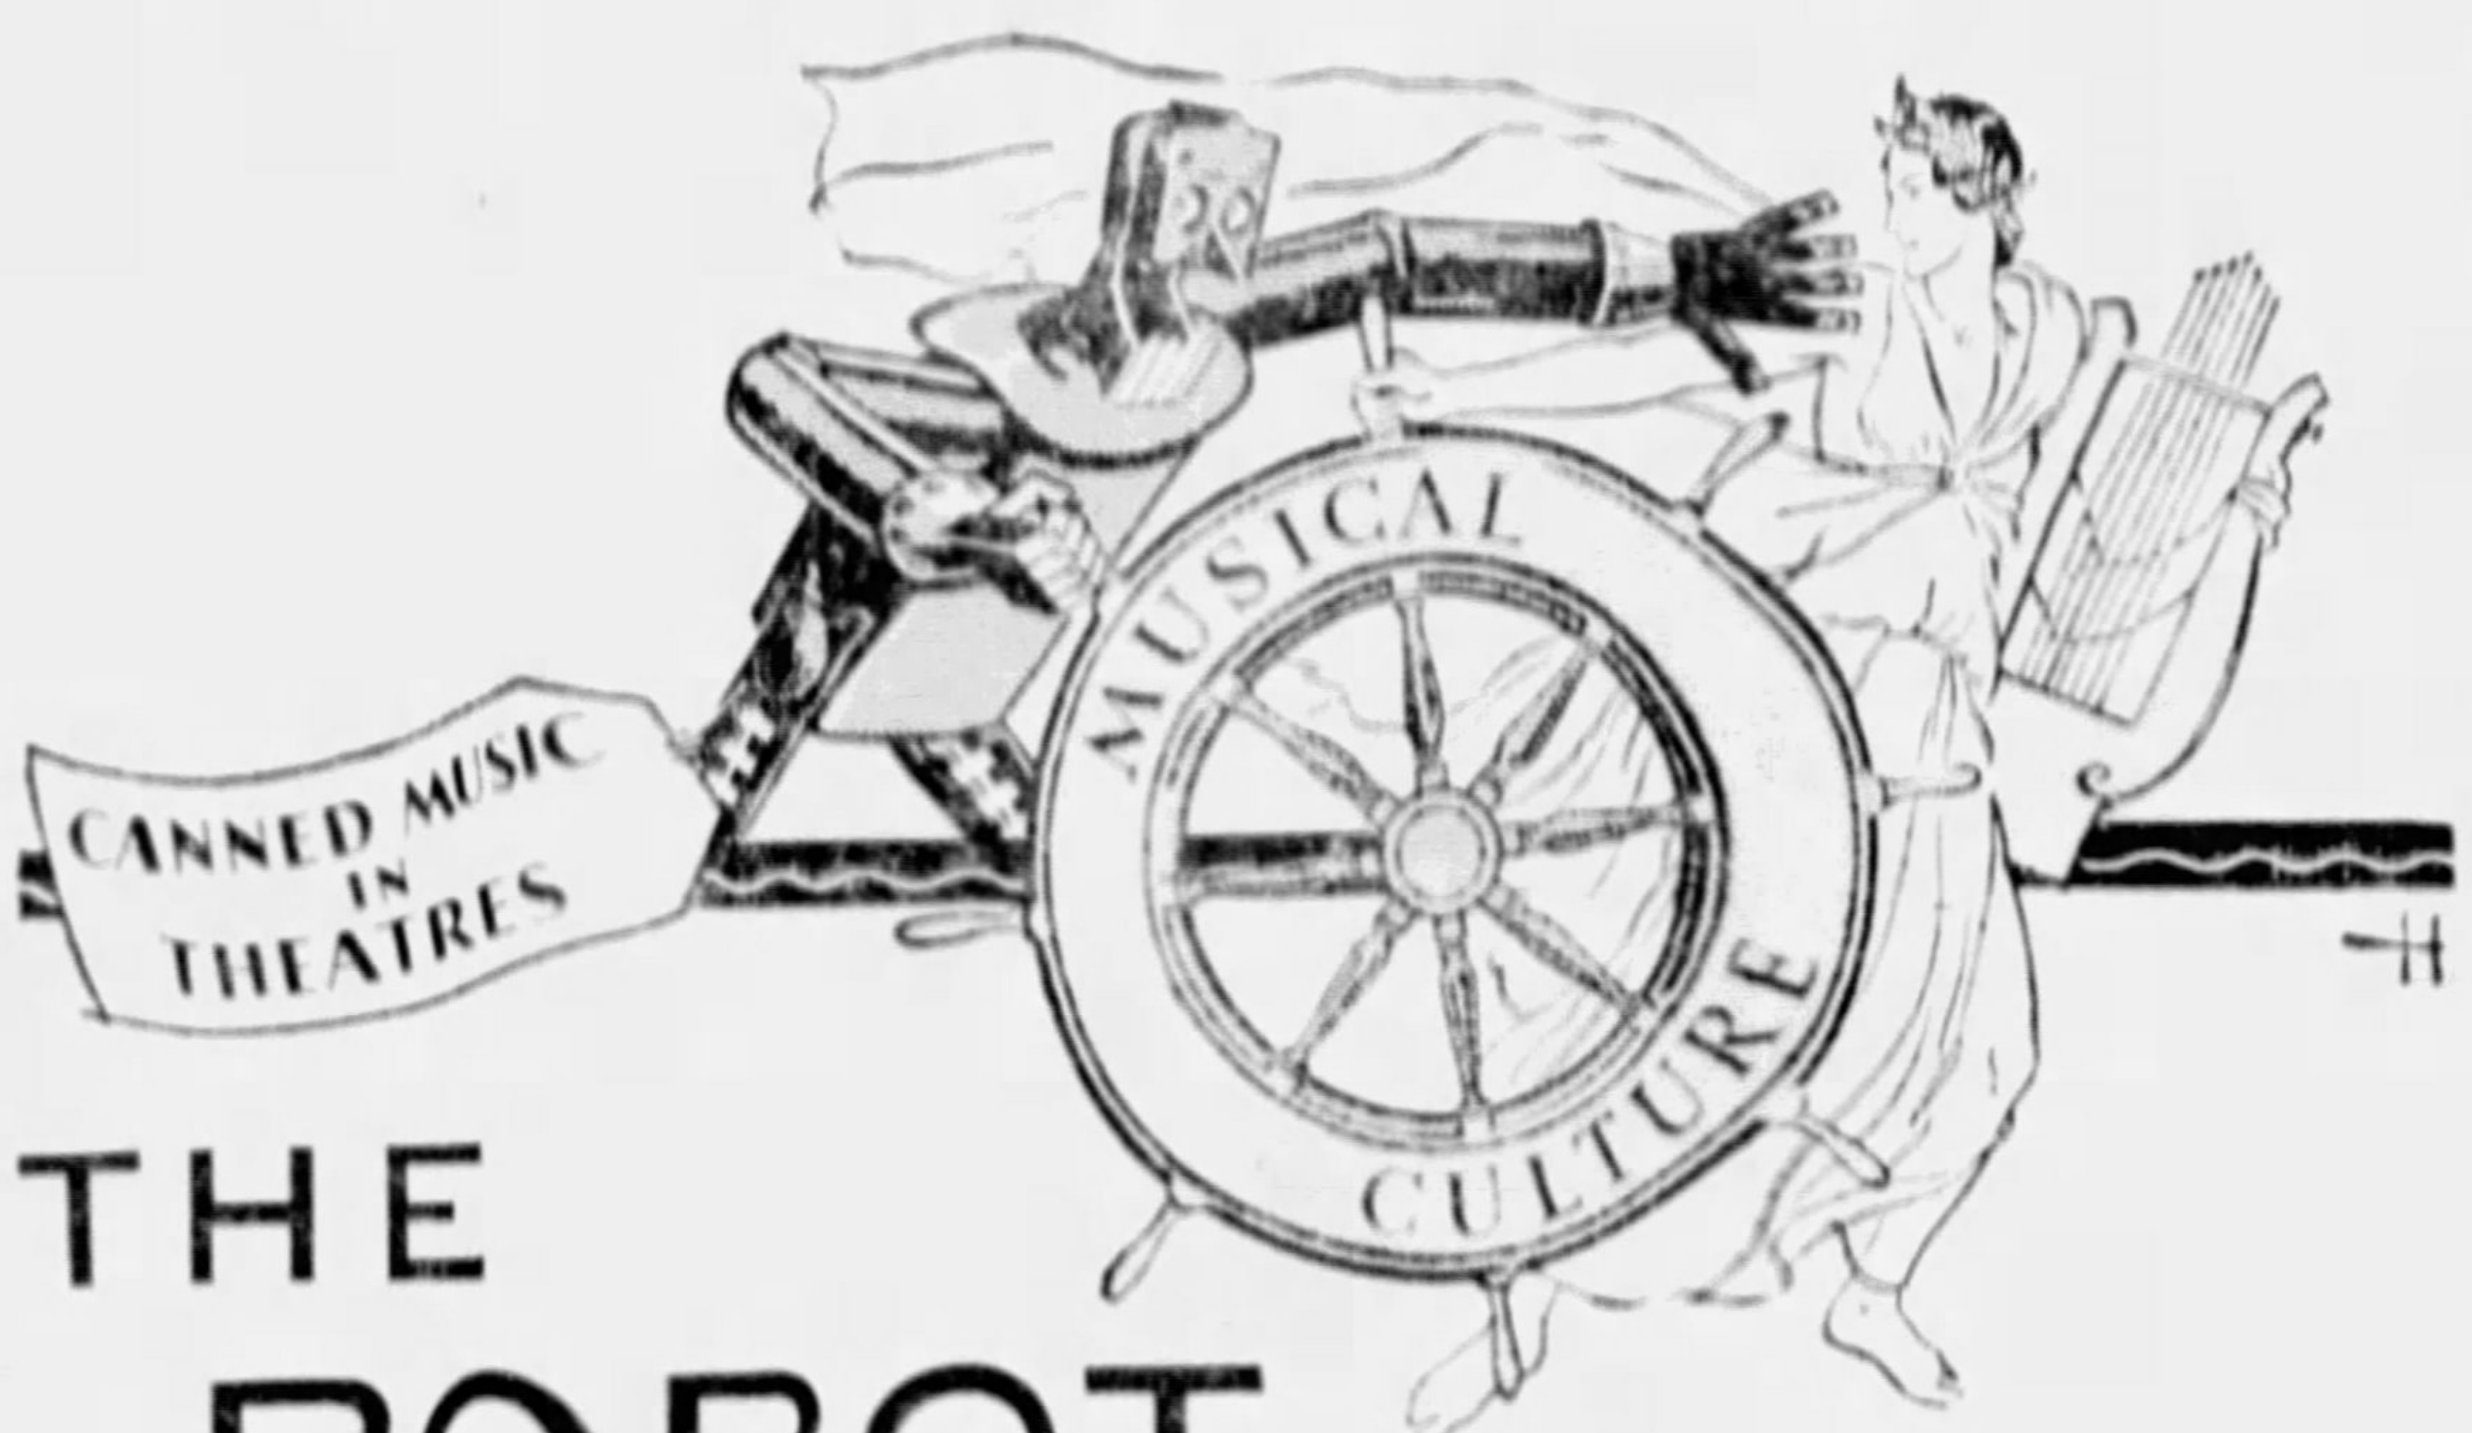
Many Thousands Stricken in Europe and Japan. Now in Eastern United States.

If you have a cold knock it out at once. If not then use every protection against colds. They are dangerous.

Each little cold you have leaves a few germs in your system. You may not be aware of it and then are an easy victim of even the mildest epidemics that occur during the winter months.

Millions are now using the famous Pure Herb Laxative Tonic called Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea to break up colds quickly and strengthen and fortify the system. The rich juices brewed from these barks, roots, leaves and plants, taken steaming hot at bedtime, are instantly effective.

Prevention leaves no regrets and Bulgarian Herb Tea taken by the whole family at least twice a week will keep you in good physical condition. The cost is small and your druggist will honestly recommend Bulgarian Herb Tea.



THE ROBOT AT THE HELM

HERE is a struggle of intense interest to all music lovers.

If the Robot of Canned Music wrests the helm from the Muse, passengers aboard the good ship Musical Culture may well echo the offer of Gonzalo to trade "a thousand furlongs of sea for an acre of ground." Are you content to face a limitless expanse of "sound" without a sign of music?

Monotony in the theatre—corruption of taste—destruction of art. These must inevitably follow substitution of mechanical music for living music.

Millions of Music Defense League members cordially invite you to join them in putting the Robot in his place. Just sign and mail the coupon.

REBUILD YOUR STRENGTH

the new strength that comes with taking S.S.S.

. . . particularly is this IMPORTANT in the spring, after colds, flu and sickness

MANY are weakened by the epidemics of colds and flu in winter and the body therefore has less resistance against further disease attacks.

When your vitality is low—you feel weak—have lost your appetite, the chances are that cold or the flu or some other sickness has destroyed many of your red-blood-cells and your body has not the strength to properly assimilate and use the food you eat.

When your red-blood-cells are reduced to 80% you are not yourself. 60% is dangerous. Your body may be demanding more red-blood-cells. You need these health-building and health-sustaining cells to build and repair tissue and give you strength.

S.S.S. is famed for its ability to increase the red-blood-cells. This is why for over 100 years it has been popular for toning up the system—especially in the spring. And being purely vegetable, S.S.S. has no harmful effects upon the system.

Every spring countless thousands take S.S.S. to build back their red-blood-cells so that they may have that new strength which makes for a keen appetite, firm flesh, a clear skin and greater resistance against infection and disease. You, too, will want to take S.S.S. for this very reason. Select the larger size as it holds double the quantity and represents a price-saving.

WAGNER FLAYS JOB PLAN VETO

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Senator Robert F. Wagner, supplementing his previous comment of President Hoover's veto of his unemployment plan, said:

"The President has failed every man who is out pounding the pavements in search of work."

He condemned President Hoover's objections to the plan and declared the President alone opposed the measure which "for three years all labor organizations in the country have been enthusiastically and zealously advocating." He said the bill was along lines advocated by Mr. Hoover in 1921, declaring:

"The theme of President Hoover's veto is to be found in his words: 'There is therefore ample time' to reconsider the whole question.

"The signing of the bill would have brought into service a bigger, better and more amply financed organization for both the wage earner and employer. The President has made that impossible."

Faster surer relief from COLDS

To Relieve Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises.

If you have catarrhal deafness or head noises go to any May-Liggetts Drug Store or your druggist, and get 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water, and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

EJECTED MAN DIES, ONE HELD

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 9.—Robert Young, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Young, died in the Washington Hospital of a skull fracture suffered when he was ejected from a restaurant in West Chestnut street.

Young is alleged to have caused a disturbance in the restaurant and to have twice been ejected. Returning again he was thrown into the street, landing on his head. John Schiavo, 23, Irwin, employed in the restaurant, is held under $1,500 bail for an inquest, charged with involuntary manslaughter.

Street Car Rider Stricken Ill, Dies

An unidentified white man, aged about 60, who became ill on a Western avenue street car this morning was pronounced dead at the Allegheny General Hospital upon arrival. Cause of death was undetermined.

The man was dressed in working clothes. Only a street car token was found in the man's possession. He had a glass eye, morgue attendants said.

SLEEPERS' FEET BURNED AS JOKE

A joke that the police failed to appreciate tells the tale of a dice game in a confectionary store at 7239 Tioga street. Ten Negroes and two white men were participating when two, Kelso Rhodes, 40, white, of 7111 Mt. Vernon street, and Joseph Clay, 22, Negro, of 7417 Susquehanna street, both exhausted, removed their shoes and fell asleep.

The sight of the shoeless feet inspired a prankster in the party to set fire to the socks of the sleepers. Police found Rhodes and Clay burned sufficiently to necessitate their removal to the Pittsburgh Hospital. The officers arrested Harry Johnson, 27, Negro, of Kelly street, alleged proprietor of the store, eight Negroes and one white man, and reported confiscating a pair of dice and several dollars.

G. O. P. Committee Reports $3,818 Spent

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)—The Republican National Committee today reported expenditures of $3,818 for the first two months of the year. No contributions were reported in the statement filed with the clerk of the House by Robert V. Fleming, treasurer.

TWO FINED $25 IN GUN CHARGE

Sam Huggins, 24, no home, who said he was a former inmate of the State Hospital for Insane at Dixmont, and Charles Martin, Jr., 22, of 207 West Ohio street, were each fined $25 or 30 days in the workhouse by Magistrate Ray Schneider in North Side Police Court this morning. Charles Martin, Sr., 42, who had been arrested with his son yesterday, was discharged. Huggins was arrested in the Federal Street Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday when he entered the waiting room brandishing a gun. The Martins were arrested after Huggins told police he had traded a diamond ring he had stolen for the gun owned by the younger Martin.

Selfishness and Ignorance Wreck Marriages

Are you soured on marriage?

Sure that there's a sinister something in wedlock that will wreck even the fondest love?

Of course the movies and confession stories seem to prove you're right!

Tum-tum-de-dum. Down the church aisle march the happy pair, wreathed in smiles, orange blossoms and everything. And before a year has passed, chances are they're giving each other the dog eye as they leave the divorce court. Doesn't that prove that "marriage is a failure?"

No, it doesn't!

It merely proves that two humans have made a mess of their partnership by their own cussedness. It also usually proves that they entered that partnership with the most idiotic notions of its responsibilities and possible dividends.

Thought It Different

Marriage didn't wreck their love.

Their own selfishness and ignorance wrecked it.

And those same qualities would have wrecked any business in which they had engaged. If they had tried to raise pigs or sell real estate or pull teeth with that same attitude they would have gone bankrupt just as surely.

But they wouldn't have gone into any other business with that attitude. They would have prepared themselves for any other business, they would have considered it sensibly and accepted its disappointments and hardships in good humor.

But they thought marriage was different—

"They thought marriage was different"—that slogan should be written above nine out of ten divorce decrees.

Here, today, for a glorious change, are two people who didn't think that the job of marriage was different—who tackled it as they would have tackled any other difficult contract and made it work. Romantic? Yes. But romance that is set in the solid cement of common sense.

Up to Man and Wife

World, meet Ted and the Missis. And give them your warmest hand.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"Judging from your column, there seems to be an awful lot of rebellion against general marriage conditions in this generation.

"Two young squirts get married. Then find one delusion after another where they had thought they'd find beds of roses, romance par excellence, and comforts de luxe. And isn't that, after all, their own fault? And, why do they air all their silly troubles to you—expecting sympathy, but getting, instead, just what is coming to them?

"They look upon marriage as the 'nth heaven of delight and they're very much peeved with it when they find that it isn't. And why is it different from what they expect?

"Who makes marriage what it is if it isn't the man and wife? And yet, in spite of that seemingly obvious truth, these slackers who never contribute anything expect everything to be rosy and sweet-smelling and their own shortcomings make it, instead, a hell on earth from which they can escape, as they think, only via the divorce court.

"They kick at this and they kick at that, and they kick at the other thing until no wonder that the poor long-suffering public that must read their sob-stories in print begins to even doubt that happiness exists at all.

"But happiness there is, Sally, and the sooner the slacker in marriage begins to realize it, and reorganizes it in its true garb, the better for him or her.

"My wife and I are extremely happy. We've been married seven years. And we haven't had it easy either! Nope. But we've had steadfast love and consideration for each other as an antidote. And what's trouble, anyway? Just a passing stage of the opposite extreme to placidness—and far more interesting than placidness at that. Too much placidness would drive the average temperamental American bughouse, anyway.

Worked for Happiness

"We, too, found that marriage wasn't as 'ideal' as we expected. A golden shore loomed ahead of us when we got engaged. But the first time our boat neared land, we found the gold was sand. Later, however, we found that even sand is useful stuff. With a little cement, it makes of marriage a solid block of concrete that will last to death's calling.

"We hoped for children. One came—dead. An autopsy proved we should have no more. A dream was shattered. But we didn't let that get us. We planned other interests.

"Home is the place for expression, so we began finding our mediums and fusing each other's joys and hobbies, which gave us mutual joy and happiness. We've had everything our hearts desired, except children. And now that our home seems complete, we are going to adopt one a year for three consecutive years.

"By working for happiness, we've found it. Yet some of our friends merely say we're lucky. Lucky, my eye! We worked and co-operated! Is it 'luck' when a wife goes out and works for five years, putting every cent she earns into furniture? And did she enjoy it? Well, ask her! Is it 'luck' when two people learn tolerance, and how to get along with each other? Huh! And am I happy? Darn tootin'!

"TED."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, March 10

The sidereal operations ruling on this day both by lunar and mutual aspect point to a sudden and unforeseen opportunity for signal success, but attended by many obstacles, impediments and secret sources of undoing. It is enjoined that all manner of subtlety, treachery and misrepresentation be forefended in making of contracts of agreements.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of important opportunity or adventure but attended by subtlety, treachery and fraud, unless keen wit and wisdom be drawn on to offset the secret and sinister. Make all agreements with unusual precaution as to loopholes for fraud and secret enmity.

A child born on this day should be skillful, inventive and enterprising, but its mental outlook may be advanced, utopian or radical. Its personal popularity or friendships may be saving factors in its fortunes and fame.

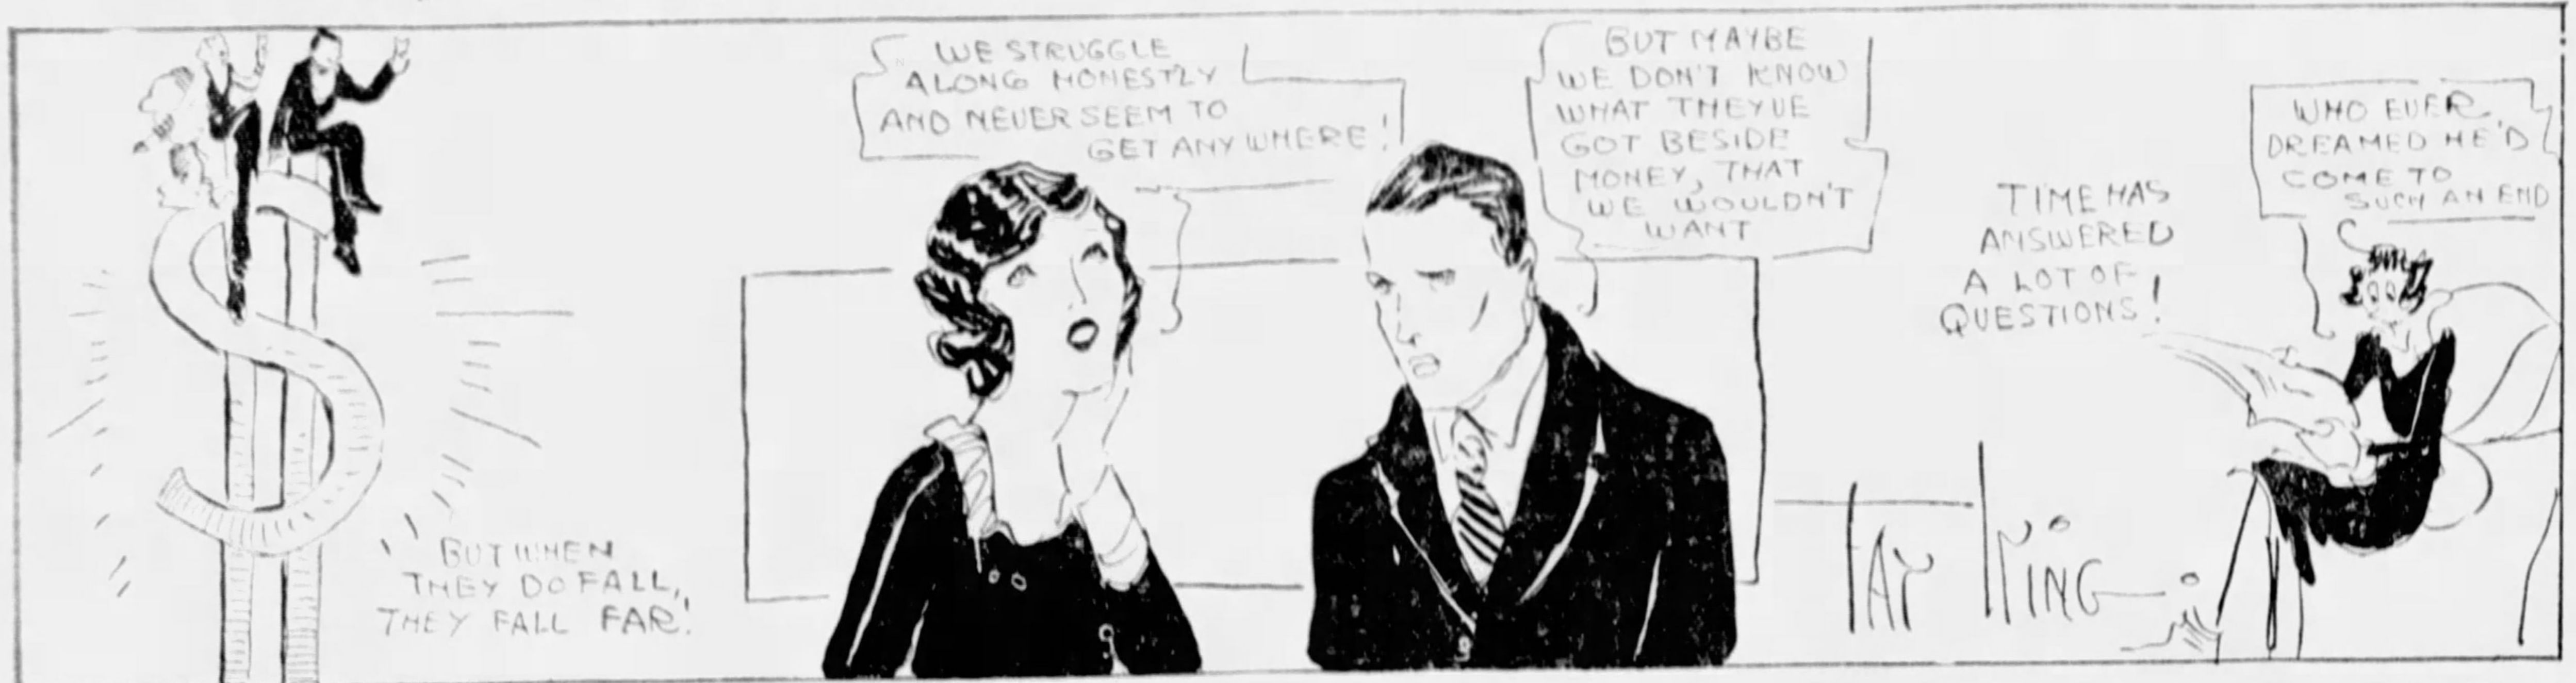
Money and Display Cover a Multitude of Secret Sorrows, Says Fay King



WE STRUGGLE ALONG HONESTLY AND NEVER SEEM TO GET ANYWHERE!
BUT MAYBE WE DON'T KNOW WHAT THEY'VE GOT BESIDE MONEY, THAT WE WOULDN'T WANT TIME HAS ANSWERED A LOT OF QUESTIONS!
WHO EVER DREAMED HE'D COME TO SUCH AN END
BUT WHEN THEY DO FALL, THEY FALL FAR!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

It is hard for those who struggle along honestly to see others who are crooked and unscrupulous rising higher and higher, and apparently happier and happier.

Fame, fortune, ease and luxury seem to come their way in spite of the fact that they have defied all the rules of right doing and right living.

Yet they do pay the penalty, but it is in ways that are not apparent to the average eye, to which it seems that they are getting away with everything.

Life sometimes sends them very high so that the fall when it does come may be greater.

Money and display can conveniently cover a multitude of secret sorrows, quite successfully, so that one does not realize how dearly they pay!

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Worried About Her Husband

Mary shot a furtive side glance at me as I told her that we must hurry down to thank Mr. Veritzen for all his kindness. But she made no comment, although I knew that she was thinking of her former impertinent little speech concerning Mr. Veritzen's ostentatious generosity for her party, and the reason for his flamboyant gesture. I said nothing further either and we went into the dining room with the decorum of attendants at a funeral.

But Mary's high spirits were not proof against the sight of the decorated room at the rear of the big dining room. In the big room, of course, nothing was changed from the ordinary routine of dinner, except for the bankings of palms and trailing plants in the corners and the vases and bowls of flowers upon the bracket ledges which outlined the sides of the room a few feet below the high ceiling.

But the smaller room was all ready for our dinner before the theater, and Mary clasped her hands as might a little girl before a coveted doll when she saw the musicians' platform banked in flowers and green, and the festoons of greenery which came from the corners of the room and met at the chandelier a few feet above the center of the table.

"Oh, oh!" she breathed, and at the words Mr. Veritzen turned from the table and came toward us. The center of the table was hidden by sheets of the green paper which florists use for wrapping flowers, but I noticed that they were skillfully arranged so that they did not touch what was beneath them.

"Ah! at last!" he said, and there was a distinct note of reproach in the words which he addressed pointblank to me—he ignored Mary as if she were a small child accompanying me.

"I am so sorry," I said, perfunctorily, "but at the last minute a missing collar button complicated matters. You, with your perfect man, can have no idea of the havoc so small a thing may cause."

I deliberately had brought in the domestic note, feeling that in some vague way it armored me against the banal sentiment with which my employer seemed determined to invest his lavish gift of flowers for the party.

His eyebrows narrowed into an involuntary frown, and with secret malice I saw that he did not relish my having delayed my inspection of his flowers because of Dicky's call upon my services. But the next instant he was all urbanity again, and, stepping back to the table, took hold of the sheets of green paper, dexterously whisked them away without touching the perfect thing which lay beneath them.

"How do you like your dinner decorations?" he asked with pardonable complacence in his voice, but for a fascinated second or two I had no words.

How he had managed it, I had no idea—he must have had a cabinet maker as well as a florist at work, but sunk into the table was a tiny glass-lined pool of real water, with feathery tendrils and tiny golden blossoms floating on the surface and the smallest goldfish I ever had seen disporting themselves against glass sides. And all around it were banked orchids, white, golden and brown-flecked, [illegible] green tendrils. He must have paid Mr. Seibel the price of a banquet cloth, for my housewifely experience told me that it must have been cut to fit the unusual decoration. And what else he had paid to engineer this decoration, by far the most beautiful I ever had seen, I had no more idea than I had as to what Dicky's reaction would be when he saw the table. I was afraid that he would consider the flamboyant extravagance of the thing as a distinct impertinence on my employer's part, and deep in my soul I knew that I shared my husband's feeling.

Useless for me also to pretend to my own soul that the compliment was for Mary, although I meant to voice that thought whenever I could do so without banality and apparent effort. But Mr. Veritzen's whole manner as he stood by the table, with his eyes upon me, proclaimed that the tribute was mine alone.

"I know you told me that wild roses and lilacs and violets were your favorites," he said, "but even if they could be obtained, and the first two are impossible, all three of them would wage mortal combat with your color scheme, as you outlined it to me. So I ventured upon orchids, as lending themselves best to the device I had in mind. But I am sorry if they do not please you."

It was not alone the compulsion of courtesy which made me exclaim: "Please me. They are the most exquisite things I ever have seen!" I defy any woman to have such an offering made her, and not feel a mean little sense of gratified vanity at the tribute. But it was a gratification which lasted but an instant. Even before Mr. Veritzen, smiling now, had time to frame an answer to my exclamation, Purnell appeared in the doorway and hurried up to me.

"Mr. Graham he say he must speak to you on the telephone right away."

Household Hints

Never knot the darning thread before starting to darn. A knot may make it very uncomfortable for the wearer of the stocking. Just moisten the end of the cotton and it will not slip through.

When you have ironed an article and the seams have an ugly shiny gloss where the iron has touched them, wring out a piece of cheesecloth from tepid water and wipe over the shiny surface with light, quick strokes.

Plain cornstarch pudding can be made most attractive to the kiddies if served with a sauce of some sort. The sauce could be just as nutritious as the pudding as the attraction would be in the pouring and decorating of the dessert.

When ironing her little girl's clothes one housewife uses wire hangers. She places the socks, panties, and slips to each dress on the bar of the hanger, slipping the dress over the top of hanger, and a handkerchief in the pocket. The child is dressed in a minute, minus all the trouble it takes to stop and look for the various articles of clothing.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"At Home" Cards.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If you only knew, and I think I speak for many, how wonderful your column is. I think you would write it twice as often and twice as long.

I am going to be married secretly and sending out announcements, but I intended putting in small "At Home" cards because I am moving to a new address. Is this improper? A says yes. I think it is all right as naturally most of one's friends wish to remember one at a time like this.

AN ADMIRER AS WELL AS A BOOSTER FOR YOU

Well, well . . . Perhaps you don't think that I am proud and happy at your superb tribute! You made a sunny day of this day, dear friend.

The enclosing of "At Home" cards with your wedding announcements is absolutely correct, and is very often done. It is an easy way for announcing the new address, and this is very important for your friends. By all means, plan to do this.

Strange Week-End Visitor.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to visit friends for a week-end in a city some miles from here. A while ago a man from that city called on me at the request of a friend of both. The friend lives in the West. I have known him for years. He asked me to his home. In fact told me that any time he'd come by automobile and get me. Would it be bold to write him that I'd call at his home? I'd like to have him know that I am to be in his city. He is a very busy man. F. C.

I wouldn't suggest that you write him that you would call at his home, but it would be quite correct for you to write him, when you arrive for your visit, and ask him to come to see you at the home where you are to visit. Consult with your hostess, however, before you do this, and see what would suit her convenience and plans. And, if possible, include her, of course, in any plans that you may make.

Delightful Birthday Party.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My birthday is coming soon and I would like to know if it is all right to do the following: Ask a friend of mine and another couple to go to the theater and after the theater to my home?

2. Shall I get the tickets ahead of time and then give them to my friend that night, or keep them myself?

3. In what way can I invite them?

4. Should the other young man ask the partner he wants, or should I? H. B.

1. Yes, this would be a thoroughly delightful and correct plan for the celebration of your birthday.

2. By all means buy the tickets ahead of time . . . in fact, make every possible plan ahead of time, so that you will have that deeply comfortable feeling of being "all ready" on the evening of the party. Ask the man guest whom you know best to take care of the tickets for you.

3. The most charming way, I think, is to write a little note of invitation.

4. It's best for you to do all of your inviting.

The Lady's Galoshes.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When I'm at the home of the young man I go around with and company is present, is it proper for my friend to help me with my galoshes? We seem to have quite a controversy on this and would appreciate a reply.

2. Is it proper when attending a dinner at another's home to tip the maid or butler before leaving? C. S.

1. Yes, indeed this courtly service and attention should be given the lady by the gentleman. It is service and this makes it not only correct, but obligatory.

2. This is not necessary unless he or she has done some special thing for you, such as going on an errand. In the ordinary course of events, it would not be done.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Sties May Indicate Run-Down Condition

Sties are common nuisances and easily recognized. They are rather unpleasant to look at, and you are told by every one you meet, "I know what you have, you have a stie." Next time this happens to you reply, "No, I have hordeolum." This is the medical term for a stie.

A stie is a localized inflammation of one of the glands in the margin of the lid and of the tissues surrounding it. It is usually characterized by swelling of the lid. Sometimes the swelling is so marked as to close the lid over the eye.

At first the redness and swelling are so general as to be misleading. But soon a tender spot appears near the margin of the lid. Later this comes to a head, and from this point pus may be extracted.

The condition usually runs its course in three to four days. Unfortunately, if you have one stie, there are likely to be others, a "crop" of them.

The eye should be bathed with boric acid. Continuous application of heat helps shorten the duration of this condition. It greatly reduces the swelling and pain.

In severe cases, where this simple treatment is not successful, it is necessary to open the infected area. Following the incision, with liberation of pus, prompt relief is afforded.

To those individuals who are susceptible to these infections, it is advisable to use a salve of yellow oxide of mercury. A bit of it is applied to the lids before retiring. Thorough bathing of the eyes and lids with warm boric acid solution in the morning will help to keep the parts clean and less likely to become infected again.

It should be remembered that sties usually indicate poor health. Often this is the result of faulty diet, lack of fresh air and rest.

Quite frequently it is associated with eye defects and unnecessary eye strain. The presence of a sty is abundant reason for having the eyes tested. Suitable glasses should be had if the examination reveals eye strain.

In very severe cases, particularly those of frequent recurrence, treatment with vaccines sometimes gives excellent results. Your doctor will tell you about this.

Answers to Health Queries

EDNA Q.—What causes a tight feeling in the stomach?

A.—Probably due to indigestion. Correct your diet and avoid constipation.

Mrs. F. A. C. Q.—My two children have had whooping cough for three weeks. They are 2 and 6 years of age. How long shall I keep them away from other children in order to prevent a spread of the disease?

A.—They should be kept away from other children until all signs of the discharge have disappeared. Your doctor will advise you.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

On every inch of a normal topknot—or rather, the scalp on which it flourishes—is parked about 1,000 hairs. Some hairs live for seven years before they flit away; others don't stick half that time. Hair, like all cells and tissues of the body, is in a constant state of decay and renewal. Old structures sometimes break and split before they detach themselves from the home base. Hair is formed of overlapping scales. Sensitive fingers can tell by the "feel" whether the surface is the up or down of a hair.

No gal can be a champion good looker unless she is blessed with health and vitality. She would rather depend upon cosmetics and makeup than vitamines and good grub, but that's barking up the wrong tree, though cosmetics have their uses, as all of us know. A pretty girl who looks wan, who howls about her neuritis, is demoted from the ranks of the beautiful ones. Health is the reward of hygienic habits, a balanced diet, fresh air, restful sleep, exercise and mental well-being. When using cosmetics you're just putting the cream on, as it were.

Five minutes of scalp massage before going to bed will act as first aid to moulting tresslocks. Dip the finger tips in ice cold water, and friction the scalp briskly, moving the tissues away from the scalp. The life of the hair depends upon the blood streams; by arousing blood streams to greater activity, they bring more nourishment to the glory crown. An excellent tonic is made by combining equal portions of castor oil and rubbing alcohol.

Why is it that the plain girl rather than the pretty one is often the life of the party? Because, instead of looking in her mirror, she has profitable inner reflections. She does some tall and heavy thinking. She must make up for lack of looks, the perfect profile, the alabaster complexion, by delightful social qualities. She aims to make herself charming. She avoids making herself tiresome. She plays up to others, bringing out their best offerings, and so gains a reputation for being a good fellow, friendly, companionable, amiable, charming.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Ben Bernie

First as a Saturday singer in a Meriden (Conn.), "nickelodeon" at $5 a night, then as an entertainer in a New Haven (Conn.) hotel at the fabulous sum of $50 a week, later on the Keith circuit with her sister, and now leading dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company—that's the chronological career of Rosa Ponselle, WJAS, at 8:30. Rosa made her Metropolitan debut with the late Enrico Caruso on November 15, 1918. At 34, she is one of the youngest American-born prima donnas. Tonight she includes Herbert's "Kiss Me Again" and Tosti's "Good-bye."

'HOPE YOU LIKE IT'

Ben Bernie "The Old Maestro," dedicates his Columbia network program to Pittsburgh at 11:30 tonight. Ben wires:

"Good ole Pittsburgh, I'll be back one of these days looking for those golf balls I lost at Oakmont a couple of years ago. Tonight we play 'Bidding My Buddy Good-bye,' in memory of Mickey McCullough, of Pittsburgh, one of our boys who passed on two years ago. Our other numbers on WABC include the 'Alpine Milkman,' a knockout English novelty tune with a yodeling chorus by our slightly off-key German quartet, and 'Ninety-nine Out of a Hundred.'"

Francis Owen—Pack one gross of our Grade AA golf balls that "whistle" when air currents carry them into the "rough."

How large are the NBC studios?—Vivian S., "Pitt."

Answer—Studio "H," their largest, measures 63 by 38 feet. Studio "J," their smallest, measures 8 feet by 9 feet. A large symphony orchestra and 300 visitors may sit in the large studio in comfort, while Studio "J" is overcrowded with more than two people. The smaller studio, similar to Studio "C" at KDKA, is used only for stand-by announcements and time signals.

Edwin Whitney, of NBC, brother of Cass Ward Whitney, plays the parts of Rip Van Winkle and young Rip in the 5 o'clock program via KDKA.

Paul Whiteman promises the "Rhapsody in Blue" in its entirety for KDKA fans tomorrow night at 8.

Brian MacDonald subbed for Dick Powell and scored heavily with "On the Road to Mandalay." Brian has traveled that road many, many times.

NBC adds WDAY, of Fargo, and KFYR, of Bismarck, N. D., on March 15.

Paul Dumont, of Dutch Minstrel fame, is now a regular announcer at NBC.

WCAE inaugurates a program of unusual promise at 8 o'clock. A new waltz, "Why Must I Always Be Without You" is to be heard for the first time anywhere, played by an orchestra under the direction of Harold Levey, former associate of the beloved Victor Herbert.

* * *

Edwin Alger (Jay Jerome Williams) discusses "Andrew W. Mellon" on WEAF at 6:30 tonight. Williams and Floyd Gibbons were reporters on the same Chicago paper years ago, but that has nothing to do with their delivery.

Lionel (Big Train) Conacher—they said he was "through" when he left the Pirates three years ago—was the big noise in CNRM's broadcast of the Montreal-Toronto game Saturday night. Conacher and Montreal won, 6 to 2.

W. A., New Brighton—Hear Phil Spitalny on WEAF, WSM at midnight.

Miss Ethel K., Steubenville, O.—The Sherlock Holmes' broadcast you heard over KFI at midnight last Monday was a second performance of the regular 10 o'clock series on WJZ chain.

H. W., Saxonburg, Pa.—The Mormon Tabernacle choir is on WJZ at 6:15 every Monday.

CHEERS FOR RIDGELY

Edward J. Donovan, of 6205 Station street, and at least 90 others have implored us to arrange an xylophone contest between Dick Ridgely, Beaver Falls boy, and Fred S. Paine, of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. Paine claims the world's speed record for doing 964 notes in Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Flight of the Bumble Bee" in 65 seconds. Ridgely's boosters say this is "mere child's play." Edward Kroll, of 2096 Duss avenue, Ambridge, wants Dick to challenge not only Paine but Sam Herman and Joe Green, of NBC. Eugene Campbell, city, says this would make a swell network feature. We agree with you, boys, and a letter has been sent by special courier to John F. Royal, NBC, suggesting that an xylophone contest be scheduled very soon. Meanwhile hold your "do."

The LOUDSPEAKER

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, March 9.—Sophisticated humor, once regarded as unwelcome on the microphones, is becoming more and more audible. It can be traced to the influence of Will Rogers.

Since Rogers took to the air with his superior form of wisecracking—whatever became of the word "nifty?"—the broadcasters have been busy provoking the quiet chuckle with that which has about it some quality of subtlety.

While Rogers was the pioneer there were others who took up the task of offering urbane and sagacious humor on the morals and manners of the day—such commentators as Ray Perkins, Alfred Shirley, Alexander Woollcott, Heywood Broun. Perkins and Shirley come nearest to being exclusive products of the microphone. Both were practically unknown as entertainers until radio swept them into its pastures.

Some day radio will uncover a Rogers of its own—a shrewd and witty town-and-country crier who will in his way achieve as notable a prestige as that which has settled upon other leaders of its vast army. And the other leaders are expressly of, by and for radio. They belong as distinctly to the microphone as Chaplin belongs to the screen or Mrs. Fiske to the stage.

Many of the dramatic moments of American history have been offered to the ear-cuppers in the form of radio drama, but the field is still largely untapped. The radio men might give us representations of the murder trial in which Lincoln won an acquittal by the aid of an almanac, the senatorial eloquence of Webster, Clay and Calhoun in pre-Civil War debates, the witch-hunting of Salem, the stirring scene when Bryan captured the Democratic convention in 1896 before America became, as they say, the land of the spree and the home of McBride.

History is chockful of radio material, but the broadcasters will have to be careful to keep out the educational note.

The peepul will sit for anything save programs designed to educate.

In the meantime radio showmen are deep in plans of developing microphone drama technique, encouraging the boys who can tell a story with the speed and flash of radio itself. Particularly are they encouraging one Laurence Holcomb who seems to have a special talent for speeding, flashing radio drama. It was Holcomb who wrote "Skyscraper" for the loudspeakers—a 30 minute play detailing a man's thoughts while falling 30 stories to his death.

We have yet to hear on the air the exploits of Raymond L. Ditmars in catching copperheads and cobras for the Bronx Zoo. They ought to provide an exciting earful. We commend them to the tooth paste makers who at present appear to have the most money to spend for radio entertainment.

No song of Tennessee has been written in many years. Strange neglect in Tin Pan Alley.

Wonder to what extent the Roxy symphony concerts have relieved distress among unemployed musicians?

Robert L. Ripley is sailing for Africa in search of "believe-it-or-nots." He could stay at home and explore the song coops of Broadway to advantage. It was Ripley, you'll remember, who told an incredulous world that "Auld Lang Syne" was not Scotch but Chinese, was in fact, a Chinese air centuries ago; that the tune of the "Star Spangled Banner" was originally a soldier's drinking song.

Thoughts of a non-thinker: Ah, well, instead of shaking the hand which shook the hand of the mighty John L., future generations can boast of gazing at the boot that tripped lightly over the $1,950 Elysian rug which Mayor Kline bought for his office. Speaking of things in general, how did Bert Succop feel when he trod that rug? And it must be a pleasure to be put on the carpet by the Mayor. . . WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

SANTA BARBARA, Cal.,
March 9.

I am like my good friend Arthur Brisbane. The town that you are writing from that day is the one that you should come and settle in. Now this is Santa Barbara, on the bank of the same ocean he has so glowingly depicted to you at various times, and we are here for a charity relief polo game between youth and old youth. The four boys we are playing have a combined age of 90 years, while our team is exactly two hundred. Mr. Max Fleischmann, the fine sportsman and big game hunter; Mr. Jim Wigmore, of Cleveland, and Snowy Baker, Australia's greatest time all round athlete, each are exactly fifty-four and myself with thirty-eight makes two hundred.

Will Rogers

WILL.

Pershing Found Supply Service Meeting Demands

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces. Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER LVII.

Early in August, 1918, I made an inspection tour of the Service of Supply, to note the progress and acquaint myself, the Chief of Staff and Gen. Harbord, by actual observation, with conditions.

The tour was made also with a view to such changes in personnel and improvements in methods as would insure the complete fulfillment of the increased obligations imposed upon the Service of Supply by the tremendous task of receiving, storing and transporting the enlarged troop and supply shipments.

Pershing

Our first stop was Tours, which, being the location of the Headquarters of the S. O. S., with a huge American military garrison of 2,400 officers and 4,360 men, had become a beehive of activity. We went directly to Gen. Kernan's headquarters to meet the assembled chiefs of services, and to receive their verbal reports and discuss the situation in their respective spheres.

We visited every activity at Tours, beginning with the Central Records Office, a branch of the Adjutant General's office of large proportions, where the personal records of every man in the A. E. F. were kept. We found that the railway operators, numbering thousands, comfortably situated in portable barracks at Camp de Grasse, were putting every energy into the service.

English Women Helped

Certain engineer troops were kept at this central point for railway work, ready to respond to calls from any direction. The well-managed camp of German prisoners, under Col. Groome, of the Military Police, contained several hundred men used as laborers.

A number of British women, known as the Women's Auxiliary Aid Corps, were lent to us by their government to assist in clerical work. The 250 women located at Tours, occupied neat and comfortable temporary barracks and presented a very military appearance on parade.

Gen. Kernan

Some 50 of them were ill in quarters at the time and I gave instructions that they should be transferred to our hospital. Besides giving efficient and reliable service officially, these fine women, under the proper restrictions that prevailed, became a valued addition to the social side of life where they were stationed. This force with us eventually numbered about 5,000.

The base hospital at Tours was then filled with men wounded in recent engagements. They were receiving the best of care under Col. A. M. Smith and his efficient group of medical officers and nurses. Speaking to the men in our hospitals, I tried to tell them how much the country appreciated their valor, and assured them no efforts would be spared to hasten their recovery.

The Aviation Instruction Center for Observers, under Lieut. Col. S. W. Fitzgerald, gave us a favorable impression in every particular. While there I said a few words to the smart-looking company of mechanicians on the importance of their work.

At the end of our inspection, Col. Boyd and I went for a walk, and incidentally visited the fine old pension in which I had spent two happy months with my family in 1908. The beautiful garden, the shade trees, the swing, the children's sand pile, all were the same, but the place had changed hands and I was a stranger.

On the way to our train I went to the Y. M. C. A. hut and was greeted by a large crowd of men who had finished their day's work and had gathered there to enjoy the facilities for reading and recreation which our people at home, through the Y. M. C. A., so generously provided our troops abroad.

During the evening the deputy chief of staff, at Chaumont, reported by telephone to my train that the Supreme War Council had recommended that the United States establish a few training camps in Italy with the idea that the presence of American soldiers would stimulate the morale of the Italians.

Wounded Men Cheerful

I was opposed to any dispersion of our forces and at once telegraphed Gen. Foch to that effect. Although he was also against it, I feared he might be persuaded to recommend it, and that the War Department might fail to see it was not the innocent proposition it appeared to be. My telegram seemed to settle the question, as nothing more was heard of it.

At Bordeaux I spoke to the colored stevedores for a few minutes, telling them something of my service with a colored regiment and how proud we were of its conduct in the Spanish-American War. Among other things, I told them that later they might have the honor of serving as combat troops at the front.

At the conclusion of my talk, Col. Boyd, my aide, asked one of the corporals if he understood what I had said, and inquired whether he would like to take part in the fighting. After some hesitation, the corporal replied very seriously: "Yes, Sir, I understood but, Colonel, I wish you would please tell the General that I am very well satisfied right here and I hope he will not be displeased with my work."

At the Base Hospital, then under the efficient supervision of Col. H. A. Shaw, chief surgeon of the Base Section, we found about 500 of our wounded, most of them soon to be sent home. No matter how severely wounded they were I never heard a work of complaint from any of our men.

There could not have been found in the hospitals of any army a more cheerful lot. It was a lesson in fortitude, an inspiration, to see their fine courage.

Range of Life Expressed In Striking Canvas At Associated Show

By PENELOPE REDD

Paintings in exhibitions, like pedestrians in crowded thoroughfares, seldom inspire much thought. One takes them or rejects them visually, almost automatically.

There is an exceptional painting, however, in the current exhibition of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh at Carnegie Institute.

Norwood MacGilvary's "Fragments" differs from every other canvas in the collection.

"Fragments" is a philosophical thesis that has found lucid expression in paint. MacGilvary commences with forms suggesting elements of life—the curve for the personal and lyric, the diagonal for struggle, and the static for the eternal and mystical.

Basing his composition on these geometric forms, Mr. MacGilvary pictorially states the range of life.

As the omniscient observer, so to speak, he reserves the aesthetic in a small corner to the lower right of his canvas. The various arts are depicted near a young boy looking up reflectively from a book.

Perhaps, it is the figure of the child that strengthens the suggestion to this observer, but Wordsworth's "Ode on the Intimations of Immortality" is inevitably associated with MacGilvary's "Fragments."

MacGilvary has "apparelled in celestial light, the glory and the freshness of a dream." He shows the flame of life as the nucleus of his spiral movement, with embracing lovers dimly seen.

The lyric aspect of life's commonplaces is found in the cottage with its garden and serene maiden. The struggle is depicted by laborers at work while great mills tower above them.

These are all subordinate to the spiritual aspect symbolized by the firmament from which emerge aspiring hands and a mystical eye, which Wordsworth describes as "thou Eye, among the blind, that deaf and silent, read'st the eternal deep, haunted forever by the eternal mind."

The whole painting represents the utmost technical finesse and is precisely logical. The elemental forms of the compositions are mitigated by the overlapping diaphonous veils of paint. The colors are carefully plotted as to balance and accent.

The idea, however, is essentially spiritual. Norwood MacGilvary in Wordsworth's words bears "the power to make our noisy years seem moments in the being of eternal silence."

Drinking Party Hinted Before Undercliffe Blaze: Fleeing Woman Calls for Help

County detectives and Undercliffe police were searching today for a pretty 19 year old brunette, who fled, scantily clad, from a one story frame building at a summer camping colony at Undercliffe last night when the house was discovered in flames.

A man believed to be John Griffith, 60, caretaker for the colony, perished in the flames. County Detective Harry Barker and John Carmichael, investigating the fire, say a gin and moonshine drinking party was held in the house Saturday and Sunday.

Vincent Griffith, of 5119 Kincaid street, brother of John Griffith, was unable to make positive identification of the victim. He had not seen his brother for two years, he said.

About 6:50 p. m. a woman scantily clad and wearing a pair of men's shoes, ran into the roadhouse of George Zar, Little Creek road, and told him that one of the houses at the colony was afire. She said that a man was in the house.

Detectives said a drinking orgy beginning Saturday afternoon was held at the house.

ALASKAN FLIER LANDS SERUM

POINT BARROW, Alaska, March 9.—(AP)—Winging through a blizzard and over frozen mountain country, Pilot Joe Crosson triumphed over death and delivered life-giving anti-toxin to this diphtheria-ravaged village.

Crosson's flight from Fairbanks completed in five hours and 20 minutes, was in vivid contrast to the two months it would have taken a dog team. It recalled the oveland trek by dog team with anti-toxin from Fairbanks to diphtheria-scourged Nome in 1925, when relays of mushers covered 600 miles in five and a half days.

Crosson flew to Wiseman, 175 miles from Fairbanks, refueled and headed straight over the High Brooks mountain chain and then across the unpopulated snow-swept wastes to this isolated spot. The total distance is about 450 miles.

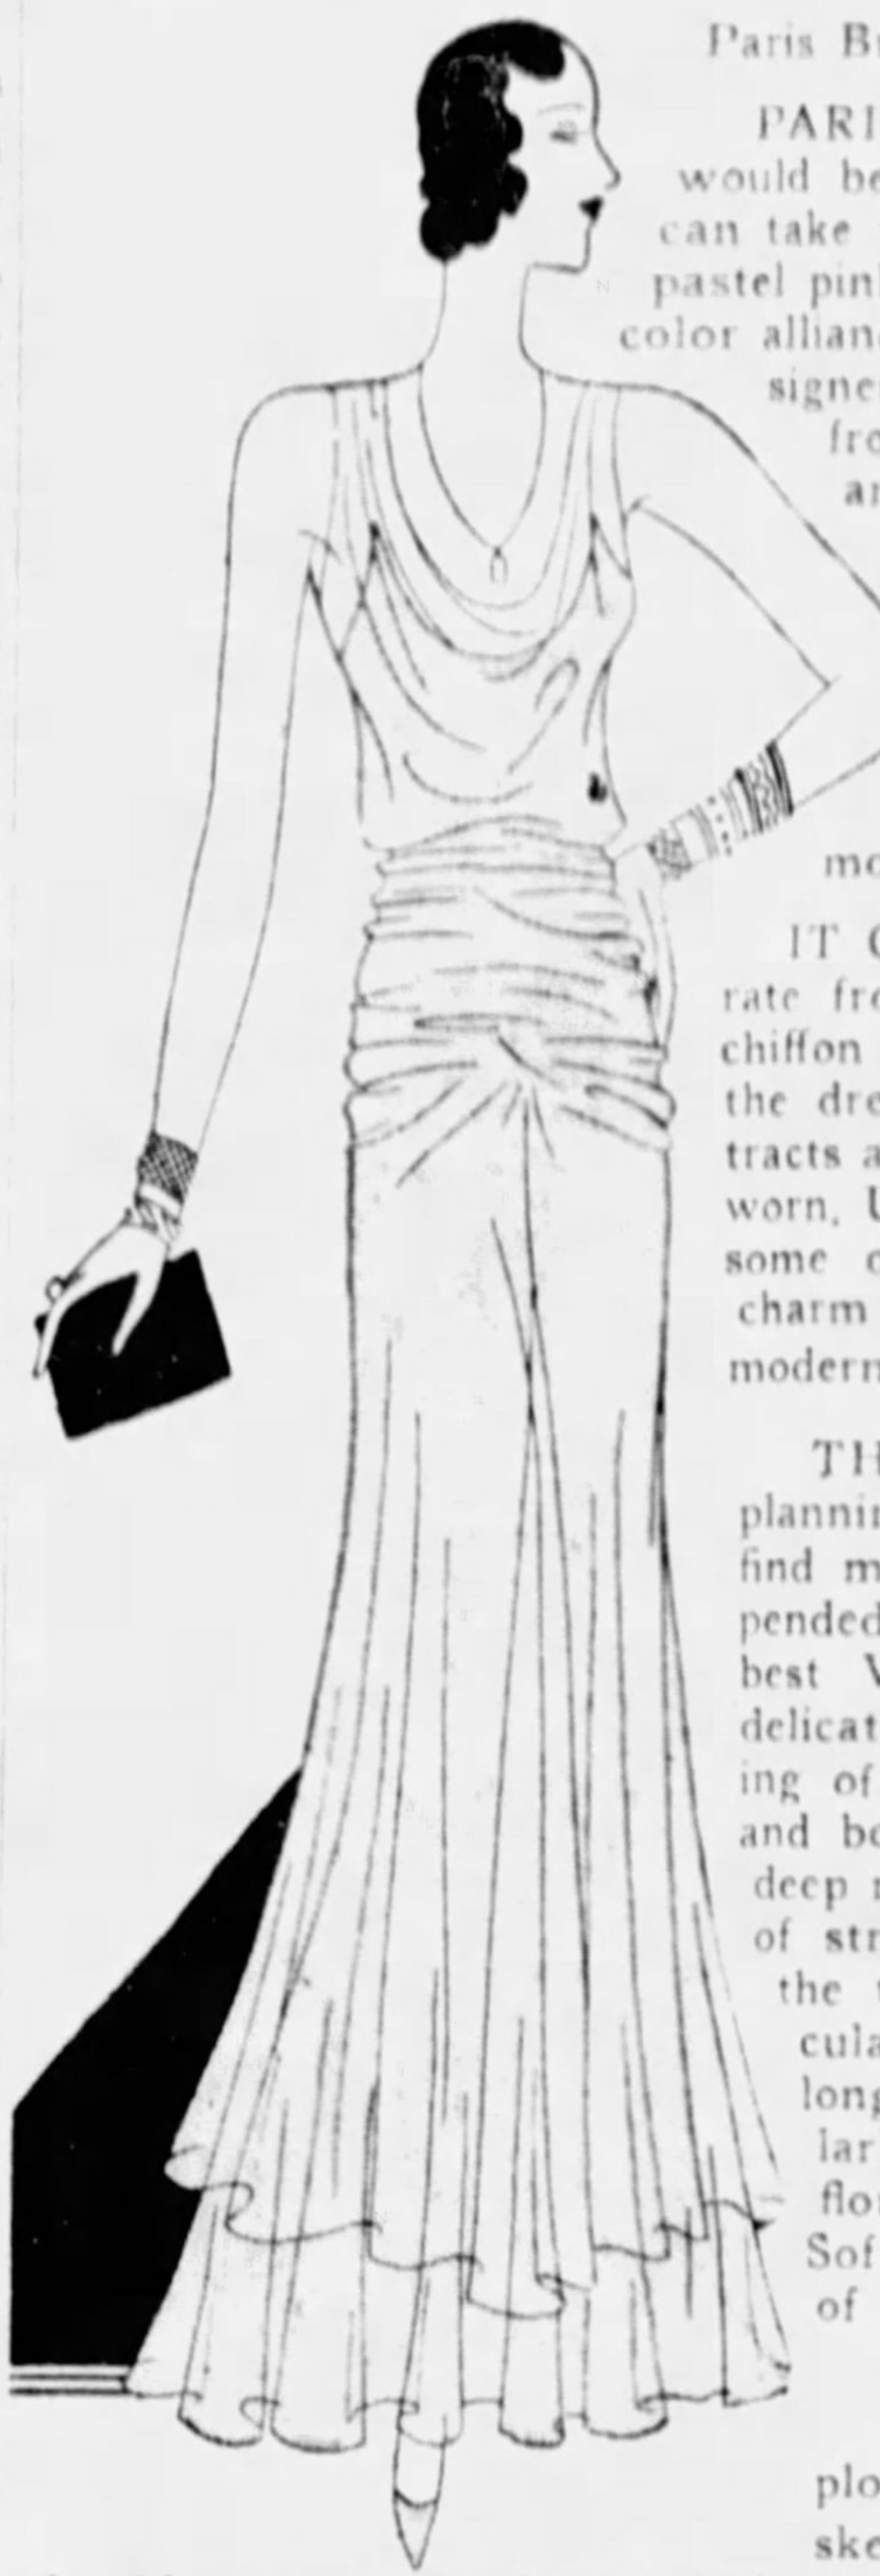
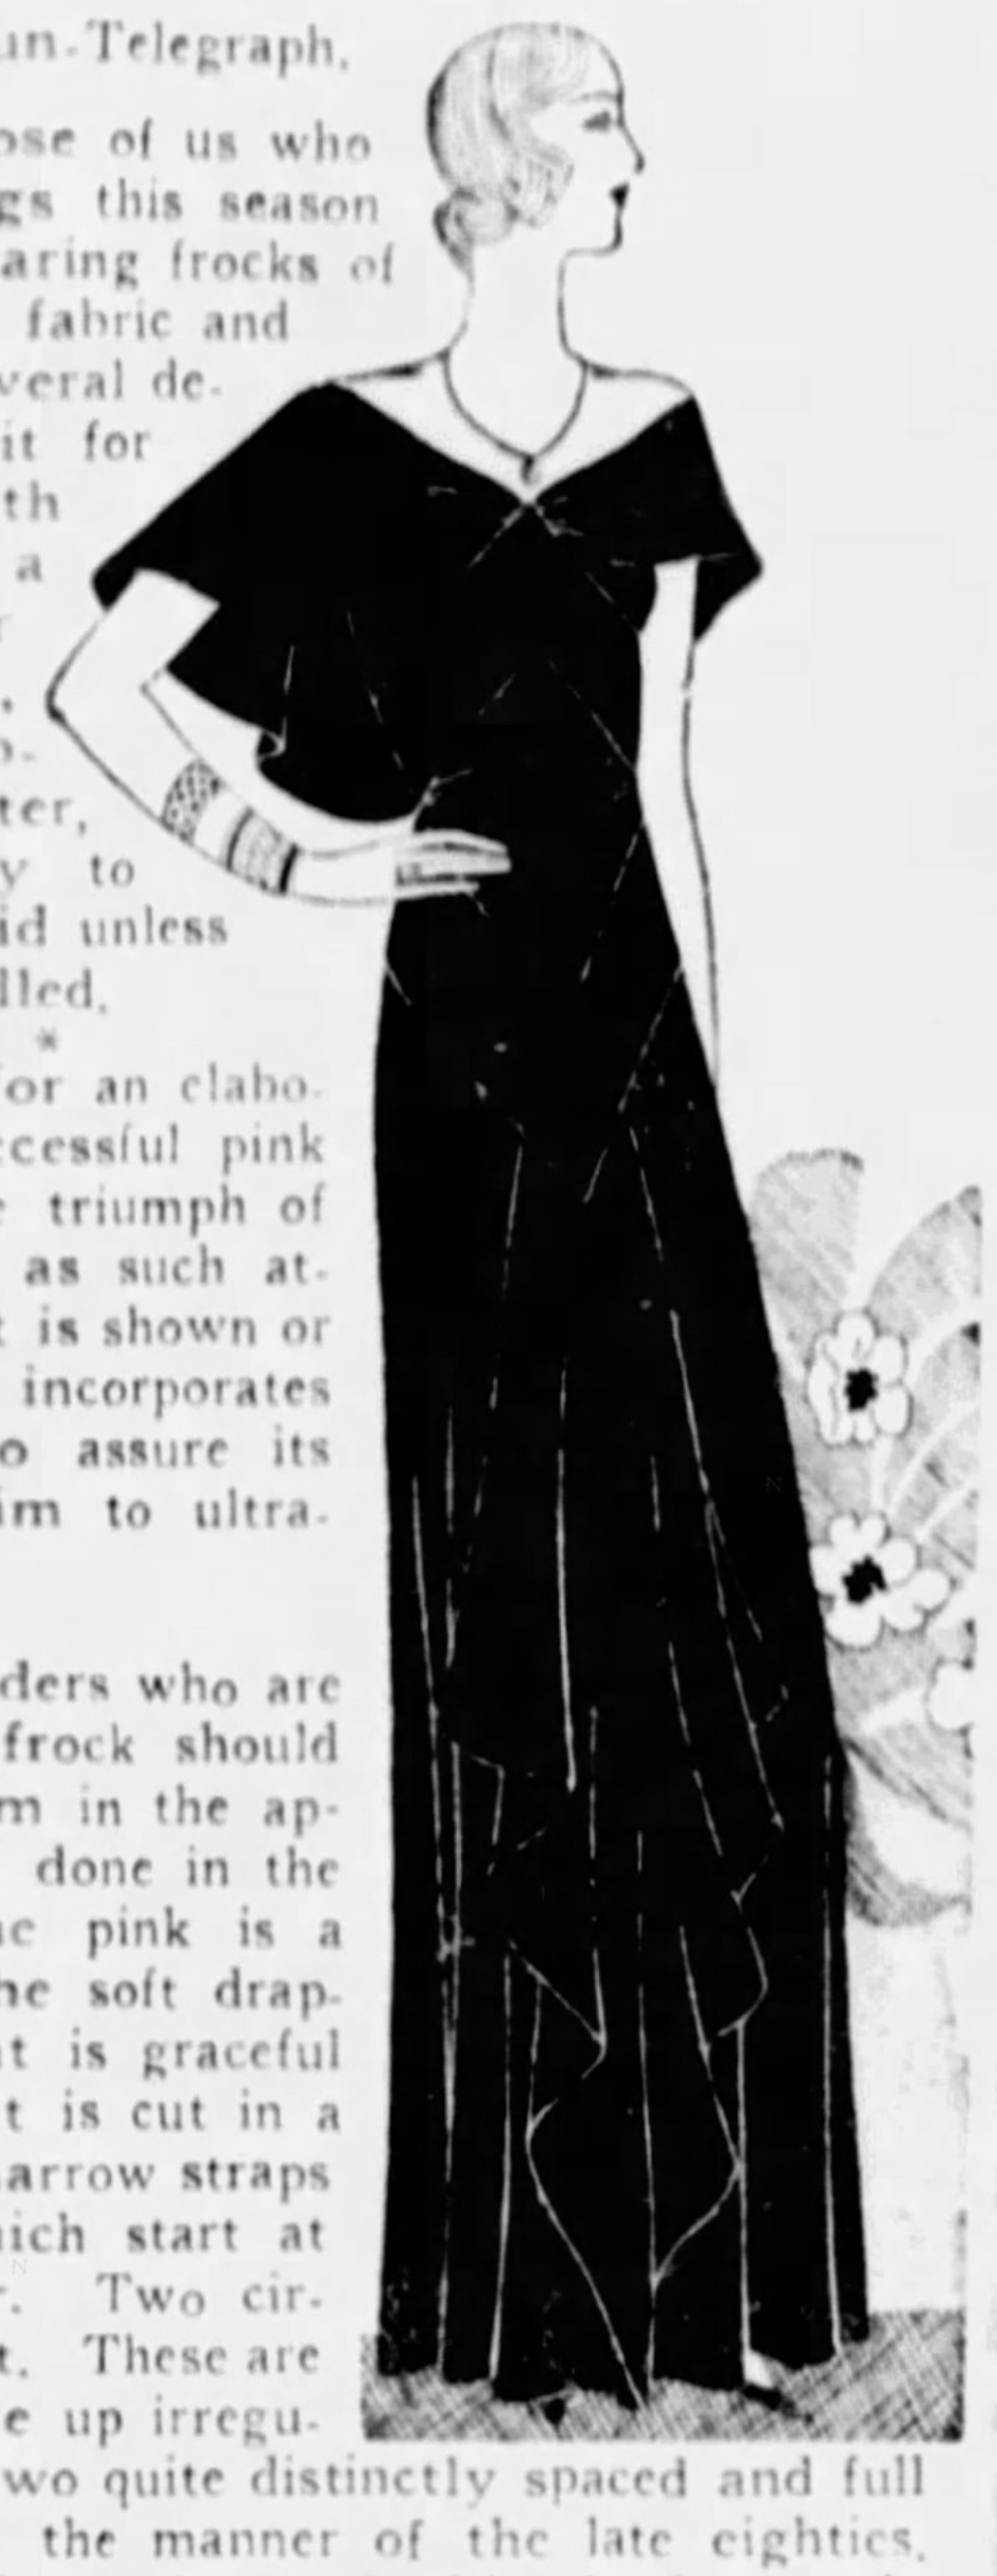
PALE PINK CHIFFON FROCKS BRING YOUTH TO WARDROBE

—Sketched in Paris—





Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 9. — Those of us who would be sweet young things this season can take the first step by wearing frocks of pastel pink chiffon. For this fabric and color alliance is featured by several designers who have used it for frocks combining youth and sophistication to a rare degree. For pale pink chiffon, or any other fabric for that matter, has a tendency to seem a trifle insipid unless most intelligently handled.

IT CANNOT be used for an elaborate frock and so the successful pink chiffon frock is a veritable triumph of the dressmaker's art, and as such attracts attention whenever it is shown or worn. Usually such a frock incorporates some old-world touches to assure its charm and assist its claim to ultra-modernity.

THOSE OF OUR readers who are planning a pink chiffon frock should find much to interest them in the appended sketch of a model done in the best Worth manner. The pink is a delicate pastel shade. The soft draping of the bodice in front is graceful and becoming. In back it is cut in a deep rounding line with narrow straps of strass embroidery which start at the top of the shoulder. Two circular tiers form the skirt. These are long in front, but curve up irregularly in back to form two quite distinctly spaced and full flounces, somewhat in the manner of the late eighties. Soft folds at the waistline and over the hips lend a touch of that period.

CUTS SILK HOSE BILLS IN TWO

A New York fashion expert has found a simple, easy method to double the wear of silk hose and undergarments. These articles, worn next to the skin, wear out doubly fast because of the perspiration and other body excretions which soften and rot the silk.

This lady found that soap and water were inadequate for washing such articles. She recommends when washing silks to add a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm soapy water. Wash and rinse as usual. This method not only cleans thoroughly and quickly but makes silks like new with revived colors and pleasing freshness. The difference in results over the use of soap and water alone will amaze you. It means longer life, real economy.

Energine is unexcelled also for quickly removing all dirt and grease spots from dresses, hats, gloves and ties. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

PERSHING FOUND HARBORD IDEAL CHIEF FOR S. O. S.

Some would never again see, others would never be able to walk again, but they all seemed proud of their sacrifice, which many of their countrymen are often prone to forget all too soon.

Officers Replaced

Considering the extreme importance of Bordeaux and Bassens, the general conditions were not satisfactory to me or to Harbord. There was a lack of appreciation b the officials of the urgency of expediting the turn-around of vessels, and virile direction seemed to be wanting. In view of the necessity of promptly meeting our new obligations, several of the principal officers at Base Headquarters were replaced by others of greater energy.

We arrived at Brest August 2 and found the Commanding General, G. H. Harries, and staff at the station to meet us. Base Section No. 5 was built around Brest, our leading port of debarkation. The section included four French territorial departments. Another landing port for troops was Cherbourg. A large locomotive terminal and repair shop were located at Rennes, and a coal port at Granville.

Gen. Harries

It was a reminder of frontier days to see Harries. After the campaign against the Sioux in 1890-1891 we had been together for several months at Pine Ridge Agency, South Dakota, where he was a member of a commission sent to investigate the Indians' troubles and settle their differences with the government, while I commanded a company of Ogalala Sioux Scouts. At his headquarters we met Admiral Wilson, who, under Admiral Sims, was commanding the Naval District. It was very gratifying to hear from both of these commanders how perfectly they were pulling together.

After an inspection of the storehouses and the new construction for additional storage on the piers, I asked for the chief stevedore, Maj. O'Neil, who came up apparently quite embarrassed. To put him at ease I took him by the arm and we walked together to where some lighters were being unloaded. As the port had made the record of handling 42,000 arriving troops and their baggage in one day, May 24, entirely with lighters, I asked him to tell me about it.

Maj. O'Neil

Major Rewarded

By this time he had overcome his fright, and pointing to two officers, each down in the bottom of a lighter directing the work, he said:

"Sir, do you see those two captains down there in their shirt sleeves? Well, that's the secret. I say to them: 'Don't stand off somewhere and puff yourselves up in your uniforms, but take off your Sam Brownes and your coats and get down close to your men.'

"Of course, those captains have now become experts. I did the same thing when I started, but since they are trained I manage things generally and they carry out my orders. I can wear my uniform now that I have won the right to wear it."

"Well," I said, "O'Neil, you're just the man I have been looking for, and I am going to send you to every port we use to show them your secret."

We next went to the large French infantry barracks at Pontenezen. There was a German officers' prison camp at Fort Penfield, nearby, which we found in satisfactory condition. Incidentally, it was everywhere noticeable that whether in prison or at work the German soldier always retained his military bearing and his excellent discipline.

Notwithstanding the difficulties encountered in perfecting the organization of the S. O. S. and the several changes found necessary, the solutions of the problems generally were being worked out through the co-operation of able men in every line, and it was evident that the plans of organization itself of this vast structure were on a sound basis.

S. O. S. Immense

With some improvement in methods and a more aggressive spirit in some quarters, there could be no question that it would be able to meet the utmost requirements.

My visit of inspection put before the personnel the vital significance of successful effort and of increasing their energy.

To relieve the G. H. Q. of many details involved in handling questions of supply, which had been retained under its direct supervision during the formative period, it was decided to transfer to the S. O. S. the control of procurement, reception, maintenance and distribution of supplies.

Large questions of policy and the immediate direction of military transportation and supply in the zone of the armies and the determination of quantities and the control of munitions remained under G. H. Q. The promise with which the new arrangement began almost immediately to operate afforded a definite indication of early and permanent improvement.

Some idea of the magnitude of this great supply organization of the A. E. F. may be obtained by giving the numbers of men employed in the problem of supply. August 1 there were 1,169,062 officers and enlisted men in the A. E. F., of whom 275,000 pertained to the S. O. S., which was below requirements, as the proportion estimated for the work was about one man in three.

SALVATION ARMY PIES IN FRANCE

SALVATION ARMY LASSIES IN FRANCE DURING WORLD WAR MAKING "A HIT" WITH PIES

There was scarcely a town in France south of the latitude of Paris with rail connections with our main railroad arteries to the front that did not have some important American activity connected with the A. E. F. through the S. O. S.

Expresses Satisfaction

Speaking of the situation in a cable to the Secretary of War, August 7, I said, among other things:

"I have just returned from a thorough inspection of the service of supply, having spent a day at each of the western ports of France and visited all of the principal depots, remount stations and hospitals. The work accomplished surpasses all calculation and is a monument to the abilities of the men who during the past year have devoted their best energies to carrying out the great plan.

"The results are especially gratifying in view of the handicap of the shortage of labor and material that has existed since April on account of tonnage being devoted to transportation of combatant troops to the exclusion of S. O. S. troops. I am satisfied now that we have builded properly and that there is no question whatever that the ports and our service of supply will be able to provide for the needs of our extended program.

"Right now there is a capacity approximating 25,000 tons per day at all our ports, including Marseilles, and this will continue to increase pari passu with our needs. Port efficiency will increase with experience and additional men and equipment.

"With the increased personnel and material called for, the rail facilities will be adequate. There need be no worry as to our ability to handle supplies as fast as our expanding tonnage will require. Even with scant labor supply we have repaired about 13,000 French cars and a proportionate number of engines.

"Notwithstanding the scattered units of the command, supply trains have never failed to reach our troops, who have never been short of food for a day.

"A change of the system to one of co-ordinate control is not indicated. Although there has been some lack of push in the S. O. S., yet I am as confident of the perfect working of the organization under the selected head, Gen. Harbord, as I am of ultimate military victory.

Rail Situation Bad

"He has taken hold in splendid fashion. I shall transfer to him the entire subject of routine suppply and related subjects, including transaction of cable business with the War Department on such subjects.

"There is no sort of doubt in my mind that the Service of Supply with him at its head, under direction of the general staff, will continue to function satisfactorily regardless of the size of this command, leaving me free to devote my attention to the military problems.

"There is no line of cleavage between the supply of troops and their tactical operations. All must be under one head to insure success. It is a sound military principle, the wisdom of which the experience gained in all wars has clearly shown."

Regarding our rail situation in its relation to railway procurement at home, it was fortunate that Mr. Samuel Felton, who was in charge, should have been in France at this time. With the limited amount of sea transportation available he had done everything possible to help equip and man our railways, but the immediate cry was still for more locomotives, more cars and port equipment.

With the ever-increasing demands, we had only about 7,600 cars, with about 21,000 on order that we had urgently asked for. Looking into the next year, to meet our 3,000,000 program and allowing for all that could be built or repaired in France or obtained elsewhere, we would need to receive from home over 60,000 more cars by the following June.

Mr. Felton

As to locomotives it was the same story. We had obtained only 555 engines from the States, and our actual needs by July, 1919, would be about 3,000 more, or about 250 per month from then on. Many other essential articles of equipment vitally needed to equip our docks for the prompt discharge of vessels had not yet arrived.

Cablegrams that would fill volumes had been sent on all these matters, but there seems never to have been a clear conception at home of their relative value. It should be remembered, however, that troop shipments had probably absorbed the attention of the home authorities to the postponement of many other demands.

Try a loaf of A&P Raisin Bread; it's really different from any other raisin bread you ever ate, you'll like the flavor, and you'll enjoy the taste of the luscious seedless raisins, with which it is so generously filled.

It is especially delicious when toasted to a golden brown, and spread thickly with fresh butter. Serve it for tomorrow morning's breakfast. Your nearby A&P store will supply you with a loaf fresh from the oven.

WOOD SETS PRICE; GETS $1,000 MORE

THERE APPEARS TO be a vast difference between the leading two left-handers on the Pirate pitching staff in their spring moods and in their views as to the fairness of the Pittsburgh club owner in the matter of contracts tendered for the season of 1931. Larry French, it is said, was offered a salary increase of 25 per cent, running into four figures, but turned it down and demanded, according to President Barney Dreyfuss, a boost of 115 per cent. This demand, in turn, was refused by the club.

Charley Wood

The result is that French is a hold-out, has missed two weeks of training, and is likely to miss a lot more if both he and the club remain firm in their refusal to change their estimates of Larry's pitching value. In striking contrast to French's attitude, and his expressed opinion that he is entitled to more than he has been offered, is the enthusiasm of the other southpaw regular, Charley Wood, who is tickled to pieces with his job and is convinced that he is working for the most liberal club in baseball.

WOOD, ONE OF the best pitching prospects in the country and who showed every sign of being a coming star in the 58 innings he pitched for the Pirates last fall has informed friends that, far from being told that he was aiming too high when he was asked to name his terms for the season, he was actually given a larger salary than he considered himself worth.

"When President Dreyfuss called me into his office to take up the matter of a 1931 contract," Wood says, "he did not tell me how much he was going to offer me for the season, but asked me how much I wanted. That certainly was treating me very nicely, but I hadn't heard anything yet. That isn't half of it. When I told him my figures, which I put as high as I thought I could in all reason, what do you think he did? He gave me $1,000 more than I asked. What wouldn't a fellow do for a man who treats him as white and as generously as President Dreyfuss treated me? I'm ready to pitch my arm off to show my appreciation."

DIGGING INTO THE baseball records of long ago Joe Vila finds that the closest approach to the New York Giants' major league mark of 26 consecutive victories registered in 1916 was a string of 21 straight rolled up by Cap Anson's Chicago White Stockings in 1880. In 1884 the Providence Nationals won 20 in a row.

The American League record of 19 straight was established by the Chicago White Sox in 1906. Anson's Chicago Nationals won 18 straight in 1885 as did the Baltimore Orioles in 1894 and the Giants in 1904. The Giants won 17 in succession in 1907 which was equaled by the Senators in 1912, and again by the Giants themselves in 1916 before they ran up their remarkable total of 26.

PITTSBURGH'S BEST RECORD is 16 straight wins, hung up in 1909. The Phillies also won 16 in 1892, as did the Giants in 1912 and the Yankees in 1926. Clubs winning 15 in a row were the Cincinnati Reds in 1899, the Pirates in 1903, the Yankees in 1906, the Athletics in 1913 and the Browns in 1916. Thirteen straight were won by the Reds in 1890, the Giants in 1905, the Cubs in 1906, the White Sox in 1908, the Athletics in 1910, the Giants in 1913, the Tigers in 1927 and the Cubs in 1928.

Bucky Harris

IN GIVING ORDERS that all Detroit pitchers must work nine innings during the exhibition games before the opening of the regular season, Manager Bucky Harris says he has come to the conclusion that it's all wrong to use hurlers only a few rounds in those affairs.

Harris points out that they have to go nine innings in championship games, so why not pitch them nine innings before the pennant race starts and get them used to it? He believes that when pitchers go wrong after the season opens, the trouble is often due to the sudden switch in their working periods.

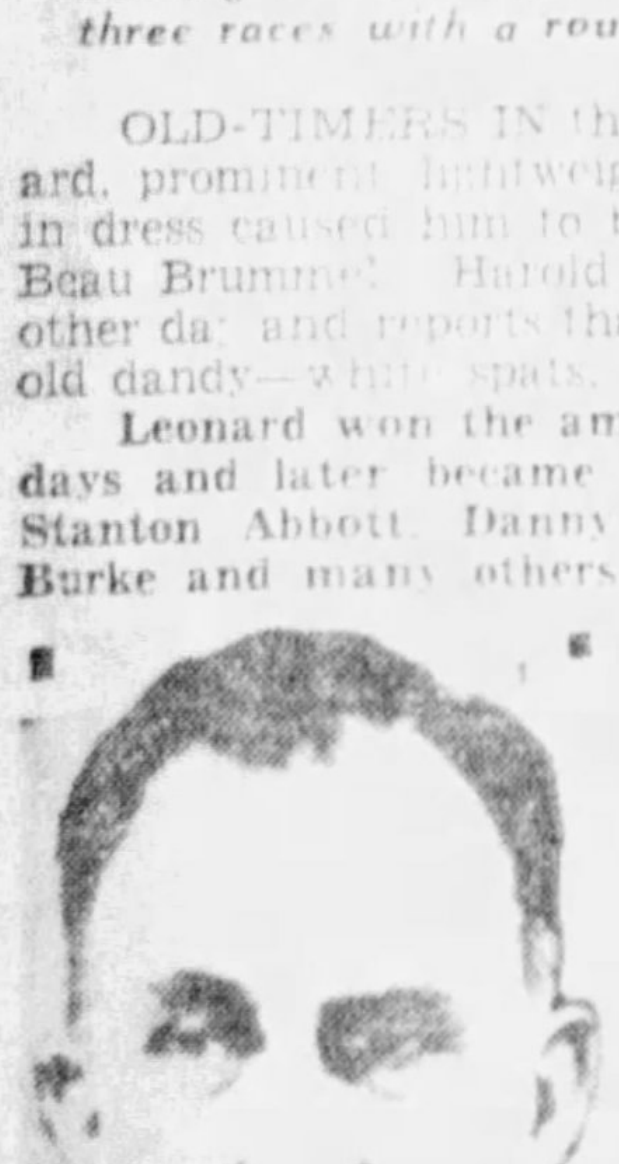
IN ARGUING THAT pitchers ought to go the full nine innings in practice games the Tiger skipper uses the systems followed in other sports as examples. For instance that a weight man practicing for the 16-pound shot put in a track meet is never heard of tossing eight-pound shot in preparation.

Sprinters do not train for the 100-yard dash by sprinting from 25 to 50 yards, he adds; milers are not in the habit of practicing for their event by running quarter-mile or half-mile distances, and turf trainers do not get a thoroughbred ready for a mile race by running him four furlongs. So Tiger pitchers will have to accustom themselves to the full route before the real games begin.

THE FIRST OF a line of great sprinters on the Pacific Coast was taken by death a few days ago. He was Charley Parsons, a star at the University of Southern California a quarter of a century ago, and the forerunner of such other great Trojan sprinters as Drew, Paddock, Borah and Wykoff. To show how far Parsons was ahead of his time, it need only be said that as far back as 25 years ago he broke 10 seconds for the 100-yard dash and set a Coast record of 22 1-5 for the 220. His strength and stamina were in keeping with his speed, and it is related that he thought nothing of running the 100, 220 and 440 and topping off those three races with a rousing lap in the relay.

OLD-TIMERS IN the boxing game will readily recall Mike Leonard, prominent lightweight of almost 40 years ago, whose elegance in dress caused him to be known throughout the fight world as the Beau Brummel. Harold Parrott stumbled into him in Brooklyn the other day and reports that in spite of his 60 years he is still the same old dandy—white spats, brown derby, pink carnation.

Leonard won the amateur lightweight championship in his early days and later became prominent as a professional. He defeated Stanton Abbott, Danny McVeigh, Billy Walsh, Joe Shortell, Jim Burke and many others and was the only man ever to knock out George Reynolds, which he did at Coney Island in 1893.



Charles F. Adams

"BOXING ISN'T A SPORT any more," Leonard says. "It's a business now. That's why you see so many fouls and so little real battling. I go to see the fights every once in a while, but they're disgusting. All the fighters do is tap and run. In the old days it was much tougher, but it meant something."

Mike's nose isn't bent, nor his ears cauliflowered, nor his face scarred. "Here's why," he explained when somebody commented on it. "I never let the other fellow get set—always kept on the aggressive and kept punching. That's the best defense."

CHARLES F. ADAMS, of Boston, continues to widen the sphere of his operations as a sports magnate. First he was one of the owners of the Boston National League baseball club and also the Boston National League hockey club, and now he has joined the ranks of the owners of thoroughbred race horses. Henry King reports that he has a half dozen 2-year-olds and a few hunters in training at Belmont Park, under the care of Leigh Booth, younger brother of Willie Booth, who developed Peter Wrack and other prominent racers. Adams' horses are said to be a promising lot and so well advanced in their training that they are breezing along faster than a two-minute clip.

DUQUESNE FIVE IMPRESSIVE IN FIRST ROUND

The Lineup

New Kensington		New Brighton
Wilson (C)	F	(C) Hurley
Kistell	F	Maybray
Davoub	C	Beitsch
Susek	G	Alexander
Bell	G	Verbanic

Scrapping for a spot in the schoolboy basketball sun, like unto the one acquired by New Castle Saturday night, the teams of New Kensington and New Brighton will battle in an upper bracket second round W. P. I. A. L. championship tournament game in the Pitt Stadium tonight.

New Brighton, one of the most impressive teams of the first round, a team strong enough to erase Ford City, the pre-tourney dark horse, from the running in impressive fashion, confronts the defending champion in New Kensington. New Kensington rubbed out Swissvale in an initial round test, having less testing opposition than Ford City furnished Brighton.

FORWARDS ACES

The game tonight promises a duel between a pair of crackerjack forwards, Wilson, of Ken High, and Hurley, of Brighton. Hurley was the big shot of his team's win over Ford City. Wilson starred as Kensington took over Swissvale. Matched tonight the youngsters should offer a variety of basketball pyrotechnics.

The rival centers ought to give each other a busy evening, too. Babe Davoub, of New Kensington, was the all-tourney center last year. He will have an edge in experience over Beitsch, of Brighton, but the Beaver Valley center gave a very convincing display as he stacked up against Ford City crack pivot man, Bass.

DUQUESNE IMPRESSIVE

The most impressive first round team was Duquesne. Big and fast, with stamina to spare and accurate passers, the Red and White clad team impressed all critics, all scouts and all coaches who saw 'em perform, especially those coaches whose teams have Duquesne to meet in forthcoming tests.

Duquesne had an easy time whipping Coraopolis, but playing Bill Campbell's not inconsequential Homestead team in a play-off game the night before the W. P. I. A. L. tourney opened, the team looked just as impressive as it did in its easier game in the tourney.

It looks like the team that wins the championship will have to beat Duquesne, which means that it is going to be very tough for McDonald or Duquesne, which ever fights its way into the semi-final round of the lower bracket.

There have been 15 really outstanding performers in the scrimmaging to date. Included in this list are men of the caliber of Hurley, of New Brighton; Wilson, of New Kensington; Malarkey, of McDonald; Ortman, of Ford City; Matzie, of Ambridge; Beitsch, of New Brighton; Stevenson, of Monessen; Knepshield, of McDonald; Eicher, of Scottdale; Edwards, of Brownsville; Rush, of Scottdale; Micheleosen, of Ambridge; Bass, of Ford City; Dayoub, of New Kensington; Lasky, of New Castle and Tomko and Bache of North Braddock.

FARRELL, HAR-BRACK DIN

In scholastic tourneys concluded Saturday night Farrell High won the right to represent Mercer County in the N. W. P. I. A. L. eliminations at Greenville next Friday and Saturday by defeating Greenville, 37-13, in the final at Grove City; the Duke Preps won the state Catholic tourney final, 39 to 11, at the expense of St. Mary's of the Mount at Duquesne gym, and Har-Brack Union won over Franklin, 26-18, in the final of the Allegheny-Kiski Valley tourney.

CANADIENS CHAMPS

DETROIT, March 9.—(INS)—Les Canadiens, world hockey champions, today were certain winners of the International Group pennant in the National Hockey League. By defeating the Detroit Falcons, 2 to 0, here last night, the Frenchmen collected the two points that make it an impossibility for them to be headed for the flag. Boston previously had clinched the American Group championship.

HagerstownKeeps Mid-Atlantic Franchise

HAGERSTOWN, Md., March 9.—(AP)—Joe Cambria, of Baltimore, has announced he will retain his Hagerstown Middle Atlantic Baseball League franchise, granted him in Pittsburgh, and have a team in condition for the opening of the season, May 7. He had been invited to transfer his franchise to Martinsburg, W. Va., and said he also had received several other attractive offers.

The decision of the owner of the Hagerstown Hubs, in recent years of the Blue Ridge League, came following a long conference with James Jamison, head of the Field Athletic Association which controls the stadium. Baseball in Hagerstown is played at night.

Cambria said he secured most of his players from Baltimore and Washington.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF SATURDAY: OUR NATIONAL CAPITAL WAS MORTGAGED TO A DUTCHMAN—Under the authority of an Act of Congress of May 24, 1828, the District of Washington was empowered to raise a loan amounting to $1,500,000 to enable it to meet its subscription to the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal. The loan was obtained from Daniel Crommelin & Son, of Amsterdam, Holland, who demanded and received a mortgage on all the real estate owned by the government within the District of Columbia as security (1830). The conditions of this loan reveal a curious situation with regard to the financial rating of the United States of a century ago.

HOLOHAN STORY PREMATURE

Announcement was made at Pirate headquarters today that a story printed to the effect that John D. Holohan, graduate athletic manager of Duquesne University, has been named acting business manager of the local club to bring the players back from their California training camp, was premature. The matter has been discussed, but had not been closed, it was said, and President Barney Dreyfuss, if his health permits, may make the journey himself.

The opening recently was created by the death of Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss. Secretary Sam Watters is weighted down with the responsibility of preparing the local arrangements for the opening of the season, and for this reason cannot hie himself off to the coast.

Holohan's executive ability and personality came to the attention of Dreyfuss through their business dealings relative to the staging of the Dukes' football games at Forbes Field during the last two seasons.

∵ Rookie Tales ∵

NO. 1—FORREST JENSEN.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 9.—A lot of things can and do happen to a bush league ball player, but if you were just breaking into the game in a dust-and-cinder league and the official scorer robbed you of 50 stolen bases, would you tee off on him, or what would you do?

When the average major leaguer is deprived of a base hit or a stolen base he wants to bring the matter up before Judge Landis, but Forrest (Woodie) Jensen, the swift Danish boy with the Pirates, didn't know much about Landis in those days. The incident make him fighting mad, however, and he still is in the base-stealing business.

"Jim Mosolf, Forrest Jensen and I landed in the Utah-Idaho League at the same time," said Forrest. "I did a lot of running and thought I would like to lead the league in stolen bases. According to my count, I had something like 71, but when the averages were published I was credited with about 25. Naturally, I made some inquiries and then I learned the home official scorer hadn't turned in any for me. When I complained to him he said:

"'Oh, heck, fellers, I didn't keep any account of them things. They don't amount to shucks, anyhow'."

ALL-ROUND ATHLETE

Jensen's first dab of the professional stuff was in the Timber League around Washington. And with a guy named Forrest playing in the Timber League it was almost a foregone conclusion that somebody would call him "Woodie" and that is what he gets from his mates of the diamond.

"My father and mother were born in Denmark," Jensen elaborated. "They were married when they came to this country, and, of course, they knew little about baseball. They were a bit lukewarm when I began to play the game, but I think they are warming up to it now."

Forrest was picked as All-State end in Washington football and he was a star at basketball. In school he played no baseball at all, but when he began to collect $100 per week for week-end baseball in the Timber League he became fascinated with the sport.

MOSOLF'S BUDDY

"I was in the stands in Seattle one day when Los Angeles came to town," the lad relates. "I was about 18 and in love with baseball. I got up enough nerve to ask Marty Krug, Angel pilot, for a tryout, and he was glad to help me. After watching me in action, he asked me to return the next day. He gave me one of the big thrills of my life that night when he asked me to return to Los Angeles with his club. I was farmed out and dad reckoned as how I would be a failure at the game, but I'm in it and I like it."

Jensen led the Western League in batting last season and was a standout among the center fielders. He and Jim Mosolf have enjoyed companion careers. They have been buddies in four leagues, and each is a youngster.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 9.—Well, folks, the weather is so fine we do a lot of walkin' around this burg after we get through practicin'. I found out there is only one factory in town and that's a laundry. They have a whistle that wakes us at 7 bells. This town, like any other, has been hit by the hard times, but I learned yesterday that the production and employment at the laundry has gone up 50 per cent since the Pirates came to town. Yep, that's right. There was four people employed there when we came, but now there's six.

Here's another good one. Some folks came around to give us a nice ride and lunch after we finished practice. They seemed so nice that about 10 of us rookies went along and they rode us over the mountains to the ocean. I was wise enough to think there was a catch somewhere and when we landed they brought out some blueprints and tried to sell us some lots. They had a couple staked out and had them marked with Pirate names, the idea being to show that these fellas had bought lots. It was the old decoy and yours truly took a nice little runout powder. When I buy some real estate, I want it where I don't have to take a two weeks' vacation to find it.

Intercollegiate basketball, as far as Pittsburgh is concerned, will speak its bye-bye piece here tonight. Carnegie Tech and Geneva will wind up the campaign locally with a tussle in the Tartan gym, the last game on the Plaid card and the next to the last for Geneva.

Everett Utterback

Carnegie eked out a close one over Penn State Saturday night, dumping the Lions 31-30. Geneva has been idle since last Tuesday, when Bethany pulled one out of the fire in the very last second, almost, of play. In a game played earlier in the season, at Beaver Falls, Geneva defeated Carnegie, much to the dismay of the Skibos, who were in the midst of a fine winning streak at the time.

Tonight's encounter here will mark the final varsity appearance of George Nease, Tech's captain. Nease was the one bright light in the dismal Carnegie seasons of 1928 and 1929. His passing will cause much regret on the Carnegie campus.

It was this Nease fella's bucket in the last five seconds of play that brought Tech its victory Saturday night.

UTTERBACK AGAIN

Pitt may not have much of a track and field team, but the Panthers have one thing that even subsequent defeats will not be able to take away. That is a national I. C. A. A. A. A. indoor broad jump champion and record holder.

Last year, Everett Utterback, the Pitt Negro star, caused certain ripples of surprise when he won the I. C. 4-A indoor title and shattered a record of some years' standing. Saturday night, he went to New York again to defend his title, which he did, and in the doing, leaped 23 feet, nine and two-fifth inches, bettering his old mark by four inches.

PITT, TECH SCORES SAME

Pitt and Tech must have got together prior to their games of Saturday night. The local varsities won by identical scores, 31-30. While Tech was taking State, Pitt was knocking off Penn in Philadelphia.

The Panthers have two more games before they can call it quits for the season. Wednesday night they run into a tough one in West Virginia and Saturday, wind up their strenuous campaign at State.

As usual, Timmy Lawry and Docky Kowallis combined to fetch home the bacon for Pitt against Penn. Timmy accounted for four field goals and three fouls, Kowallis reversing the order.

Stout fellas!

W. VA. WINS

West Virginia prepared for the invasion of Pitt by drubbing poor Wash-Jeff again Saturday night. Thiel and Waynesburg brought the Tri-State Conference race to a close at Waynesburg, the Jackets winning and sewing up third place. Here's 'ow the boys wound up:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Westminster	6	1	.857
Bethany	5	3	.625
Waynesburg	3	4	.428
Thiel	3	5	.375
Geneva	2	6	.250

The Conference race this year showed very plainly that the league will have to take in new members or quit. The absence of the Dukes took away a lot of thrill, especially when the annual Duquesne-Westminster and Duquesne-Bethany series were lost.

PASO ROBLES, March 9.—Manager Ens assembled his Pirate legions today and prepared for the last week of preparation at the Paso Robles camp. Jewel was pleased beyond measure at the events of the past two weeks. It was just a fortnight ago the fair-haired Missourian took his first squad to the ball orchard for the initial practice of the season, and now the first and second squads are almost in midsummer condition.

The week-end gave the Pittsburgh athletes plenty of action. While the Yans were mixing with the Baby Seals in Monterey, the Pirate first team was hanging a defeat on Nick Williams' Pacific Coast flag contenders. The rustic ball park of this quaint town offered a pretty setting as the big leaguers and their minor league brethren ran off nine exciting rounds. The score was 10 to 7.

About 1,200 overflowed the wooden stands and bleachers to watch the excitement. The same kind of ideal weather favoring the Buccos this year was on tap for the ball game, the boys or men in the overflow sitting coatless and hatless on the grass.

SUHR GETS LONG DRIVE

And Gus Suhr gave the assembly a real thrill with a homer that traveled something like 500 feet before it played tag with the furthermost point of the center field fence. The score was tied at 7-all in the sixth, two were out and two were on the sacks when the southpaw slugger hit a blistering liner over the head of Foy Frazier, who was a Pirate last season. The ball rode the zephyrs so fast, the fleet Frazier was unable to get his desperate clutch on it and the sphere rolled into the centerfield pocket. Gus was rounding third base before Frazier could get to it, and he was so far away from the diamond at that moment, Suhr was able to cakewalk over the plate.

Sharing the swatting honors with Gus were Tommy Thevenow, Lloyd Waner and Pie Traynor. This clever trio ripped wide open with nine hits. In all, the Buccos made 18 hits, as compared with 11 for the enemy.

Spencer, Willoughby and Bednar worked on the slab for the Freebooters, with Phillips and Mealey sharing the catching duties. Bednar and Spencer were in fine form, each holding the Seals to a lone hit. Willoughby was unsteady, but Claude apparently has not yet acquired his control. He was missing the plate much of the time.

Manager Nick Williams, of the Seals, used McDougal, Henderson and Turpin on the slab. Henderson was the big victim of the afternoon, the Pirates teeing off on this righthander in the sixth round. Seven Buccos galloped over the home dish in the big batting spree, Suhr's four-sacker capping the climax. Jim Mosolf experienced the unusual joy of making two singles in the round.

Ens will hold only one workout today, but tomorrow he will resume the camp games, with morning workouts on the side.

PIET AT THIRD

The Pirate skipper announced this morning he would give Tony Piet a chance to play third base. Ens thinks a lot of the Polish speedboy and he figures that Tony may be able to serve as an understudy to Pie Traynor. Later he may give Tony some chores to do in the outfield.

The Yanigans were defeated by the Seal Seconds at Monterey. The score was 9 to 4. In charge of Coach Otis Crandall, the second team reached the Paso Robles port late last night. The Yanigans' final figures:

X-RAY REVEALS CHIPPED CONDITION OF PITCHING ELBOW

Steve Swetonic, of the North Side, Pirates pitcher, arrived back home last night from the Paso Robles (Cal.) training camp and conferred with President Barney Dreyfuss regarding an operation for the chipped elbow of his pitching arm, which threatens to keep him out of the game several months. Photos show Dr. W. L. Marks, club physician, and Manager Jewel Ens examining the arm in camp and the X-ray which revealed the fracture. Arrows indicate small pea-like piece of bone which is lodged in the socket of the elbow.

Sport Vignettes

Hark, hark, the dogs do bark, the rasslers are coming to town . . . Everything is reported set for a new club to begin operations in Motor Square Garden two weeks from Wednesday night with Jim Londos, recognized in Pennsylvania and New York as the world heavyweight champion, in the main bout . . . Boo Boo Hoff and Morris Fishman, allied with him in the operation of the Arena in Philadelphia, are the men behind the project . . . Young Eppy, former local boxer, also is interested and Charley Reinecke, former local grappler and Pitt mat coach, as well as referee of wrestling bouts held here in recent years, it is said, will "front" as the promoter, the State Athletic Commission insisting on such a local connection . . . Incidentally, under presure, the commission has done a complete about-face in the matter of permitting a revival of wrestling here after having consistently refused permission to promoters to operate, and it will be announced after a meeting in Philadelphia this week that the commission has voted to allow the mat game to be taken up again in the western end of the state . . . There is no good reason why it has not been permitted up to this time, as it has been not only sanctioned but fostered in Philadelphia, where it has gone over in big style . . . All of the matches will be advertised as exhibitions and it goes without saying that, in view of the tremendous popularity of the sport all around the country now and with the promoters having connections that will enable them to bring in the biggest "names" in the business, it will prosper in Pittsburgh . . . Announcement was made by Motor Square Garden today that the hall has not been rented to the Philadelphia combine for wrestling shows, but it was admitted that negotiations have been under way and it was said the building would be rented for this purpose if a satisfactory financial agreement could be reached.

The history of wrestling in Pittsburgh is none too glamorous. A decade ago, a revival reached the stage where Joe Stecher and Youssof Hussane drew two large gates at the Exposition Building, but since then all efforts to get the game going have been frowned upon. . . . The commission has been especially active in keeping it from getting a foothold. . . . A little more than a year ago, Ray Fabiani, Philadelphia promoter, was permitted to come in here and stage one show in the Moose Temple, and, last summer, the Meyers Brothers arranged a show for their Meyers Bowl, in North Braddock, but received no encouragement, with the result that the venture proved a gigantic flop and was called off at the last minute. . . . It does seem too bad that it should be deemed necessary to let interests from the eastern end of the state come in here and take over a concession that rightly belongs to local promoters. . . . However, the chances are that if the pressure did not come from Philadelphia there would be no revival at this time.

John Luch, Pitt football fullback, appears to have real potentialities as a heavyweight boxer . . . Making his debut as a varsity fist-flinger for the Panthers in the meet with the H. T. Little Club in Homestead a few nights ago, he took on the more experienced and gigantic George Pirrung and was well on his way to victory when the bout had to be halted in the third and scheduled final round because of a badly cut eye . . . Luch had floored Pirrung three times in the first two rounds, the bell saving him at the end of the opening round, according to ringside reports . . . Fred Turbyville, Pitt publicity director, has turned in his resignation after a year of service . . . He is a veteran sports editor, and a good one, and runs a newspaper sports syndicate on the side . . . We're sorry to see him go . . . A. C. Couch, manager of Spalding's local store, is rounding up a delegation of persons interested in the fight to legalize Sunday baseball in Pennsylvania and will lead them to Harrisburg for the public hearing on the bill, Tuesday of next week.—HARRY KECK.

Simpson Wins Race Despite Strained Tendon

CHRIST CHURCH, New Zealand, March 9.—(AP.)—Despite the handicap of a strained tendon, George Simpson, former Ohio State flier, won the 75-yard scratch event of an athletic program at Lancaster Park here yesterday. He ran the distance in 7 2-5 seconds to beat two native runners, Jenkins and Leadbetter.

Rufus Kiser, Pacific Coast middle distance runner, finished second to Bayne, of New Zealand, in a 4:20 mile. Harlow Rothert, giant weight man, from Stanford, easily won the shot put with a heave of 50 feet 6¼ inches.

SWETONIC ARM HURT STUDIED

The nature and extent of the injury to Steve Swetonic's pitching arm and the course to be followed in treating it will remain undetermined in local surgical opinion until a further X-ray study of the ailing elbow has been made.

Swetonic who arrived home last night from the Paso Robles training camp of the Pittsburgh club, conferred with President Barney Dreyfuss today and later was placed in the hands of Dr. G. F. Berg, club physician.

According to Dr. Berg, who is a specialist in the treatment of bone fractures, the X-ray photographs which the pitcher brought with him from the coast were not conclusive, and Swetonic was instructed to report at St. John's Hospital, North Side, for the taking of more pictures of the injured arm.

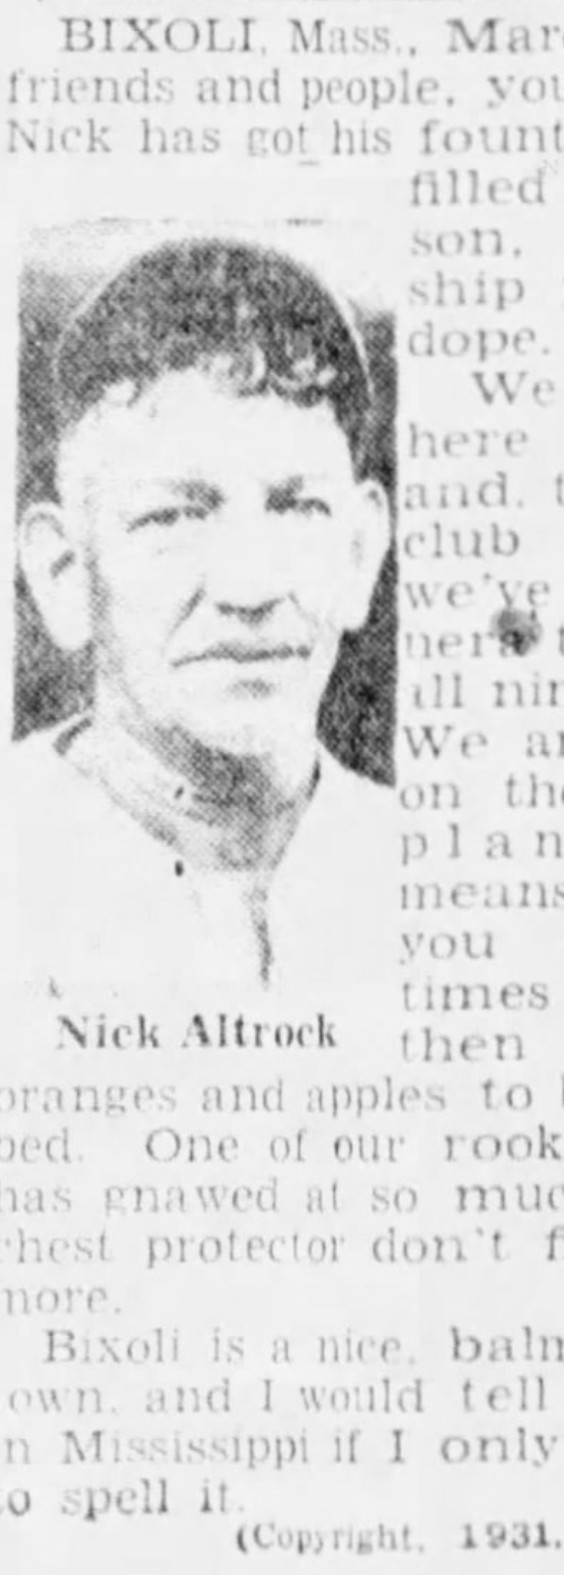
Upon what these pictures show will depend Dr. Berg's decision as to the seriousness of the injury and the treatment necessary. Dr. Berg held out the hope that Swetonic's pitching services might not be lost to the Pirates for as long as was at first reported probable.

Adam Comorosky, Pirate outfielder, who has been kept back from camp due to a skin infection, will leave at 9:30 tonight for California.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

BIXOLI, Mass., March 8.—Well, friends and people, your old Uncle Nick has got his fountain pen refilled for the season, and I will ship you all the dope.



Nick Altrock

We are down here in Bixoli, and, the way the club is eating, we've got Carner's training for all nine positions. We are boarding on the American plan, which means eat all you can three times a day and then grab the oranges and apples to bring up to bed. One of our rookie catchers has gnawed at so much food his chest protector don't fit him any more.

Bixoli is a nice, balmy training town, and I would tell you it was in Mississippi if I only knew how to spell it.

AKRON BOOTERS TRIP MORGAN IN CUP FINAL

By TOM BIRKS.

Pittsburgh's opportunity to annex another National amateur soccer title went aglimmering yesterday, when the Morgan team, of the Keystone League, found itself on the short end of a 4-goals-to-1 score with the Akron Goodyears, in the Western final of the series at the Bridgeville Speedway.

With a heavy ground made to order for the kick-and-rush tactics of the local team, the small crowd watched Morgan outplayed at its own game by a snappy eleven that appeared a sure winner from the opening kick-off.

The score at half time was Akron 2, Morgan 1. Robertson and Blackwood flashed the ball into the net, with Burnaby well beaten just before the interval. Barrafoldi scored for Morgan.

The second half found Blackwood and Robertson scoring, the visitors coasting home.

It was a peculiar game in many respects. The heavy storm of the morning cut the attendance to a minimum, and the Goodyears played with four regulars on the side lines. The muddy field, which was in good shape considering the weather, was a further handicap to the short-passing game of the victors. The lineup:

Akron Goodyear—4.		Morgan—1.
Pearson	G	Burnaby
Stevenson	R.B.	Villani
Chatterton	L.B.	Cyle
Collins	R.H.	Chappell
Hoejes	C.H.	Matthews
Crossley	L.H.	Donnell
Walker	O.R.	Mitchell
Blackwood	I.R.	Powell
Robertson	C.	Mangus
Craig	I.L.	L. Donnell
Bingham	O.L.	Barrafoldi

Goals—Robertson 2, Blackwood 2, Barrafoldi. Referee—W. Smith, Buffalo.

Three contests will be run off in the A. A. U. tourney, Ondrey battling the Trojans, North Avenue M. E. meeting Goose Goslins and the Hoyles opposing Rankin C. C. The games are carded for the Duquesne University floor.

The second County League post-season series tilt, between the Lafayettes and Fintex, will be played tomorrow night in the South Side Market House. Duquesne won the first tilt last week.

GOLF PERMITS READY SOON

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Permits for play at the Allegheny County golf courses in the North and South parks will be issued to the public on or about April first, it was learned from a reliable source this morning. The permits, good for play at either park, and costing a reasonable sum of $10, more than likely will be handled by the city office manager for the parks, John Jay Burke, popular public links executive. Junior permits will be issued for $5, with restricted playing privileges.

At the same time, reservations likely will be accepted for limited locker space. Unless the County parks authorities decide in the meantime to take them, reservations will not be accepted until next month.

It has been said that the West Penn Golf Association is eager to honor its president-elect, Harmar D. Denny, Jr., now vice president, by naming the Fox Chapel Golf Club for the annual district open and amateur championships. The actual settling of the venue, or dates, however, will not likely be made until the executive committee of the W. P. G. A. confers following the annual meeting to be held the third Thursday night in April, according to the association's by-laws.

The nominating committee also will offer the names of George A. Ormiston, of Oakmont, secretary, and James A. Barber, Chartiers Heights, treasurer, for re-election as it has done for many years in the past. The committee has not officially announced its selection for the ensuing year.

Fox Chapel at this time is renovating its clubhouse, and it will offer greater convenience than in the past. The West Penn tourneys, if they are held there, likely will be played during August.

MACKMEN NOSE OUT CARDS

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—(AP.)—The World Champion Philadelphia Athletics defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, National League champions, in their winter "world series," here yesterday. After his hit had scored a tie in the sixth, Edmund (Bing) Miller, veteran rightfielder, smashed a ninth-inning home run over the right field fence. Jimmy Foxx was on first, and the blow abruptly terminated the exhibition hostilities in favor of the Mackmen.

PUCKMAN SUSPENDED

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 9.—(AP.)—Bobby Conners, Seattle forward, has been suspended for the remainder of the Pacific Coast hockey season for striking Doug Brennan, Vancouver player, with his stick in a game at Seattle Friday night. Frank Patrick, president of the league, in announcing Conners' suspension, said physicians informed him that had the blow been one inch from where it struck it might have been fatal. The stick was shattered by the blow.

SMITH BATTLES JOHNNY DATTO

Johnny Datto, hero of those two sensational battles with Jackie Rodgers in the Motor Square Garden ring on January 1 and February 9, is back on exhibition in the windup of the East End arena tonight. Matched for a third setto with Rodgers, the Cleveland Filipino instead will meet Steve Smith, veteran trial horse, of Bridgeport, Conn., Smith subbing for the local Negro, who pulled out last Friday, claiming an injured rib.

Bobby Ray

Johnny Datto

With the edge taken off the main bout by the eleventh-hour defection of Rodgers, main interest in tonight's show has shifted to the preliminary card, which appears to be well balanced and promising in action. Billy Holt, Homewood Negro welterweight, meets Mickey Duris, of Johnstown, in the eight-round semi-final. Bobby Ray, of the Hill, just back from a double enlistment in the Army, meets Joey Spiegel, Uniontown southpaw, in the second bout, and Terry Waner, of the North Side, subbing for Joey Katkish, of Lawrenceville, who has an abscessed jaw, boxes Al Farone, of the West End, in the opener, at 8:30.

BUTCH O. K. FOR BOUT

Mose Butch, of Oakland, who lost on a technical knockout to Marty Gold, of Philadelphia, when his left eye was swollen shut in the main event at the Moose Temple last Friday night, reports that he will be able and eager to go through with his 10-rounder with Johnny Warner, of Clairton, in the same ring next Friday night. It is a companion piece to the Benny Schwartz-Jimmy Thomas battle, making up a double windup offering. Muscle Scholes will be one of the principals in the second bout.

Mickey Fedor, of Donora, boxes Henry Firpo in an eight-round bout in Louisville tonight. Lope Tenorio meets Eddie Shapiro at Jamaica, L. I.

RODGERS POSTS FORFEIT

Woogie Harris, of the Hill, now manager of Jackie Rodgers, yesterday posted a $500 forfeit in cash with Matchmaker Jules Beck, of the Garden, to guarantee that Rodgers will go through with future engagements there at the scheduled time. The Garden insisted on some such sort of an arrangement as a result of several eleventh-hour cancellations by Rodgers, the one for tonight climaxing the string.

By CARL W. SHATTO

Pittsburgh's Yellow Jacket icemen, who have been down in the International Hockey League race several times, but who have fought their way back into the money circle every time their ambitious foemen started to count 'em out, this week face their last "come-back" opportunity.

Five more contests remain on the local skaters' slate, and three of the frays are to be disposed of within the next six days. The feature game of a home schedule that has dwindled to three battles will be staged at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night, when Cleveland's defending champs will make their final appearance here.

INVADE DETROIT

On Thursday the Jackets will invade Detroit in quest of their eighth straight win over the Olympics, and on Saturday the Syracuse Stars will come here to give the locals what should be a golden opportunity to gain in the stretch drive.

With five games remaining, Pittsburgh is trailing London by one game in the standings. This situation is so very delicate that a single additional defeat is likely to ruin the Schooley icemen's chances of capturing fourth place and getting into the title play-offs. Cleveland looms as the most dangerous stumbling block in the Jackets' path. If the locals are able to down their traditional foemen tomorrow a victory sweep for the week is not unlikely, and a victory sweep for the week is just what the Jackets are likely to need to get them into the championship series.

Since Pittsburgh's recent slump, Cleveland has been setting the victory pace for the entire league, and they are certain to give the locals a bitter battle tomorrow. Doraty and Frew, long handicapped by injuries, are back in top form, and the Champs now are in A-1 condition and in an A-1 position to defend their crown.

TEAM HANDICAPPED

The Schooley stalwarts will have to depend on grit and courage, rather than fine physical condition, in their crucial fight. Leo Reise, defense ace, still is handicapped by a severe attack of tonsilitis, and Goalie Albie Cox has another attack of flu which has sent his temperature above the 100 mark. Both are determined to get into tomorrow's fray, however, and Manager Schooley and Coach Reid, realizing the importance of the fight and their value to the team, will have 'em "in there" if it is at all possible.

BULLS UNABLE TO KEEP LIST HEADED UP

Market Wobbles Uncertainly In Afternoon After Early Tendency to Go Higher

NEW YORK, March 9. (AP.) — Bull forces shifted their favor from the electric power shares to the motors in today's stock market, but were unable to keep the list headed upward after midday. The market wobbled uncertainly during the afternoon.

The news of the week-end included reports of moderate improvement in automobile sales and further gains in steel mill output in the Youngstown and Chicago areas. Business surveys generally, however, were not favorable enough to discourage the bear action, and the advance in share prices was checked by flurries of selling in the oil and motion picture issues and in U. S. Steel.

Speculative sentiment was confused and uncertain after sharp breaks in the market last week and the technical rebound on Saturday. Pools in the motor and merchandising issues put their favorites forward on the theory that the increased veterans loans should stimulate sales. Reports from the motor trade indicated that this influence was definitely being felt. Furthermore it is believed that the spring pickup in employment now apparent in some areas should help chain store sales. Pronounced improvement, however, is still lacking.

The preliminary estimates of building activity in February lead to the hope that a turn for the better is taking place. Both residential construction and public works were about a third larger in dollar volume than a year previously, while other groups showed an aggregate decline of about a third. The total should be found to have been slightly in excess of February, 1930.

The money market maintained the firmer tone which developed last week. Call loans renewed at 1½ per cent, but commanded 2 per cent in the early afternoon. It is expected that the return of funds to the banks after the flow to the interior early this month, together with a government overdraft in connection with its financing, may ease money later in the week. The amount of cash which will be withdrawn to meet the veterans' loans, however may tend to take up the slack.

Bituminous Coal Production Drops

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Total production of soft coal during the week ended February 28 is estimated at 7,440,000 net tons, compared with the preceding week. This shows a decrease of 65,000 tons, reports the Bureau of Mines. Production in the corresponding 1930 week was 8,179,-000 tons.

Total output during the present coal year to February 28 amounted to 406,459,000 tons against 482,933,000 tons for 1929-30, and 471,597,000 tons for 1928-29.

Crandall-McKenzie Earnings Decline

Crandall-McKenzie & Henderson, Inc., cleaners and dyers, report for the year ended December 31, 1930, net income of $41,328, equivalent to 82 cents a share on 50,000 shares, compared with $118,823, or $2.38 a share, in 1929. Allowing for 200 shares of stock held in the treasury, the 1930 net would be equal to 83 cents a share.

Forbes

Await Trade's Response To Wall Street Lead

By B. C. FORBES

BUSINESS is getting a shade better.

And sentiment in high places is more cheerful.

SEVERAL EVENTS of last week inspired encouragement.

Mr. Forbes

The adjourning of Congress was hailed with relief. The eager and vast over-subscription of government obligations carrying very low interest rates gratified the investment world. Bankers and others now feel little alarm over the problem of meeting bonus payments. The British Indian truce, accompanied by substantial recovery in silver, is interpreted as of far reaching significance. Foreign bonds have enjoyed sharp advances.

The down trend in the general price level has been checked—advances outnumbered declines last week for the first time this year. Cotton takings have expanded. Automobile news was rather cheering. Pig iron production is on the increase, with talk of impending higher prices. Copper continues to move moderately upwards. More building activity is reported at certain points.

THERE ARE, however, offsetting factors. Employment stays at or near the peak and relief funds are rapidly dwindling. Major farm products stay very low. Consumption of electric energy is off somewhat. Railway traffic returns do not reflect returning prosperity. Bank business is still much lighter than a year ago. Dividend reductions of importance are numerous and most annual reports make cheerless reading. Retail trade reports are uneven, though recording slight betterment here and there.

YET ONE'S daily contacts uncover distinctly greater hopefulness and an increasing number of encouraging incidents. Whereas a couple of months ago business men usually harped on cancellations and the like, they now more often talk of a pick up in orders. That the March total activity will show improvement over January and February seems probable. More buyers are becoming convinced that little risk is entailed in placing contracts for at least some little distance ahead.

While admittedly there is not yet overwhelming evidence that permanent betterment has set in, encouraging signs are numerous enough to stimulate a little more courageous action. By next month it will be possible to gather a clearer view of second quarter prospects.

AFTER HAVING increased almost $5,000,000,000 in the market value during February, the stocks traded in on the New York Stock Exchange have experienced a perfectly natural reaction this month. The net loss since March 1 has averaged fully five points.

Yet this has pleased rather than displeased the thoughtful section of the financial world. A repetition of last spring's spectacular rise, followed by a serious decline, would be most unfortunate. Until more conclusive evidence is available that trade and industry and employment are permanently on the upgrade, a runaway stock market would be fraught with danger. Conservative individuals and institutions have been disposed to lighten their stock holdings on sharp bulges—just by way of throwing an anchor to windward.

That there has been considerable outright buying of stocks is indicated by the reduction in the ratio of brokers loans to the total value of New York Stock Exchange issues to 3.22 per cent, an extraordinarily low figure. Money is worth so little in Wall Street that broader buying of bonds and stocks is a probability. But at this stage caution is both recommended and exercised in the highest circles.

TO SUM UP, the general trend continues mildly in the right direction. But the disposition is to attach much more importance to actual business developments than to fluctuations in security market prices. Wall Street has done its bit to stimulate a forward movement. It remains to be seen how trade and industry respond during the next few months.

A. T. T. to Increase Authorized Stock

NEW YORK, March 9.—The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, now the only $5,000,000,000 corporation in the world, will have a new distinction as the first business with an authorized capital of $2,500,000,000 if stockholders approve the proposal at the annual meeting March 31.

The corporation now has an authorized capital of $2,000,000,000 and its assets, as revealed in the 1930 annual report, are approximately two and one-half times as large. It is believed the corporation would be the first in history to have an authorized capital of $2,500,000,000.

Chicago District Mill Operations Up

CHICAGO, March 9.—Steel plant operations in the Chicago district will average between 55 and 60 per cent of capacity this week, Dow Jones & Co. estimates, against 55 per cent last week.

LONE STAR GAS RECOVERS HERE

Fuel Leader Moves Ahead As N. Y. List Advances; Mesta Machine Steady

Improvement in the New York market was reflected on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange at the opening of the new week. Lone Star Gas moved ahead easily on a small volume of sales and reached the 23 mark shortly after the opening. On the close Saturday, Lone Star sold at 22¼, the lowest since the reduction of the recent stock dividend. Other fuels were firm, but trading was light.

In the early market Pittsburgh Forgings showed strength similar to that of last week when it reached new high ground for the year. This gain was forfeited later, however. The company's 1930 report made a favorable showing, covering the dividend with a 50 per cent margin and in addition to this stimulation the street is discussing the probability of a merger with Transue & Williams Steel Forgings.

Mesta Machine's performance was rather disappointing in the face of the 1930 report showing over $4 a share earned on the stock. The stock merely held steady at a figure barely eight times the per share earnings.

MESTA MACHINE PROFITS JUMP

Mesta Machine Company reports for 1930 net earnings, after depreciation and federal taxes, of $2,509,175, equivalent, after deducting preferred dividends, to $4.02 per share on 600,000 shares of common stock now outstanding. This compares with $1,797,241 in 1929, or $2.81 on the common per share after dividends paid on preferred stock. The balance sheet as of December 31, 1930, shows a ratio of quick assets to quick liabilities of approximately 4 to 1.

Uncompleted business carried over into 1931 amounted to $7,150,616, which compares with $5,649,231 carried over into 1930. Taking into consideration the amount of business now on the books of the company and the outlook for additional new business, which is exceptionally good, production during 1931 should equal or exceed that of 1930.

Depreciation Important In Accounting

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

DEPRECIATION AND DEPLETION charges are important items on the income accounts of corporations. Investors should always take the trouble to find out whether adequate reserves of this type are being charged from earnings. If these reserves are not being set up each year the earnings statements will give an exaggerated picture of total profits and of earnings per share.

Nearly all corporations should make provisions for depreciation in order to avoid giving a false statement of profits. Whether or not depletion charges should be made depends on the types of business in which the corporations are engaged.

Most corporations do make provisions for these reserves and, as a general rule, the amounts set aside on the books are adequate. But there are some organizations which do not set up depreciation and depletion reserves. Usually no secret is made of this fact but, if the stockholders do not realize the significance of this omission in accounting, they have a highly distorted idea of the profits actually being made.

Cities Service Omits Reserve

ONE OF THE OUTSTANDING organizations which fails to deduct reserves for depreciation and depletion from its earnings is the Cities Service Company. While the individual reports of some of the subsidiaries show reserves for depreciation, many of them ignore these charges in their accounting. The consolidated statements of the companies in the Cities Service group also show profits before these charges are deducted so that it is impossible to determine the earnings per share with any reasonable degree of accuracy.

In all fairness, it must be admitted that depreciation and depletion charges are never more than estimates. The future of business is always so uncertain that these reserves invariably represent an element of guess work. But officials of a company, subject to the approval of independent auditors, should be able to come closer to an approximation of the correct charges than individual stockholders.

What Depreciation Means

THE NECESSITY FOR setting up reserves for depreciation is not generally understood by the investing public. While it is a highly complicated phase of accounting, the general principles are simple. All kinds of machinery in manufacturing plants eventually wear out. The recent history of business shows that new machines are constantly being invented. These are able to do the work of old machines more cheaply. When a company buys equipment its officials realize that, within 10, 20 or 30 years this machinery must be scrapped and replaced by something new.

When major expenditures for equipment are made, the cost is not ordinarily charged to operating expenses. The money involved is considered as a capital expenditure and it is represented on the balance sheet as an investment in physical property. To guard against the fact that this property may be worthless 20 years from now, conservative accountants will deduct one-twentieth of the cost from earnings each year. If the estimate of the life of the equipment is correct, its value will not have been paid out in dividends, but it will have been retained by the corporation either in the form of current assets or in an investment in some new type of equipment.

Depletion usually refers to reserves for the use of mineral deposits of either mining, oil or natural gas companies. As an example, an organization which paid $1,000,000 for a mine and estimated that 1,000,000 tons of ore were in the deposit would charge off $1 from its earnings for every ton mined so that its capital could not be dissipated in dividends.

Charges Uncertain

NATURALLY IT IS impossible to determine in advance the exact amount of depreciation or depletion which should be deducted from earnings each year. Changed conditions show these charges to have been either too small or too [illegible] But it is important that provisions be made so that earnings [illegible] not include a distribution of capital.

Where an official estimate is made of these reserves, stockholders have at least some assurance that net profits are real and that the company will not find at a future date that it has paid out its capital in dividends.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

ENGINEERING CONTRACTS

Voting of more than $54,000,000 by the city of Chicago and Cook County for sewers and street and park improvements considerably augmented the total value of engineering construction operations announced throughout the country during the week, Construction Daily reports. The total, however, for all classes of planned work, except highways, fell to $90,136,000, as compared with $96,257,000 in the preceding week, but showed a substantial gain over the $71,782,000 for the corresponding week last year.

NORTH AMERICAN AVIATION

Stockholders of North American Aviation, Inc., will vote March 11 on reducing the size of the board of directors which has held the distinction of being probably the largest ever known to Wall street with 60 members. It is proposed to cut it 25 per cent to 45, but even then the board will rank among the largest in the country. The company, headed by C. M. Keys as president, owns the stocks of several aviation companies, and its directorate includes officials of banks, motor and oil companies as well as aviation.

WATCH TRADE AGREEMENT

The Federal Trade Commission announces it has entered into stipulations with certain watch manufacturers whereby the latter agree to cease using the words "American" and "All American" to designate products not manufactured wholly in America. A manufacturer also agreed to stop advertising that a certain group of famous football players use a particular make of watch without disclosing the fact that such were given them gratuitously by the manufacturer thereof.

C. P. R. CERTIFICATES READY

The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh announces that Bankers Trust Company of New York will deliver definitive Canadian Pacific Railway Equipment Trust 4½ per cent gold certificates Series C 1930, in exchange for temporary bonds.

COTTON GOODS BUYING

Buyers of cotton goods are beginning to show more confidence in the markets, according to trade comment, and are placing larger orders for merchandise than in some time. As an example, many of the flannel lines have not been priced for jobbers yet, on the basis that they were not interested in goods. Several wholesalers, however, expressed the opinion that they were ready to operate now if the new lists were issued.

PILGRIMS USE U. S. AUTOS

Another increase in popularity of the American automobile as a means of transporting Moslem pilgrims to Mecca instead of the traditional camel is reported to the Department of Commerce from Cairo. During the first part of the current pilgrimage, from the beginning of the season on December 19, 8,713 pilgrims made the journey by motor car, with each vehicle averaging 11 passengers. The automobiles used in the traffic were of American origin.

Wrigley Showing for 1930 Attracts Some Quiet Investment

Wrigley is one of the companies which has maintained consistent growth in earning power even in years of poor business. That was shown in 1930, when the company earned $6.14 a share compared with $5.80 in 1929. The showing has been attracting a quiet investment demand into the stock, and interests who have been close to the management are talking of an increase in the present $4 a share dividend rate later this year. In addition to the good earnings, Wrigley showed a current asset position of better than 10 to 1, with current assets amounting to $43,398,556. Nearly $25,400,000 consisted of cash and marketable securities. That financial position would appear to justify an increased return for stockholders later.

As set forth rather forcefully in the annual statement of the United States Rubber Company, the steady decline in commodity prices last year played a major part in piling up heavy losses for corporations whose inventory positions were seriously affected as a result. This company reported a net operating profit of $6,505,672, but had a net loss of $6,980,141 after fixed charges, depreciation, etc. However, the company had to make adjustments, chiefly occasioned by the decline in raw rubber prices, entailing a further loss of $11,083,799, so that the actual loss for the year was $18,063,940. In consequence the profit and loss surplus of $10,628,227 shown at the end of 1929 was replaced by a deficit of $7,120,056 at the end of 1930.

A prominent investment service points out that 12 months or more of business depression inflict wounds that remain to frighten the stock market for months later. This was true in 1921 when the market rallied early in the year and later broke to new lows on superficial evidence of bad earnings. At the same time that the market was taking new fright in 1921 following a year's decline, fundamentals were growing more and more constructive and as a matter of fact industrial production had already started upward. Business turned upward first and the market was delinquent in following, probably because of the drag of so much bad news left over from the period of declining prices.

A study of the 1930 annual reports of 53 investment trusts reveals the following stocks to be the most popular. American Telephone, represented 39 times in these portfolios; Consolidated Gas, 37 times; American Can, 30; United States Steel, 30; General Motors, 29; Union Carbide, 29; General Electric, 28; National Dairy Products, 27; Standard Oil of New Jersey, 27; Electric Power and Light, 25; Electric Bond and Share, 24; Pacific Gas and Electric, 23; Public Service of New Jersey, 23; American Gas and Electric, 22; American Tobacco, 22; Du Pont, 22; International Harvester, 22; Borden, 21; New York Central, 21; United Gas Improvement, 21; United Light and Power, 21; Kennecott Copper, 20, and Southern California Edison, 20.

A decided change has taken place in the relative popularity of many stocks during the past year in comparing with the portfolio holdings of these investment trusts in 1929. The 1930 list contains eight utilities, one railroad and 11 industrials, while the 1929 list held six utilities, four rails and 10 industrials. This shows that the utilities have increased in popularity while the rails have lost.

The single railroad stock appearing in the 1930 list is New York Central, which stands in nineteenth place, while for 1929 it stood sixth. Atchison, Union Pacific and Pennsylvania, investment favorites a year ago, have fallen down in esteem. It is also interesting to note that General Motors has come up to fifth place, while a year ago it was relegated to thirty-fifth place.

Mary Lou Plans to Leave Lorrimer's Home

CHAPTER XXI.

So Christmas Day came. Cold and clear and perfect, the Christmas Day of a bright, tinseled card. For snow had fallen the night before and Westwood was ermined in white, soft and shining, the bare branches of the trees glittering with frost, with silver armor, and a pale golden sun shone bravely in the cloudless winter sky.

Larry arrived with absurd presents for Mary Lou and funny little remembrances for the others. And the big tree, which Mary Lou and Mrs. Lorrimer and "Travers" had trimmed the night before, blazed with lights and ropes of gold and silver, shone with stars and guarded the heaps of packages, gayly papered, and gayly tied, which lay at the base like strange and colorful fruit.

"The ring asks no promise," Travers explained.

Mary Lou was more than taken care of. Mrs. Lorrimer had given her a dozen pretty, graceful little bits of lingerie and perfume, exquisite handkerchiefs, an etching she had once admired and, as a very special gift, a slim, lovely coat of silver broadtail, collared and cuffed in sable, a coat for a princess, which took Mary Lou's breath completely.

Ring From Travers

And from Lorrimer there were books and candy, stockings and a handbag in excellent taste, and one small square box from Cartier's.

Mary Lou opened it and her eyes widened and then flew to Mrs. Lorrimer's in appeal.

A ring. A square cut sapphire set in platinum and with a frosty lace work of diamonds about it!

"Oh, Lorry!" said Mary Lou, helplessly.

With Larry watching, whistling aimlessly to himself, and under Mrs. Lorrimer's anxious eyes, Lorrimer crossed to Mary Lou's side and stood with her under the many colored lights of the tall lovely tree.

"It asks no promise," he said, low; "it rivets no fetters. But you don't wear the other ring—any more, Delight."

"Other ring?" she whispered, unconscious that she spoke for his ears alone.

"The seal ring. We—didn't have time for any other," he said.

Her heart sank, she was suddenly blackly depressed. He had married Delight Harford then . . . with a seal ring. His own she imagined.

She tried to smile and succeeded only in looking wistful and unhappy.

Well, she'd let him think she'd been awfully poor after the "death" of the cousins!

"It—had to go," she managed to say.

He nodded, thinking he understood, but wondering why . . . surely it hadn't been valuable, couldn't have brought very much! But his heart constricted with pity for her, the hard, difficult times she must have been through and of which she was so reluctant to speak.

"Then," he begged, "for the sake of Christmas-time, will you wear this one . . . for . . . me?"

She loved it! It was beautiful, it was perfect. She slipped it on her finger, her eyes turned from his suddenly radiant face to Mrs. Lorrimer's. Margaret nodded, quietly.

Larry broke into what he fondly hoped was a carol and the tension was over, the moment had passed.

Later Jenny Wynne came over with half a dozen youngsters, to demand to see all the presents, to nibble at candy and fruit and to drink egg nogg, the old-fashioned kind that you don't drink, after all, but eat with a spoon. And the moment he laid eyes upon Jenny, Larry's fate was sealed.

Travers Asks to Dance

She was as slim and as curved as a birch tree. She had fly-away yellow curls and deep brown eyes. Her chin was pointed and so was her wit. She was an adorable little person and she was 19 years old.

"I'm a goner!" groaned Larry to Mary Lou. "How much money has she?"

"Millions, my poor dear! Her father in Wynne, of American Steel!"

Larry was crushed. But not for long.

"Even a steel king might welcome a rising young novelist as a son-in-law," he announced, "and I have three chapters written. Mary Lou, something tells me I will spend a lot of time in Westmill, Conn."

At midnight they turned back the rugs and turned on the radio and danced. Larry and Jenny floated about the floor in a series of graceful meanderings and brilliant wisecracks. Mary Lou, standing by Lorrimer, watched them. Now was her opportunity to rid him completely of any mad ideas he might still harbor.

"Larry's gone absolutely mad over Jenny Wynne," she whispered, "and he's sunk in gloom because he's a poor reporter and she's one of these heiresses you read about."

"Jenny has enough for two," answered Lorrimer, light hearted.

"Larry wouldn't care for that arrangement," remarked Mary Lou.

"Good for Larry. Well, we'll have to give him a hand up . . . although playing Cupid is rather out of my line. Delight, I've not danced since—since a night you may remember. Shall we try again?"

She gave herself into his arms, conscious that Margaret and Doctor Mathews, who was present, were watching. Conscious too that Jenny and her gang were also observant, amazed but too well bred to show it.

"Good heavens," said Jenny to Larry, "he hasn't danced since the war! Wonders will never cease! That girl's a darling, though. He's in love with her, of course . . . who could help it? Does it break your heart—you know her pretty well, don't you?" and she looked at him from under curling lashes in an entirely wicked fashion.

"No," Larry answered, steering that armful of mischief around the room, "no, it doesn't break my heart. Yes, I know her very well. No, of course he couldn't help being in love with her any more than I can help being in love with you."

"You're a fast worker!" commented Jenny, with admiration.

The air music was lively, the air music was provocative. Mary Lou found dancing easy. Lorry danced well—he hadn't forgotten. He danced her cleverly under the mistletoe which was caught with a bright ribbon to the glittering crystal chandelier. Stopped her there, an instant . . . and kissed her.

Decides to Leave

The music went on and the dancing. Mary Lou's knees were weak . . . were shaking under her. Margaret had seen that kiss. Mathews, too, and perhaps the others. That didn't matter, however. And Lorry had said no word. What did matter was the intolerable pressure at her heart, the sense of faintness, the sudden piercing knowledge.

She loved him . . . she loved him . . . terribly. And she was living a lie . . . a false Delight.

Somehow or other that evening, which had commenced so happily and which suddenly changed to an interminable nightmare, ended. When the goodbys had been said and the voices of departing guests faded and the purr of motors grew fainter, Mary Lou finally reached her room. She undressed, endured Mrs. Lorrimer's friendly "May I look in just to see that you're not too tired to cover yourself up?" and, after the older woman had gone, she lay awake, wretched, too miserable for tears, staring at the dim shapes of the furniture, wondering what she could do, what she must do . . .

As she lay there it grew clearer in her tormented mind that there was only one thing possible to do.

She rose, slipped into her negligee, ran barefoot across the thick rug and switched on the light above the desk in the little living room; there, after a long pause, she selected pen and paper; dipped the pen in the ink—waited, shaken with a tearless sobbing. Presently, the ink having dried, she made a few unintelligible scratches on the paper, crumpled up the sheet, cast it away, dipped her pen and started afresh.

Only one thing to do—

"Dear Mrs. Lorrimer," wrote Mary Lou, holding her chin high so the tears might not blot the sheet, "Don't think too badly of me. I can't stay any longer. It is impossible. Things have happened which have made it so. Please forgive me and thank you a thousand times for all you have done for me. I can't explain. I'd rather just leave this note and slip away. I'll never forget you or cease to be grateful, but I can't stay on."

She signed it, firmly enough, "Mary Lou."

DAILY TRUE STORY—Vi Was Right

"The trouble is with you, Vi," declared John W. Burton to his vivacious daughter.

"There is no trouble with me whatever," Miss Victoria Burton broke in. "I eat well, sleep well, have all of my limbs, all my faculties and no worries."

"The trouble is with you—you are a butterfly."

Vi smiled sweetly at her father, began to dance as lightly as ever a butterfly hovered over a bloom. She floated up and kissed her father and danced away again.

"All right. I've been a butterfly. What next?"

John W. Burton smiled.

"You are a good butterfly, to be sure," Victoria's father went on, "but, as I started to say—"

"Now I know!"

"Know what?"

"Why you made so much money. You don't know when to stop. If you want a dollar or a railroad or a cluster of banks or even if you want to scold me, you keep right at it until you get what you want."

"Correct. And the trouble is with you that you flit about. This thrills you today and bores you tomorrow. Now it happens to be a nonenity whose chief ambition is a perfect stance."

"You like golf, Dad."

Confesses Love

"Certainly I like golf, but I don't let it take the place of brains, ambition and thought. This young spriggins is impossible."

"You wish you played his game."

"Not if that was all I could ever know. Forget him, Vi."

"Might as well tell me to stop breathing."

"Take a run up into Canada with me for some fishing. You handle a salmon almost as well as I do. You'll hook a big salmon and forget all about wanting to hook this—er—golf teacher."

"No."

"He's only a passing fancy."

"Andy Morris is nothing at all fancy. He's a regular man and I won't forget him. I'm in love with him."

"Hah!"

"Now, Dad, just a moment—did you ever hear me say I was in love before?"

Her father looked at her with a puzzled expression.

"Guess not. But you've mentioned several men as possible husbands."

"Yes, it got to be a fad to marry princes and such until movie stars took it up. I was on the verge once myself, but this is different. I'm in love with Mr. Andrew Morris."

"Today. Who will it be tomorrow?"

"Andy Morris."

Now and then, when he played a game or so at the club links, he caught glimpses of Victoria and Andy. It was quite all right because Andy was the club professional and so long as anyone paid for his services as instructor he naturally played with them.

Victoria came upon her father and old Maj. Tuttle one day and asked permisison to play through.

"How's her game, Morris?" Mr. Burton asked.

"Far from perfect, sir, but she's coming on," he answered.

Victoria drove through and started away, her ears tingling to hear what was said, but she was too game to remain.

"Have any ambitions above golf, Morris?" Mr. Burton asked.

"Several, sir."

Displays Pearls

With that he drove and started off.

"I'd give plenty to be able to drive like that," he confided in the major.

"Nice boy, best prof. we ever had," the major said.

Victoria sliced and sent her ball into the rough. They used no caddies. She followed Andy into the rough to look for the ball and sat on a log.

"Father won't take time enough to keep in form," Victoria complained, "and he's worried. He's in the ex-president foursome and had rather win that fifty-dollar cup than make a million."

"He'll surprise them, Miss Burton. Your father is a remarkable man. He sneaks out here oftener than you'd think and plays around alone. I've been giving him a few pointers, too."

Mr. Burton came out from the city rather late. Victoria was over to see a friend for the night. Her father talked with her over the telephone. She was going to the club at 10 the next morning, she said.

Burton went to bed. The barking of his watchdogs and the prowling about of his two watchmen at his country place did not disturb him.

Unusually early next morning he was driven over to the club. He didn't notice a car that had been parked outside of his grounds, and was unaware that it started to follow his own car.

At the club he started out at such an early hour that he seemingly had the links to himself. He was practicing for his coming foursome.

Andy Morris was giving directions to a workman who was repairing a portion of a washed out bunker when Mr. Burton came along. He stopped to talk. It struck Burton as a good opportunity to further frighten Andy Morris from any thoughts of proposing to his daughter. As they talked he produced a leather case and showed Morris a necklace of matched pearls.

"My daughter's birthday, Morris," he said. "She was away all night so I'm going to give it to her out here for a surprise."

"Marvelous. I've never seen so many real pearls," and Andy stared at them fascinated.

"Just for sentiment. Victoria has plenty of such trinkets. She's always crazy for more—and I got these at rock bottom price, a bit over two hundred thousand."

Burton closed the case and put it back in his pocket, leaving Andy staring in amazement. Burton grinned. That was a good idea, he thought. It would make Morris realize that he couldn't keep Victoria in such "trinkets."

He drove over a bridge and went down the slope.

A man came out from the birches in the rough and approached from behind.

"Burton?" he said.

Mr. Burton turned.

The man had an automatic in his hand.

"I piped you buying them pearls yesterday and I piped you showing 'em to a guy a while back. Will you hand 'em over now or will I drill you first?"

John W. Burton got very red with anger, but he wasn't fool enough to lose his life. He could see Andy Morris on top of the slope ready for a drive, but he didn't dare to shout for help. This crook would drill both of them. He handed over the pearls.

Bandit Arrested

"I guess I better drill you, anyway, then you can't—"

There was a sudden thud and the crook dropped like a rock, the automatic and the pearls falling at his feet. He had been hit fairly in the head by a golf ball. Andy Morris was running toward him with long strides.

"I probably killed him, Mr. Burton, but I had to do it when I saw him cover you with the gun," Andy said.

"Do you want me to believe that you could do that again?" gasped Burton. "That's nonsense."

"If you doubt it, stand here and I'll demonstrate," Andy said.

They took the crook away and he didn't regain consciousness until he saw a cop sitting beside him in a hospital.

Of course, Victoria kissed Andy when she learned about it and he was invited to dinner that night.

He confessed, then, that his two ambitions were to establish a plant to manufacture golf clubs and to marry Victoria.

"That's easy, Andy," Victoria said, boldly. "Dad will finance your factory and take plenty of profits, and Dad will also lead me down the aisle and hand me over to you."

As usual Victoria was right.

Poets throughout the country are trying to imitate the style of Ogden Nash. Take, for example, the following Farm Relief epic from the Winamac (Indiana) Republican—

The Farmer.

How many stop to think at all,
What profession roll the ball?
It's the farmer, sir!
He's the man some call "hay seed,"
But above all he is indeed
A man to stir.

He is the producer of all we eat,
And nine to one takes the back seat
In the hall.
And I think it is a sin,
As he has this wheel to spin,
For us all.

Do give the farmer a square deal,
For he's the one who turns the wheel
For you and I.

And we should not blame for his fret
When he goes to buy.

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT

Postoffice Contract Let

Two Other Local Projects Could Be Taken Up By the Government at This Time With Advantage.

Some gratifying statements are made in connection with the awarding of the contract for the foundation of the new Pittsburgh postoffice. It is expected that work will be started within 10 days. Local labor will be employed and the local wage scale paid.

Pittsburgh has recommended to the federal government two other projects which could be taken up at this time with advantage. The adjournment of Congress prevents immediate action, but the campaign to induce the government to proceed with the construction of these public works should not be allowed to lag.

One of the projects is the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal. Alexander W. Dann, chairman of a Chamber of Commerce committee dealing with the matter, estimates 53,411,000 tons of freight would be shipped through the canal annually. There can be no question that a waterway handling that much traffic is "economically advisable."

The other plan is for storage reservoirs on the headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela. The merit of this project was established years ago. After the disastrous flood of 1907, which put 1,600 acres of Pittsburgh property in the Golden Triangle and the North Side and South Side under water, the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh asked engineers to tell us how to prevent a recurrence of such a calamity. After a year of study they said, "Build reservoirs at the headwaters of the rivers, where excess water can be caught and held until it is safe to release it."

The storage reservoirs would have stood Pittsburgh and other towns in the river valleys in good stead during the drought last summer.

Force of Public Opinion

Taxpayers Will Have Good Government If They Constantly Maintain Vigilance Now Shown.

Council has failed in its attempt to block an inquiry into the affairs of the Department of Supplies. It has been defeated by the power of public opinion.

Two audits are about to be made of the department's accounts. District Attorney Park promises to watch developments and to institute prosecutions if evidence of malfeasance is uncovered.

Thus it has been demonstrated to City Council and to other public officials that the taxpayers cannot be defied successfully. When the people are really aroused over the way in which public affairs are managed they make their influence felt.

There is no doubt that the citizens of Pittsburgh are now aroused. Interest in municipal government is at a high pitch. There is demand on all sides for integrity and competency in the management of the city's affairs.

The citizens will have integrity and competency to the extent that they insist on it—and to no greater extent. They are on the job now; but if there is to be good government at all times they must be always on the job.

It will not do to inquire what is going on only at long intervals and when a scandal has been forced by some fortuitous combination of circumstances into the open. Constant vigilance must be maintained.

Better System Needed

Selective Immigration and Reinforced Deportation Laws Needed to Protect American Workers.

In the all important matter of driving undesirable aliens out of this country and keeping them out, the American people did not get a square deal from their Senators and Representatives in the Seventy-first Congress which has just expired.

Congress failed to provide a proper system of registration for approximately 7,000,000 foreign-born persons now living here who have not been naturalized.

Experts agree and experience proves that registration of this country's alien population is absolutely essential if the aliens legally here are to be protected in their rights and those illegally here are to be apprehended and deported.

Congress has failed to reinforce the deportation laws under which only about one-fourth of all the aliens illegally admitted to this country can be deported if caught. Estimates of the total number of aliens illegally here run as high as 3,000,000.

Whether these aliens were admitted without inspection, or passed inspection by means of false statements, or have committed serious offenses punishable by deportation, all are here IN VIOLATION OF THE LAW.

All these alien law-breakers are here in defiance of the public will. All are a menace to the public welfare. All should be rounded up and deported as swiftly as an adequate and efficient inspection force can do this job.

Congress failed to establish a scientific system for the selection of immigrants that will afford to American wage-earners the same protection that we give to American industry by the tariff.

Selective immigration will increase the quality and decrease the quantity of immigrants admitted within the quota limits assigned to foreign countries. It will enable us to keep out aliens not needed in our industrial life.

Under the law as it is today we must admit a peddler with a proper application and refuse admittance to a great industrial engineer whose entry would start the wheels of a new industry going. No selection on the basis of national needs is permitted.

Justice to the 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 American citizens who have been thrown out of employment through no fault of their own demands that Congress end its neglect to the immigration problem.

Adoption of a sound immigration program will do far more to reduce unemployment permanently and relieve distress than most of the emergency legislation already enacted by Congress for purposes of temporary relief.

It is a national misfortune that the expiring Congress, in spite of President Hoover's earnest recommendation, failed to enact a comprehensive legislative program which would have purged the household of the nation of undesirable aliens within, and protected it from undesirable aliens without.

This should be one of the outstanding achievements of the new Congress which meets next December.

"We are a nation, and not a hodge-podge of foreign nationalities," said Theodore Roosevelt. "We are a people and not a polygot boarding house. We have room in this country for but one flag, the Stars and Stripes. We have room for but one loyalty, loyalty to the United States. We have room for but one language, the language of Washington and Lincoln. We must insist on a unified nationality, with one flag, one language, one set of national ideals."

Just "Cute!"

"Will you be so kind as to tell, in your own inimitable way, an uncomprehending and somewhat bewildered male what a woman means when she uses the word 'cute.'" writes Albert H——r.

It gives a big, husky six-foot man rather a start to hear himself called "cute" by a fluffy five-foot wisp of femininity. He knows that she means it for flattery, but it sounds more like an insult.

* * *

"Cute" has been woman's favorite adjective ever since Cleopatra caught her first glimpse of the Sphinx and exclaimed, "How CUTE!"

"Cute" is what a woman would Rather Be than President. Or even than "right." She would rather be called a "cutey" than a beauty.

To the kind of girl who still "cutes" things, everything she admires is "cute," from the dimple in a man's chin to the Grand Canyon.

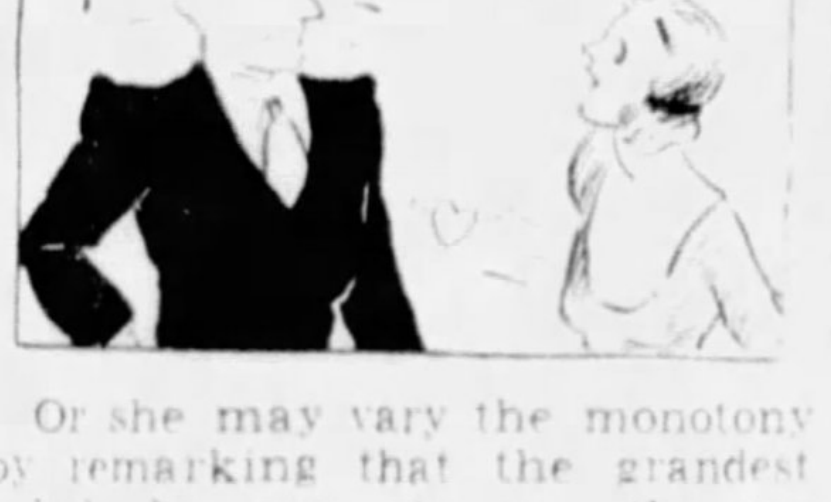
She will tell you that she saw the cutest hat in Paris, or that she climbed the cutest Alp in Switzerland. Or that they had the cutest hippopotamus out at the Zoo. Or that the stars were positively CUTE last night.



Or she may vary the monotony by remarking that the grandest salad she ever ate was the one they served on that cute trip through the Royal Gorge. A broiled squab or a new baby may be simply grand; but a Mexican bandit would be cute.

I thought that all the "cute" girls were dead, but, apparently, they have come back with long skirts. There are so many other pet adjectives now, you'd think "cute" would be obsolete, along with "love" and "beau."

There is "swell," for instance. And "precious." And "intriguing," and "quaint," and "amusing." And "It-ish," and "swank," and "angelic," and "thr-rrilling." And "refreshing," and "naive" and "raucous."

Yet none of these newer adjectives will ever displace "cute." "Cute," according to the dictionary, may mean cunning, crafty, clever, sharp or astute. But, when a cute-girl uses it, it means a thousand other things: charming, amusing or attractive. Or handsome and irresistible! Or impressive, awe-inspiring, magnificent or picturesque. Oh, anything!

Cute is the great American "diminutive"—the adjective of affection, sentiment or tenderness. It means, well what does a man mean when he calls a 200-pound woman "Little One?" Or "Cutey?"

* * *

WHAT SOCIETY OWES PASTEUR

By Archibald Henderson

Today we are accustomed to the idea of public conservation of health. We applaud and support the idea. We allow ourselves to be taxed for the maintenance of the public welfare, judged from the standpoint of individual and collective benefit. Pure water, pure food, pure drugs, correct sanitation—all are integral parts of the higher civilization of today. But all these things are modern attainments, acquired as the result of scientific study.

How much in the matter of public health the world owes to Louis Pasteur! And yet this country boy, who was sent by his father to Paris, to receive the advantages of education which had been denied him at home, soon grew so homesick that he had to return home. He gave up the splendid opportunity of attending the Ecole Normale as the result of a powerful nostalgia. Returning to his home at Arbois, he attended the schools there for two years; and then at the age of 20, with at least a vivid sense of the great advantages of education, returned to Paris to enter the Ecole Normale. It was not long before he was recognized as industrious, ambitious and devoted to his studies.

The real inauguration of his career as a scientist was on January 15, 1849, when he began his work, to continue for six years, as professor of chemistry in the University of Strassburg. After two years as professor of chemistry at the University of Lille, Pasteur returned to Paris, his headquarters for the remainder of his career.

The petition of the wine growers of Lille and environs to Pasteur to study the fermentation trouble which was ruining their wines set his feet in the path he was to follow subsequently through life. The losses of the wine growers were immense, some years totaling as much as $20,000,000. At that time spontaneous generation was still pretty generally believed in. But a number of scientists, including Pasteur, were able to show that nutritive liquids, if properly sterilized and kept from contact with the air, would remain free of organisms for an indefinite period. Pasteur showed conclusively that living things derive only from living things of the same kind.

By growing pure cultures of various types of organisms, he taught the wine growers, brewers and wine manufacturers how to grow and utilize the microscopic organisms required for producing the kinds of wine and beer desired. Thus he pasteurized the wines, as we say today that dairymen pasteurize milk.

In 1865, Pasteur began his studies of the silk-worm industry, which was likewise in a bad state due to diseases of the worms. After elaborate studies he proved that corpuscles and bacteria produced the diseases of the worms; and that transmission of these organisms must be prevented if the disease is to be prevented. Finally his monumental studies of anthrax resulted in leading him to the studies of diseases of the human being. No one can say how much society owes to Pasteur.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

She's had a wretched life. A naggy home—an unhappy marriage that ended in divorce—And now love has come her away, again, at 33, and she's afraid to take it.

"How can you INSURE HAPPINESS?" she writes. "What can you fall back on if marriage turns out wrong? Keeping a stiff upper lip and going on is okey in fairy tales—but when a girl gives up a good job, banks everything on a husband and then he fails her—well—"

How can you "insure happiness?"

You CAN'T.

And why should you expect to?

You weren't given life in order to find happiness. Happiness isn't the purpose of life . . . isn't even necessary to a great life. The purpose of life is GROWTH. You were meant to grow—to develop—that is the natural plan for your life, for all life. And you certainly can't grow and yet remain what you call "happy."

For happiness means contentment—

And growth implies discontent—

Happiness means comfort—
Growth implies discomfort—
Happiness means ecstasy—
Growth implies risk and danger—

Happiness means ecstacy—
Growth implies hardship, boredom, monotony—

Successful lives aren't happy lives. Successful lives are GROWING lives—lives that are continually reaching out, taking chances, making sacrifices, battling with hardships—

"Then why do people desire happiness so passionately if they weren't meant to be happy?" you say.

Why do they want to be happy? For exactly the same reason that they want to quit their jobs, sleep until noon and stuff themselves with chocolate cake . . .

BECAUSE THEY'RE LAZY AND GREEDY AND COWARDLY.

Of course we want happiness—We want anything that's easy and pleasant. But our "wants" are not the measure of what our lives should be. Your youngster WANTS lollipops instead of regular food. You don't let him have them. You want happiness instead of regular life. Don't let yourself have it.

The dream of happiness isn't a man-size dream—It's a lazy, stupid, animal's dream. It's a greedy, timid child's dream.

And it's ONLY a dream. Happiness never really happens—save in brief spurts. Thank God it doesn't! Paralysis would be a picnic compared to it.

AND, INDEED, THAT WHICH WE CALL HAPPINESS IS USUALLY A PARALYSIS OF THOUGHT AND SPIRIT.

"But what can we fall back on if happiness fails?"

Don't fall back on anything. Keep on going! Keep on going with life. Take life as it comes. Take life as an adventurer takes the jungle. He doesn't demand happiness in the jungle. He asks only adventure and he accepts fever, blisters, bites, hunger and drought as part of the price he must pay for adventure.

ACCEPT SORROW AND DISAPPOINTMENT AND MONOTONY AS PART OF THE PRICE YOU MUST PAY FOR THE ADVENTURE OF LIVING. LIVING IS WORTH ANY PRICE YOU PAY.

Wise Words

The doing evil to avoid an evil cannot be good.—Coleridge.

Air and manners are more expressive than words.—Richardson.

Man is a thinking being, whether he will or no; all he can do is to turn his thoughts the best way.—Temple.

Moral principles require reasoning and discourse to discover the certainty of their truths; they lie not open as natural characters engraven on the mind.—Locke.

He, who, in questions of right, virtue, or duty, sets himself above all ridicule, is truly great, and shall laugh in the end with truer mirth than ever he was laughed at.—Lavater.

Love is not to be reason'd down or lost
In high ambition, or a thirst of greatness;
'Tis second life; it grows into the soul,
Warms every vein, and beats in ev'ry pulse.—Addison.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Taj Majal

Long since the monarch, Shah Jahan,
Dwelt here on earth, less man than god;
In ancient days Saturnian
His footsteps blessed the paths he trod.
They tell us he was wholly wise,
A lion-hearted, martial soul,
Yet versed in peaceful strategies,
Fit brother of the Yellow Bow.

For rest he sought his gardens fair
In Agra, by the river side.
Fresh girlhood garlands blossomed there
Till beauty waxed and waned and died.
Perhaps some royal maiden's smile,
Perhaps some tragic spoil of war
Won his strange heart a little while
From harem or from grand bazar.

But if, of all this lovely wreath,
One rose should droop from day to day,
Mocking her gorgeous silken sheath,
Shah Jahan turned his face away.
Ruthless as potter to the clay
Half god, all enigmatical,
Yet he has left, to rival day,
This pearl-domed wonder, Taj Majal!

It is a calamity to be born poor—a calamity most of us undergo.

Did it ever occur to you, however, that it may be a far greater calamity to be born rich?

Wealth that comes to you without effort can be a more difficult obstacle to advancement than the direst poverty.

Most men who succeed come from poor households. Lincoln, Grant, Edison, the elder Rockefeller, Henry Ford—to mention but a few—were born in the humblest circumstances. You might not know their names today had they inherited millions.

And, on the other hand, men who have succeeded in spite of wealth are so rare as to be almost unique. Only now and then does one triumph over the handicap of dollars and make himself valued for what he IS instead of what he HAS.

Parents who have money to lavish on their sons and daughters will find food for thought in this sketch. If their children disappoint them in later life they can find the reason here.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 9.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up listening to mournful cowboy songs and nothing to me so expresses frustration. Came a note from Al Jolson that my mention of his 199 overcoats left him but two—"one for you and one for me."

So laboring briefly and through the town, stopping here and there and picking up Wellington Cross and his wife and Mrs. Dan Hanna, Jr., and driving them to Wellington's apartment. Thence to a lecture on Russia and have come to believe the Soviet destroys individualism.

In the evening with my wife and Justine Hall to Arakel's for an Armenian dinner of lamb knuckles and home where Tom Buttkofer came to discuss selections for a new book. Early to bed but aroused by an eerie unsigned telegram reading: "Voice says he is tortured."

Paul Kelly was cast in a rather grewsome part for his return to the stage. He recently spent two years in a California prison in connection with a fist fight that ended in the death of his present wife's husband. In the play, as a hobo, he has several fistfights and much action of the play showed him in a prison cell, laughing bitterly at fate. To those who followed his trial it was a bit shuddery.

A headwaiter glorified to hotel management recently snagged on an incident that cost him a $40,000 debutante party. So they switched the affair to a most hated rival inn.

My last close-up of a wrestling bout was in Los Angeles, three years ago. On my left was a tittupy gentleman with an orange in his hand. During one of those agonizing slow twists of the combatants, my neighbor squeezed the orange so hard I got a full spray of juice smack in the face.

Francis Albertanti tells me a spectator at the Garden during an exciting match this winter actually threw a shoulder out of place. A fellow must feel a sissy, no end, rushing into a doctor's office to explain he flipped his shoulder out of focus just watching two rough men.

Few have been mourned so long on Broadway as the dancer, Jack Donahue. In the Rialto's smothering aura of a self-centered microcosm, the passing of a friend is quickly forgotten. But in the cafes, the green rooms and night haunts there are still sighs and often tears for Donahue. He was one of the few flashing out of obscurity who did not excite the White Way envy.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Why be so diligent in seeking to know the weaknesses of those about you?

None are without faults.

Even the worst of the human family have their good points.

In speaking of the absent, then, why allude first to his mistakes?

Is it that you take pleasure in muck-raking?

Presenting the least attractive points you can when a person is mentioned must have created for certain persons in the past reputations that were not deserved.

And it did not add to your personal prestige to back bite, did it?

Men are not as prone to criticize their own sex as women are.

Few persons have a wide enough margin of sinless past to permit the attitude of deprecation that some of them assume.

All make mistakes sooner or later in some way.

Perhaps your digressions have not resulted as seriously as the moral wanderings of some you know.

But your own thoughts have been crooked enough at times to preclude the "holier than thou" attitude which slanderers take when repeating defamations.
